More About Mooney, Alias Hacket. Since our publication of the circumstances under which Thomas Mooney, alias Hacket, got from the Children's Home the little girl, Ida Bomberger, the following facts have come to light concerning the crooked ways of the abductor. Mooney was a member of Company " A, 79th regiment Pa. vols., having joined it near the close of the war. Lieut. Huff-nagle, who commanded the company at that time, describes him as a rascal, a deserter, and a bounty jumper. He says that he came to him after the regiment was mustered out of service and wanted him to use his influence and sign some papers to get him some back pay which he claimed, but Lieut. Huffnagle refused to have anything to do with him. He afterwards, through misrepresentations, induced Col. Hambright to intercede for

Mrs. Cox, one of the lady managers of the Children's Home, went to Reading on Saturday last to see Mooney's mother-inwhile afterspring to kill a rat, is slowly law, Mrs Guyer, who lives in that city. She gives Mooney alias Hacket, a very bad name. She says that some years ago after having married her daughter, he lived in Brooklyn, N. Y. He visited Reading and asked Mrs. Guyer, who is a widow, whether she would not like to go Brooklyn and live with her daughter. She was delighted with an opportunity of services at 7:30 p m. The Rev. Frederick being near her daughter, and so she packed up her furniture, which she had insured for $800, and shipped it to Hacket's home in Brook yn. After remaining in Brooklyn six or eight months, Hacket from here to Drexel & Co., bankers in Said he was going to visit Reading Philadelphia, to day, to be forwarded by them to Germany for the relief of sufferers Mrs. Guyer whether she would not like to accompany him. She said she would like to go and see her Reading friends, and preparations were made for the journey. Hacket took her to New father's residence. A pleasant evening York, bought her a ticket to Reading, crossed the ferry to Jersey city, put her on the cars, and, instead of going along with her, bade her good bye, telling her she could get along without him. On her return to Brooklyn, Mrs. Guyer found that Harket had sold her furniture, pocketed the proceeds, and left for partunknown; and from that time on she heard nothing of him until she was in formed of the surreptitious mauner in which he got little Ida Bomberger from

THE STATE AGRICULTURAL REPORT.

A Whitewashing Report-Measures introduced in the Senate-'the House Pegging Away. special Disputch to the INTELLIGENCER.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 8.-The legislative joint committee appointed to inquire into the management of the Pennsylvania state college, has prepared its report. It sets forth that the accounts of the institution have been carefully inquired into, with a result creditable to it. Every dollar is vouched for and there has been no waste. The college has been managed in accord ance with the act of Congress, donating the land script worth $429,000. The committee reports that unless the Legislature curtail the scope of the eollege, whose endowment furd is inadequate to proper maintenance, an appropriation will be requested from the state to keep it in full operation. The committee suggests the sale of the eastern and western experimental farms, recommends the transfer of the money derived from the sale to the state treasury, the interest to be applied to an experimental station on the central experimental farm in Centre county. The testi-mony taken during the investigation makes 1,100 pages of manuscript.

In the Senate, In the Senate Mr. Laird submitted a report from the committee of appropriations that money cannot conditionally be appropriated by joint resolution, as has been customary, but that a bill is required. A bill was reported affirmatively, providing for investment of the surplus moneys in the sinking fund in state or United States bonds. The two million dollars in the sinking fund now earns nothing. cents. There was a long discussion on the bill to prevent the waste of lands in litigation, which was amended on third reading. The House resolution to investigate alleged cruelties at Dixmont hospital was concurred in, McNeill and Hart were appointed on the committee. The Senate resolution for the appointment of a com mittee to urge the retention of the navy yard at League Island, was adopted. Smith, Cox and Davies were appointed on the committee. The bill to regulate the practice of dentistry, protecting people from empiricism, was passed

The Senate passed finally the bill to abolish the office of delinquent tax collecmarket hair; prime, $606 25; fair to good, $5250.575; common, $46475.

A bill was also passed to revise the act to extend the time during which corporations may hold and convey the title to real esconveyed to the m in satisfaction of debts and now remaining in their hands unsold. The resolution instructing the Pennsylvania members of Congress to urge the Newlin Ladian policy was passed.

In the mouse. In the House, Senator Grady's non forfeitable insurance bill was reported with an amendment giving the companies as a defense fraud on the part of the insured. Burnitt, of Dauphin, introduced a bill to form a home for the relief and support of invalld and disabled teachers of the state on assessment. The House was largely occupied in debating the appropriation bills. The Philadelphia nouse of refuge appropriation was reduced from $85,000 to $70,000 and passed second
