J. K. SMILING'S CARD.
FRIENDS AND PATRONS—This may be the last chance to secure the greatest bargains in Heavy-weight WOOLENS ever offered in this city. Remember, I am going to close them out if possible this season. I have handled this class of goods for over 25 years. I am thoroughly familiar with the merits of all the leading makes of cloth in the market and do say I think the F. A. H. and Johnny Edmonds are superior in finish, more reliable in color and more durable than any cloth produced in the world. Remember, also, I am the only man in this town that has the SERVICE to take these fine, high priced goods. They can only be had in the larger cities at prices not less than $20 to $25 a suit. I am closing mine out at $10 a suit. I am having a great room in Tronings. I am offering Heavy-Weights from $20 to $25 a pair—make a note of this.
I have among my line the best English and French patterns that cannot be had in Philadelphia for less than $15 to $18 a pair.
Thanking the public for the kind patronage extended particularly since my great reduction in prices, I shall endeavor to give every satisfaction to my patrons. Being again able to attend to business, I will superintend every department of the trade personally and will guarantee to secure every one the greatest value for their money.
All my productions are warranted to be of superior CHARACTER AND TONE from any other house in the trade, having in my employ the best skilled workmen from the city. Unless entirely satisfactory to the customer I will not allow it to go out.

MEDICAL.
TAKE
Simmons' Liver Regulator
For Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Sick Headache, Chronic Diarrhoea, Jaundice, Impurity of the Blood, Fever and Ague, Malaria and all diseases caused by Derangement of Liver, Gallbladder and Kidneys.
SYMPTOMS OF A DISEASED LIVER.
Bad breath. Pain in the Side, sometimes the pain is felt under the Shoulder-blade, mistakes for Rheumatism; a general loss of appetite. Bowels generally costive, sometimes alternating with lax; the head is troubled with pain, is dull and heavy, with considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of leaving undone something which ought to be done. The face is dry, rough and flushed; face is sometimes an indicant, often mistaken for consumption; the patient complains of weariness and debility; nervous, easily startled; feet cold or burning; sometimes a prickling sensation of the skin exists; spirits are low and despondent, and although satisfied that exercise would be beneficial, yet one can hardly summon up fortitude to try it. In fact distress every remedy.
Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but each have occurred when but few of them exist. Yet examination after care has shown the Liver to have been exceedingly deranged.
It should be used by all persons, old and young, whenever any of the above symptoms appear.
Persons traveling or residing in Unhealthy Localities by taking a dose occasionally to keep the Liver in healthy action, will avoid all Malaria, Bilious attacks, Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Depression of Spirits, etc. It will likewise relieve a glass of wine, but is not a intoxicating beverage.
If you have eaten anything hard or digested, or feel heavy after meals, or sleepless at night, take a dose and you will be relieved.
Times and Doctors' Bills will be saved by always keeping the Regulator in the house.
For whatever the ailment may be, a thoroughly safe, purgative, alternative and tonic can never be out of place. The remedy is harmless and does not interfere with business or pleasure.
IT IS PURELY VEGETABLE.
And has all the power and efficacy of Calomel or Quinine, without any of the injurious after effects.
A Governor's Testimony.
Simmons' Liver Regulator has been in use in my family for some time, and I am satisfied it is a valuable addition to the medical science.
Governor of Alabama.
Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, of Ga., says: I have derived some benefit from the use of Simmons' Liver Regulator, and wish to give it a further trial.
"The only thing that never fails to relieve,"
—I have used many remedies for Dyspepsia, Liver Affection and Debility, but never have found any thing so beneficial as the celebrated Simmons' Liver Regulator. I sent from Minnesota to Georgia for it, and would send further for it, if I could. It would save me vises all who are similarly affected to give it a trial as it saves the only thing that never fails to relieve."
P. M. JANNETT, Minneapolis, Minn.
Dr. W. H. Mason says: From actual experience in the use of Simmons' Liver Regulator, in my practice, I have been and am satisfied to use and prescribe it as a purgative, medicine.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS.
To vigorously push a business, strength to study a profession, strength to regulate a household, strength to do a day's labor without physical pain. All this represents what is wanted, in the often heard expression, "Oh! I wish I had the strength!" If you are broken down have not energy, or feel as if life was hardly worth living, you can be relieved and restored to robust health and strength by taking Brown's Iron Bitters, which is a true tonic—a medicine universally recommended for all wasting diseases.
