RESPONSIBLE FOR A STEPMOTHER'S DEATH. Lad Points a Loaded Gun at His Father' Wife and Riddles the Woman With Shot-The Tragedy Supposed to be Accidental. Willard Ordway, a poor and hard work-ing farmer, aged 55, lives on a farm owned by Albert Cate, of Boston, near London, N. H. He has been three times married, the last time in November, 1882, to Mary

E. Haines, only 18 years of age, the daughter of a neighboring farmer. Ordway has two sons, Charles, 12, and Jesse, 5 years old, living at home, and four other children who live away from home. Friday morning Ordway went to Concord in his sleigh, leaving his wife and the two boys at home. On his return nome at evening he met the two boys walking to meet him six miles from home, and Charles told him that his mother was dead, and Jesse was very cold and was cry ing. He took the children into his sleigh and drove toward home as fast as he could. On his way he asked into his team his nearest neighbor, Samuel M. Cate. Together they went to the house, where, for hours, the mother had lain dead and undisturbed. The scene in the kitchen, where the tragedy took place was a terrible one.

The body of Mrs. Ordway lay on the floer in a pool of blood. There was a shocking wound through her head, and portions of the skull and brain were scattered about the room. A door near the body, and which opened into a bedroom, was riddled with shot. The gun stood near a window, and it was discovered that the barrel had been burst in the dis-

was near the sink. I took the gun in my hands and looked at the look and saw there was a cap on it, but supposed it was an old one. While working on the lock the gun suddenly went off with a terrible noise, and i then saw that mother had fallea on the floor. I went up to her and got down on my knees and laid my hand on her face and said " Mother," but saw she was dead. Jesso began to ery, and then I became frightened, and about two o'clock we started on foot toward Conco.d o meet you,"

The officers are investigating the matter, as there are stories circulated by some that the boy did not get along well with his step-mother, and that it is possible that he shot her purposely. He is a bright but headstrong boy, and during the past summer he was away from home on a tack made by John Carroll upon his wife, whose death is hourly expected from the cruel injuries she received. The cause of BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. the quarrel is not known, but Carroi, on returning home from the city, began a savage assault upon his wife, who was holding their three, months old babe in her arms. The blow he struck her threw both mother and child to the floor, and some of the neighbors, hearing the outcry ran to the rescue. A woman, who had the cour-age to enter was kicked out by Carroll, who then barred the doors and windows and continued his butchery until his victim was unable to cry any longer. The horrible struggle lasted for an hour and a half, when a couple of policemen arrived at the scene, broke in the door and found the wife bleeding on the floor and the babe crying on the bed. The furniture was broken to pieces and Carroll was in a towering rage. He gave no reason for his conduct and was locked up.

LIBELLED MRS. GROSS.

She Enters a Moneyed Protest Against Newspaper Comments and Wood-cuts. A young married woman known as Mrs Richard Gross, who has been published as an adventuress and blackmailer, has begun suits for damages against seven newspapers. Her claims range from $2,000 to $10,000. The alleged libel consisted of a dispatch to a Buffalo paper from Boliver, New York, which charged that Mrs. Gross, who is a dashing and handsome brunettee of 22 years, had been driven out of various cities because of her sharp practices. It was claimed that her method of operating was to seek the attentions of well to do married men and to obtain hush-money from them after they had been brought into her toils. State ments of this character were printed by not less than a dozen journals. The author of the alleged exposure stated that the mother and sister of Mrs. Gross were disreputable women in Titusville, Pa. The article mentioned Buffa'o, Cleveland Erie, Jamestown, Boliver, Titusville and Bradford as places wherein she had pursued her romantic avocation. Mrs. Gross asks the courts for damages in the sum of $5,000 each from the Courier and Tele graph of this city, the Dispatch, of Erie ; the Telegram, of Elmira ; the Herald, of Syracuse, and the Reporter, of Wellsville, and $10,000 from the Police News, of New York. The latter published what proported to be a likeness of the young women. The contestants on both side: express confidence in the outcome of the proceedings.
