DRUMORE DOINGS.

Reported by Our Regular Fairfield Corres-dondent Our orange tree has bloomed again. Last Thursday morning Miss Ida M. Neel, daughter of Mr. Thomas R. Neel, of Ful-ton township, was made Mrs. Frank Maxwell, the happy groom being one of Drumore's lucky sons. The ceremony was performed in the most approved Presbyterian style by Rev. Mr. Turner, pastor of Little Britain church. Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell will take up their abode in the fine new house Mr. Maxwell has almost completed, near Unicorn. The well wishes of the many friends of the made-one couple is certainly no unimportant factor in the sum of their happiness.

Estray in Maryland. Two of our old batchelors-not too old -in a recent visit to Harford county, Md., were unfortunate enough to lose their way, but were set aright (after they had slept it off pretty well) by their obliging landlord. The friends of the estrays were somewhat concerned about them, but they turned up in due time, like the sheep in the nursery rhyme, apparently no worse for the change of pasturage. Harford county is to have local option soon, and probably our obliging friends desire to re duce the stock on the landlord's hands. A Big Shoe.

One of the attractive features at the fair at Chestnut Level this week, is a mammoth shoe, made by Mr. Cooper Peters. It is made of red sheep skin, and is two feet, four inches long, and nine inches wide on the sole. It is to be inhabited by the genuine old woman who lived in a shoe, who will have all her children with her, any and all of which she will offer for sale. After the troublesome family is disposed of, no doubt the shoe will be donated to the paster or some one of his congregation. The magnitude of the pedal extremities of a number of the congregation can be best judged by the power with which they put their feet down on things they dislike. Whom the d hoe fits put it on.

A Literary Society. The lads and lassies of Fulton, Britain and Colerain townships have organized themselves into a literary social society, for the purpose of intellectual culture and the advancement of the kingdoms of literature and matrimony. Their meetings are held at homes of the members. A very entertaining one was held last Satur day evening at the residence of Thos. R. Neil. Mr. Lew Wright officiated as president, Miss Mazie Fairlamb as secre tary. The former read a selection entitled, "Zeke Spalding's Bridal tour;" the latter, a biographical sketch of Napoleon the First; Miss Hannah Morgan read "The World for Sale," and Frank Patter-son, a sketch of Washington Irving. The sentiments were good, and the meeting a success in all its three specialties.

Little Locals. The lecture of Col. A. Frank Seltzer, at Liberty Square hall, last Thursday evening was not a financial success. Miss Florence Gryder, blind daughter of Dr. Gryder, of Oxford, was buried at Chestnut Level, Tuesday. When the snow left the fields last Satur day, the wheat looked very well,