Dr. S. Fremont, St. Louis, Mo., writes: During the war I was injured in the stomach by a piece of a shell, and have suffered from it ever since. About four years ago it brought on paralysis, which kept me in bed six months, and has at times in the city and country. I suffered severely from indigestion, and for over two years could not eat solid food and for a large portion of the time was unable to retain even liquid nourishment. I tried Brown's Iron Bitters and now after taking two bottles I am able to get up and go around and am rapidly improving. C. Decker.
Brown's Iron Bitters is a complete and sure remedy for Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Malaria, Weakness and all diseases requiring a true, reliable, non-alcoholic tonic. It enriches the blood, gives new life to the muscles and tone to the nerves.

GHOST STORIES.
SPECTERS IN ALL LANGUAGES.
The Red Ghost of the Tuilleries—A Goblin in an English Dog Cart—The Man With the Red Neck Tie.
St. James' Gazette.
Are the contractors engaged in pulling down the burnt palace of the Tuilleries aware that they are also laying a ghost?
It is doubtful, for the legend of the Red Specter, who haunted, and may still haunt, the building is now almost forgotten. Yet it is not so long ago that the goblin, who showed himself on the eve of great disasters, was mentioned with bated breath, not only in the palace but by many of the inhabitants of the Louvre Quarter. There is no record to show when he first took up his lodging at the Tuilleries, but it is affirmed that he discovered his existence there most unmistakeably during the great revolutionary period. A few days before the terrible 10th of August, 1793—the story goes—Marie Antoinette's woman was sitting in the Salle des Gardes when they became suddenly aware of the presence of a small man clothed from crown to heel in scarlet who looked at them with such unearthly eyes that they were frozen with terror.
They rushed to the apartment of Madame de Bary and she, in her alarm, called the next apparition of the Red Man was in 1814, in the presence of the little king of Rome and his attendants; and the red figure was again seen, according to report, a little before the death of Louis XVIII.— This time in the Grand Salon. In 1830, however, such discredit was thrown upon the ghost's existence by the practical joking of some art students attached to Josselin's studio at the Louvre. Some of the Louvre apartments had been placed at the disposal of ruined emigrants who had settled in Paris, and a French painter, the Duchess d'Angoulême. Among these were two old maiden ladies and a knight of St. Louis, who were dining together one evening when their supreme astonishment at a "grand diable rouge" came down the chimney and snatching a chair from the table, disappeared with it by the way he came. The incident was reported to the duchess, who sought the presence of the king and with tears pouring down her face declared her conviction that some evil spirit was impeding the king's progress, and sent for a chimney sweeper. A boy who went up the chimney to look for the "diable rouge" did not return. A man was then sent up, but nothing more was seen or heard of him. The greatest excitement regarding the specter, and at length a discovery was made. The specter was the chimney sweep, who, in the night, sweeps the chimneys, but the specter was not to be bribed. A writer in one of the Paris papers who recalls this anecdote, relates in all seriousness the circumstances under which the specter of the Tuilleries first appeared in England. It was in 1871, during the last days of the commune.
The journalist had the story he says from the lips of the witness who trembled while he told it. He was a conterge at the Louvre, and while making his accustomed round one night, he entered a room, and saw the specter. He observed in the hands of Apollo a human form standing against a window, with crossed arms and drooping head, in an attitude of profound allegiance. Believing that he had surprised a robber, the conterge made towards the figure, who thereupon disappeared in a most mysterious fashion. He tried to persuade himself that his senses had deceived him, when on reaching the Grande Callee he saw the same figure again, in the same melancholy posture.
On being challenged, he forthwith disappeared. The journalist then remembered the legend of the Houme Rouge, and lost no time in regarding the street. Presently he returned with some of his comrades, to whom he had related what he had seen; but this time the search for the goblin was fruitless. He was, however, disappointed in his quest, but he had seen the specter in the chimney, and he had seen the specter in the sky. The Communists had begun their secondary work, and the next day the flames shot out of every window of the Tuilleries. It will be seen that the Red Specter who haunts the palace with such mysterious apparitions, was in fact the adjoining buildings of the Louvre. So it is doubtful if he will quit the precincts to which he is linked by so many associations, even when there is not a stone left to tell where the Tuilleries once stood.
A Ghostly Fellow Passenger.
