SIGNIFICANT SPRING.

A Dissertation upon its advent, and its effect upon mankind.

The green leaf of the new come Spring," Shak Everybody recognizes spring, when it is once upon us, but many persons are not familiar with the exact date of its appearance Webster, the world-renowned lexicographer gives us a definition, which may not be inappropriate here. "Spring," says he "is the season of the year when plants begin to vege tate and rise; the vernal season, comprehend ing the months of March, April and May, in the middle latitudes north of the equator."

I have just received a large assortment of medium weight suiting for the EARLY SPRING Thomson, in his "Seasons," and Shakspear Also, a Choice Stock of SPRING OVERfreighted with malaria, "that insidious foe, farking unseen in the very air we breathe." Kidney-Wort, as a Spring Medicine.

When you begin to lose appetite.-have a eadache, a pain in your side, back, and shoulders;-to toss about at night in restless dreams;—wake in the morning with a foul mouth and furred tongue;—feel disinclined to go about your work, heavy in body and oppressed in mind;—have a fit of the blues; when your urine gets scanty or high-colored; —to suffer with constipation. diarrhea; or indigestion ;-have a pasty, sallow face, dull eyes, and a biotched skin ,-one or all of these common complaints will certainly be evidences that your liver is disordered, torpid, or perhaps diseased. A bottle of Kidney-Wort is, under such circumstances, a price less boon to such a person.

Bare assertions of proprietors have come to possess less force than they frequently merit. The cause of this condition of popular skep ticism is, in the main, to be found in the fac that charlatanism covers our broad land. Meritorious articles are too frequently found in bad company.

The proprietors of Kidney-Wort always rove all their assertions, touching the ments of their preparations. When we affirm, there fore, that Kidney-Wort is a specific for just such disorders as have been mentioned in this article, the proof, too, belongs to and shall, follow this statement.

A Physicians Experience

Dr. R. K. Clark, a regular physician of extensive practice in Grand Isle County, and s worthy deacon of the Congregational Church, at South Hero, Vt., has used Kidney-Wort for several years in his practice, and before the present proprietors purchased an interest in it, he had given his unplaced opinion in its favor. This opinion has not changed. " It has done better than any other remedy I have ever used," says the Doctor, and, further on he writes: "I do not recollect an instance where the patient to whom I have given it has falled to receive benefit from its use, and in some severe cases most decidedly so." a playful custom of visiting rival estab-lishments and "cobbing" everybody they can lay hands on. This jolly sport con-sists of catching some unlucky fellow by the arms and feet and bumping him three can lay hands on. This jolly sport consists of catching some unlucky fellow by the arms and feet and bumping him three times against a doorpost or anything else that's hard and convenient. Sometimes an impromptu buttress is formed by foreing another shucker down on his knees and hands. Recently a gang of colored shuckers from E. B. Mallory & Co.'s got through their work early and made a raid on the white shuckers at Ludington & Co.'s. They rushed into the house with a whoop and began cobbing right and left. whoop and began cobbing right and left.
The fun was furious, and was uninterrupted until they took hold of Frank Carish, who resisted and showed fight. Then Frank's big brother Michael stepped forward and interfered. The result was that Michael and one of the colored shuckers, John Mitchell, had a row and Mitchell was arrested. The case was tried in the criminal cour yesterday. Mr. Harris Chilton was counsel for Mitchell, and Mr. Campbell for the state. The jury was composed of ten white men and two colored. One of the latter was a dark, cignified man, who looked as though he might be a class leader. The other was lighter in color, and so far as proportions are concerned, somewhat resembles Vice President David Davis. He seemed to appreciate the dignity of his position and smiled good humoredly. Both the colored jurors took a lively interest in the trial, especially when Mr. Chilton called special attention to them by asking the witnesses to speak loud enough for them to hear. The evidence for the prosecution was that Mit-chell had assaulted Carish and bit him over the head with a shovel, knocking him down and injuring him so badly that he was in bed for several weeks. The colored jurors shook their heads at this information and frowned severely. Then came the evidence for the defense, showing that the cobbing was all a joke, and that Carish had really begun the assault by charging upon Mitchell with an uplifted hammer. Mitchell, it is stated, had acted only in self defence. The frowns disap peared from the faces of the colored jurors immediately. They smiled and nodded their heads knowingly at the other jurors. The white jurors also smiled, and a verdict of not guilty was quickly rendered.

CAPT. EADS VERY ANGRY.

He Resigns His Place on the Mississipp River Commission. The Mississippi river commission, in New Orleans from an inspection of the works below Cairo, held a meeting on board their steam boat, the Mississippi lying at the head of Lafayette street, at which Captain Eads was present. He had not been with the commission on nanecting tour but remained at the jetties. The chief topic of discussion was the alleged danger of the diversion of the waters of the Mississippi from the present channel into the Atchafalaya and the best means of meeting such a threatened calamity. Capt. Eads held that the city of New Orleans was in great danger from the river seeking this outlet to the gulf, leaving it on the banks of a dead lagoon. He found the cloying of the Atchafalaya outlet a solid wall, the effect of which, he said, would be to increase the velocity of the current and its ability to scour out the channel through his jetties to the sea. He offered a resolution for the clearing of the Atchafalaya. In this he met with no second, the other members being content to place a sill across the of the river to shoal its drain eighteen feet and prevent further irruption. The plans of the surveys of Major Stickney were examined and fully discussed, and they aided in strengthening the conviction of the majority that there was no danger of the supposed division of the Mississippi through the Atchafalya, that is, within the next few hundred years. The reso lution was finally put to a vote, however, but all voted against it except its author. The meeting then closed. The boat was ordered to return up the river. The commission dispersed to their homes. Capt. Eads exhibited considerable temper and told the commission he would no longer

On Monday last, says the Japan Weekly Mail, the marriage of Miss Inouye and Mr. Katsunoske Inouye was celebrated at the official residence of His Excellency Inouye minister for foreign affairs. The ceremony was conducted in Japanese fashion, an attended only by the near relatives and intimate friends of the family. The wed ding presents were displayed in an upstairs room, and of course attracted much attention. With few exceptions the Japanese gifts, though costly and attractive, were intended to express a sentiment rather than to serve any useful purpose. Most prominent was a mountain formed of rolls of floss silk, white and crimson. Each roll was bound with strands of parti colored twine, the ends not brought round into a bow, as is usually the case, but tied in hard knots, emblematic of the indis solubility of the marriage tie. The floss silk was intended to typify gentle yet en-during constancy, the strength of its skeins offering a noted contrast to their softness and flexibility. Round the base of this mountain were disposed a number of ornaments of fresh rice straw, plaited into the forms of the storks and tortoises, of longevity, or the pine, bamboo and plum, of perpetual bloom, while into the loops of the plaits were thrust pieces of dried bonito, a favorite accompaniment of wedding presents, its name (katsuwo-boshi) being a homonyme for the three Chinese characters signifying victorious, manly and brave.

beets and agree to sell them to the com-pany for a term of years. The agent stated if the farmers would raise the beets the company would expend about $250,000 in the erection of buildings and machinery that are necessary for the successful man ufacture of sugar and molasses from the sugar beet. The farmers interviewed look favorably upon the project, and the council offer to exempt the company from all borough taxes for a period of twenty years.
