The following statement of William J. Cough in, of Somerville, Mass., is so remarkable that we beg to ask for it the attention of our read ers. He says : "In the fall of 1876 I was taken with a violent bleeding of the lungs, followed by a severe cough. I soon began to lose my appetite and flesh. I was so weak at one time hat I could not leave my bed. In the summer of 1877 I was admitted to the City Hospital. While there the doctors said I had a hole in my left lung as big as a half-dollar. I expend ed over a hundred dollars in doctors and med icines. I was so far gone at one time a report went around that I was dead. I gave up hope but a triend told me of DR. WM. HALL'S L. P. Governor Cleveland's Courtesy. A letter-writer says that the easiness of ccess to Governor Cleveland has become proverbial, and has done no little in inreasing his popularity. While he bears himself with that personal dignity at once characteristic of the man and due to the office he holds, he is always affable and courteous. The governor maintains a modest establishment in the mansion pro vided for the chief executive of the state by the state. There is a story current, and probably true, that Governor Cleveland was strongly inclined to close the mansion during the term and assume quarters better fitted to his bachelor life. The life within the walls of the executive mansion is as quiet as is that of any private residence in that city. No liveried driver trolls a magnificent barouche through the of congressman. Lee, Cooper, Smith, Gordon, Stewart and Herr paid high tributes to Everhart. No action was taken good old days when the governor was good old days when the governor was simply a citizen singled out and chosen temporarily to administer the affairs of all the citizens, and who always kept in view the fact that his elevation was but for a short time and the day not far distant when he should take his place again in the common ranks of his fellow citizens.
