Burlington Letter to Troy Times.

Let us present ourselves at a genuine country dance in Vermont. The musiians have just come in and taken the scats provided for them on a slightly the music to strike up. After the usual prelude of shrilling and tooting the leader of the little orchestra nods to the floor manager, who promptly steps forward and shouts: "Gentlemen, please take part ners for —," as the dance may be. If it is a waltz the expectant swain awkwardly and blushingly encircles the fair one with his arm and begins to swing, with a sort of rythmic apology for the prematureness

of the embrace. She timidly places her hand in his and undulates slightly in sym pathy with his impatience. At last the leader of the orchestra looks significantly around his little band of arlists, sods his head upon his violin, draws his bow with an emphatic gesture, and the music strikes up. About half the couples in the room have caught the rhythm of the music; the others swing hopelessly round, enanging step and bumping into each other, till something like a conglomerated dead-lock ensues in one part of the room, and the dancers composing it disengage themseives and wander away with many blushes to a more open space, where they try it again Nobody seems to notice the little by-play. All are dancing, or trying to dance, and of a circle with andless repetition. Pres.

I went Friday to dine with the president, Mr. Tyler......Forty men were present, but no women; the latter did not appear till after dinner. I was seated between Mr. Spencer and Mr. Webster. The latter threw off the pseudo dignity in which he constant ly clothes his sad mediocrity; the madiera, of which he drank too much, not only rendered him agreeable, in the American fashion that is to say, but caused him to become maudlin; he clasped my arm with both hands and said ; "My dear Bacourt, I am exceedingly pleased to see you to-night; I feel this much more than I have previously done, though I can-not tell why. Perhaps I have not hitherto been friendly enough toward you, but, if you will allow me, we shall now become a pair of friends; you shall see that I am a good fellow. Come and see me daily without ceremony; that will please me greatly, my dear Bacourt, because I really find you charming." Standing in the middle of the room and looking the general straight in the face, her little form quivering with anger and excitement, she stamped her fect and said: "I hate you, 'Old Meade,' I hate you!" Every one present save the gallant soldier felt deeply mortified. He never failed to inquire after his little enemy, and would send her presents. She would meet him on the streets afterward, but could never be in duced to address him other than "How do you do, Old Meade?" Finally the little one's prejudice wore away, and, meeting the soldier one day, in a meek voice, searcely audible, saluted him, 'How do you do, General?" 'No, no." said Meade, turning quickly, "I'm not General Meade, I'm only 'Old Meade!' " They eventually became very warm friends.

PLAIN TRUTHS

The blood is the foundation of life, it circulates through every part of the body, and unless it is pure and rich, good health is impossible. If disease has entered the system the only sure and quick way to drive it out is to purify and enrich the blood.

These simple facts are well known, and the highest medical authorities agree that nothing but iron will restore the blood to its natural condition; and also that all the iron preparations hitherto made blacken the teeth, cause headache, and are otherwise injurious.

Brown's Iron Bitters will thorough ly and quickly assimilate with the blood, purifying and strengthening it, and thus drive di-case from any part of the system, and it will not blacken the teeth, cause headache or constipation, and is positively not in-

Silk novelties innumerable and indescribable. Everything that ladies or dressmakers have occasion for in matching, decorating, combining. What we are remarkable for, more than for anything else in silks, is variety; or, at least, we are reputed so. You hear it said by everybody: "If you want to match anything, or find a rare silk, even an unexpectable one, go to Wanamaker's." The other peculiarity that everybody expects to find here is less pleasant to speak of; lower prices. We put it second, because there are people who don't credit us with lower prices. Still, we imagine that if one should assert the contrary, almost everybody in Philadelphia would believe it.

Oftener we speak of other aspects of our trade; aspects less obvious or less recognized. It is well occasionally to give old news.

25 to 65 cents.

West of south entrance to main building. Furs have to be thought of. We're busy enough as to making. If we advertise at all, we ought to say what will not oppress us with too much making. Perhaps thisit is. A great many seal coats and fur-lined circulars are ready-made. More sizes are ready-made here than anybody expects; especially the unexpected sizes. Ready-made work we can make in July. Why shouldn't we make all the shapes and sizes ready-made?

Black satin rhademaes and satin de Lyons, 25 to 35 cents below our own recent prices, of all grades from $1 to $2; and we guess our prices haven't been very high; have they? Next-outer circle, south entrance to main building.