The breed of ghosts appears to be not quite extinct in this country. Self-evidently, however, has one of those shadowy visitants the hardihood to expose itself to such unobstructed and point blank investigation as did the phantom which interrupted itself the other day in England to Mr. C.—G.—the son of the well-known Admiral C.—G.—One day at the beginning of this month Mr. C.—G.— was going to call on the Duke of R.—at B.—castle, and he probably did not trouble his head much about things happening when he found himself at a small railway town, some miles from his destination, with no vehicle to get him over the muddy country lanes in between.
After waiting round a bit, however, he succeeded in hiring a trap—a commonplace dog cart enough, with nothing glorious about it—and a horse that looked as if it would get a man's weight hanging to it in this life for a few weeks yet. Having turned out a horse and trap, however, the resources of the place were at an end. Not a man was to be found who could accompany him to look after the beast; so, having done a grumbling Mr. C.—G.—took the reins himself and started for B.—castle. Nor was there anything to suggest ghosts in the drive there; and the Duke of R.— was as real and fleshly as a well conducted duke ought to be. So far, then, the odds seemed all against a ghost finding room to back to himself. The stranger was C.—G.—however, had not half way back to the station he passed a pond by the roadside which he had not noticed on his way out. Turning round to look back at it, he was astonished to find there was another man on the trap, sitting back to back to himself. The stranger was to all appearances a farm laborer, dressed in ordinary and a red neck-cloth.
Mr. C.—G.—at once concluded that his companion had been sent after him by the innkeeper from whom he had hired the trap; but what puzzled him was low and white as stone farm laborer in his hatted boots could have climbed up without his feeling it. The shortest way to settle this was to ask him; but, unfortunately, the intruder paid no attention to the question, and seemed quite unconcerned at anything unusual when Mr.
C.—G.—shouted a common place in the weather at the top of his voice. Nothing remained, therefore, but to whip up the dilapidated horse and wile away the rest of the journey with cursing the innkeeper who could find no better man to send him than a deaf and dumb farm laborer. On arriving at the inn Mr. C.—G.—handed the reins back to the stranger and walked into the house. Meeting the landlord his first remark was naturally on the sort of man the other had seen fit to send after him.

"What man?" was the reply; "I sent no man after you."
"Surely you did," said Mr. C.—G.— "I saw a man in a country, with a red scarf around his neck."
"Good God, sir," returned the other,
"that man was drowned an hour ago, and is upstairs now!"
"Nonsense, He is in your trap now; come on!"
"However, he was not in the trap; that was empty. So Mr. C.—G.—followed the landlord upstairs, and there on a bed lay his companion of the dog cart—corpulent, red neck cloth and all—dead.
He had been found drowned half an hour before Mr. C.—G.—passed, in the very pond close by which he had taken his seat in the dog cart, and had apparently availed himself of the first passing vehicle to get a lift to the place where his body lay.
DRUMBO NEWS.
Our Regular Down Country Correspondence By some extremely bad governmental management we had no mail on our Lancaster & Port Deposit route last week, and to say that we were mad gives the state of our minds a feeble expression.
We had some very strong talk, emphasizing some very strong adjectives, of bringing the matter to the attention of everybody tell whom it should be, before a local squire in a suit for extraordinary damages, suffered by our old men by the INTELLIGENCER reaching them on Saturday instead of Wednesday; by our inability to get a single copy of statements of unpaid bills, and now he dared (they are always damned some way or other), and the whole week's supply thrown on them in a bunch; by our school teachers, lost by a broken teacher binding them to some awfully dear friend at Millersville; by our tobacco farmers who couldn't buy the "market," and accounts of big prices that others had received for the weed; by our lovers who could receive no six cent letters, three cent stamps, from the loved one over in the next township perhaps—who are the figures to estimate the damage thereof?
But we brought no suit, for we were afraid we might have to pay the costs and we are too poor for that.
Poor! Money was never scarcer, and we are not so proud, either; our poverty has passed that point, and so, all humbly we say it, we are poor. Our taxes we have bushes and bushels of wheat, but the price is too weak to draw it out; our stables are full, likely too full of cattle, and they receive the only tobacco, corn or pigs; and tobacco, wheat is too weak to draw it out, and the coal sales have been made, but the quantity would scarcely miss the little that has gone.
And the quality of our crop would touch a tobacco buyer's heart, if the fellow had such a thing. It is unsurpassed. To be sure, we had considerable tobacco damaged by the hail, but a great deal of that was left on the ground, and we cut but little of what was hoisted, we post that to loss account, and will sell it to make amends,
