MONDAY FVENING, FEB. 19, 1883, TRAGIC OCCURRENCES.

Fatai Affairs Reported from Various Quar-ters. An inventor of a rope fire escape, who refused to give his name, tried his appara-tus at the corner of Halstead and Madison streets and sustained fatal injuries. In Syracuse, N. Y., James Brown, col-ored, was found dead in a barn in the First ward. He was badly beaten a few nights ago by a man named Coony, and it is thought that death resulted from the injuries received. Mrs. Samuel Lewis, of Frenchtown, N. J., lies at the point of death, the result of an attempt on her part to commit suicide by cutting her throat. She was suffering from temporary insanity. A trestle bridge at Raccoon, on the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia railroad fell in with the southward bound freight train, Charles Walker, a colored brake-man, and R. Tiddwell, an engineer, were killed, and Carl Kemp and John Cox. passengers were seriously hurt.

Oscar Richardson, an insane patient a the Brattleboro, Vt., asylum, turned the hot water faucet in the bath room and sat in the hot water until he was fatally scalded. He died during the night, Henry Mullet, an old man of Rutherford

N. C., having quarreled with his son, wen to his house armed with a shotgun. Find ing it closed, he burst in the door with threats and curses, but as he entered the door the son fired and the father fell dead. In Pricetown, Colusa county, Cal., Dr. A. J.Glenn, the largest wheat raiser of the state, who ran for governor on the Demo cratic ticket in 1879 was shot on his ranch at Jacinto, by H. Miller, his bookkeeper.

The doctor is said to be dying.

A sad story comes from Deer island N.B. A brother, on visiting his sister, who lived in a somewhat out-of-the way place, on entering the house found four children lying dead from diphtheria, and the mother lying ill in bed with a new-born babe. William Murphy has surrendered himself at Uniontown, alleging that he murdered a Hungarian in Luzerne county, in September last. Chief of Police Grim, of Witkesbarre, will arrive in Uniontown in a few days to identify him.

When engine No. 7 of a freight train on the Genesee Valley Canal railroad, ran upon the bridge at Allen's creek, near Scottsville, it plunged into the creek. The fireman, Charles Hanna, was killed, and Henry Fuller, the engineer, had his arm broken and foot crushed. The body of the fireman was recovered. The piers of the bridge had been washed out by the ice and water.

It is now supposed that the steamer re-ported as wrecked near Swansea, on January 27, was the James Gray, on a voyage from Cardiff to the Cape Verde Islands, with a cargo of coal, and thence to Phila delphia in ballast, as a body, recognized as the Captain of the Gray; and the body of a little girl, believed to be that of his daughter, were recovered on February 1, near Portheaw!. It is also probable that her entire crew of twenty five hands have been lost.

James Ross and his son, living on Broad river, Rutherford county, South Carolina, got into a dispute over a trade of two oxen. The father threatened to kill his son at 12 o'clock, but failed to meet him. o'clock the son, armed with a butcher knife, met his father and attacked him. He cut his throat in two places and stabbed him seven times, killing him instantly. The son was arrested and is now in jail. Mrs. Brown, aged 50, wife of William H. Brown, a well-known citizen, left her home in Meadville, saying she would return in a few minutes. As she did not return promptly her family and friends became alarmed and began searching for her. She had been in delicate health for some time and it was feared she had committed suicide. Search was continued all night and next morning her body was recovered in a mill-pond near her home, where she had fallen or thrown herself,

"PAT" THE AVENCER. A Man Who Kitled Five of the Philadelphia Troops in 1877 Dangerously Wounded.

Pittsburgh Dispatch to the Press. William Phillips is lying in a critical condition, from an ugly wound inflicted with a poker in the hands of a man named Henry Young, with whom he got into an altercation some days ago. Phillips is better known as "Pat, the Avenger," from the prominent part supposed to have been taken by him in the great railroad riots in Pittsburgh in 1877. At that time it was said that a brother of his had been killed by the Philadelphia troops when they had fired the fatal volley at Twenty-eighth street crossing, killing some forty or fifty people. The troops afterward fled to the round house, where they remained until morning, when they made their escape from the mob and marched out to the arsenal, but, being refused admission there, they continued

on the march to Blairville. From the time they left the round house until they got several miles from the city, they were followed by a large crowd, among them a man supposed to be Phillips, who carried a rifle, and at every opportunity picked off a soldier, killing five between Twenty eighth street and the Allegheny cemetery. As the story went, the man, when he found his brother had been killed, registered a terrible oath of vengeance, and that he kept his oath the number of dead along the street fully testified. Phillips was arrested and sur-"Pat the Avenger," but at the trial no person was able to identify him as the party who had done the shooting, and he was released.

Shotguns at a Wedding.

A special from Tracy City, Tenn., gives an account of terrible excitement, growing out of a shooting affray at wedding on Saturday night. The trouble arose between Joseph Berry, the groom, and Wm. Iller, father of the bride. father had objected to the match, and on that account the ceremony was performed at the groom's house. It was hardly begun when the father appeared on the scene, and he and the groom exchanged four shots. Iller was wounded and driven from the house amid immense excitement, and the wedding ceremony was afterward performed in the presence of the groom's
