of old pastures. fting the Common Cherry Tree It is not commonly known that the common black and red cherry, which are rewith other and the best varieties—that is, as easily grafted as cherries usually are, which every one knows who has tried it is more difficult to make grow than any other fruit. The scions, however, if not already cut, should be secured at once and before the buds swell, and the grafting should be done as early as possible. Many of these trees, which produce the poorest kind of fruit—in fact, are nearly all seed and skin-are worse than nothing to have upon one's premises, unless when very large to be cat down and sold for cabinet-making. These trees can all be top grafted and may be made to yield an abundance of excellent fruit. Only healthy trees should be selected for graft ing, and the scions should be in the best condition. Where the stocks in which the scions are to be inserted are large, the method to be adopted is that mentioned in another article in this column ; but where the stocks are small the usual mode of grafting should be pursued. We sug gest to our agricultural friends who have some of these trees upon their farms-and they are to be found upon nearly all of them of any size—to employ a good graf ter to do the work, and report to us the degree of success which may follow. Gratting Old Trees. In selecting old apple and pear trees for the purpose of grafting, care should be exercised to take only those that retain their foliage late in the autumn. This will insure the growing of the graft sufficiently long to firmly establish it and cause it to remain unaffected through the winter. In every instance that we have tried to raise fruit from grafts on old trees which shed their leaves early, we have failed. They would grow for a few years, bear a few specimens, and then die. In grafting old trees boughs six inches in diameter can be used. But such boughs only should be selected as have a smooth bark. Saw it at an angle so that all moisture will run off; split the bark down an inch and a-half; sharpen the graft from one side only; let the slant be the full length of the slit of the bark; raise the bark carefully and set the graft with the cut side next to the wood ; then tie up with a cotton string and wax so that neither air nor water can penetrate. The waxing should be examined in a few weeks to supply any defects, &c. Let an inch or two of bark remain, uninjured, between the grafts as they are set round the stump. When the stem is not over two inches in diameter, four grafts can be set by splitting down the stem the usual way twice. If all grow, and are too many, cut out the two less promising ones. With care, every apple or pear graft ought to grow, and never less than nine out of tep. Early Pointoes.

Besides commanding a high price, there are other considerations that come in to make the early crop of potatoes valuable. The early rose continues to be as good as the best, not only for the early but the late crop, and always fetch a remunerating price in the market. But there is this additional advantage in the early crop; it can be harvested and removed and the ground put in good order for fall crops. The best turnips we have ever known came out of a piece of ground first cleared of early potatoes. Indeed, we do not know of a more profitable arrangement of crops than to have turnips follow potatoes. The ground usually has to be pretty good for potatoes, but it is not essential that the manure be very much decayed. Some, indeed, contend that long strawy manure is all the better for a potato crop. The turnips, on the other hand, must have the manure very well decayed, in order to give its best results. Hence, after the potato has done with its fertilizer, there is enough left for the turnip to thrive upon. Wheat and rye also thrive very well on land which has been previ ously well manured for potatoes. In all these cases the early potato has a great advantage over the late one. They allow of a much earlier preparation of the ground for the subsequent crop.

There is still another advantage in au early potato. In this part of the country at least, the plant is subject to the attacks of the stem borer. They usually commence their ravages about the end of June. They bore out the whole centre pith of the stems, and before the end of July the plants are all dead, being dried up before the potato is matured. In such cases there is not often fifty bushels of potatoes to the acre, and of these half of them are too small to be saleable. By getting the potato early in the ground, and using varieties which mature early, the tubers are of pretty good size before the insects get to work, and thus there is a great gain. It seems to us we can almost do without any more late kinds. We say nothing here of the depredations of the beetle, as it has been so completely met and overthrown as hardly any longer to be considered as a serious injury to the crop, early or late.

The National Goard.

Doylestown Democrat. The state needs a good militia system, whose efficiency should be strengthened, instead of weakened. The militia are the safeguard of the country and an organized body in each state cannot be dispensed with. Ours has a little too much "fuss Ours has a little too much "fuss and feathers" about it, and there is a notable disregard of elementary instruction. If the Legislature wish to increase the efficiency of citizen soldiery, it should pass a law compelling the officers to give more attention to drills in the school of the soldier. Without this, it is as impossible to make soldiers as it is to teach children to read without their knowing the alphabet. Our militia system is ex pensive where it should not be. The amount asked for the expenses of the arsonals (we speak from memory, not asving the figures before us) is about $45,000, which we think too much. The annual expenses of the adjutant general's office is $18 000, of which clerk hire amounts to $12,000, in face of the fact that the law allows but three clerks. These are exceedingly well paid officials. The annual encampments are not what they should be. Instead of schools of instruction, where officers and men are brought down to hard work, they are made too much the occasion of parade and display.

The state should lease ground for these up, and there each brigade should enup, and there each brigade camp in turn. If we are to maintain a militia system, let us have a good one and at the least possible expense. A good one will not cost less than a poor one. As

Walnut Loaf Hair Mester

Walnut Leaf Hair Mesterer.

It is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water, and, as its name indicates, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from all dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner effect the health, which Sulphur, Sugar of Lead and Nitrate of biliver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown.
