TRIAL BY JURY.

A DEFENSE OF THE SYSTEM.

Case from Baltimore.

The acquittal of Dukes for the killing of Nutt has created a profound sensation not only in Pennsylvania, but throughout the whole country. Our jury system is now held up as a tailure, and there is a general clamor for its abolition or reform, The acquittal of Dukes furnishes no just cause for this sudden outburst against one of the Memphis Appeal.

A FEW WORDS ABOUT PAINT,

In painting a building the most important consideration is to select the very best Paints, by doing so you avoid the expense of repainting before the proper time for repainting occurs. And as the paint costs less than the putting on, what you most want to save is labor. The best paints cannot be prepared by hand mixing so that that they will prove durable and cover as great a quantity of surface as the best paints which are produced by thoroughly experienced and practical paint makers, with the aid of complete machinery. We have been selling WADSWORTH, MARTINEZ & LONGMAN'S PAINTS for two years and the reports received from all our customers justify us in offering to furnish our pure paints FREE of COST to any buyer who having painted his building with our paints can demonstrate that our paint has not cost 10 per cent less for paint used than cost would have been for either pure White Lead and Linseed Oil, or any other mixed paint in the country. We only ask you to give it a test great bulwarks erected by sagacious patriots and statesmen for the protection of the rights and liberties of the citizens. After writing a hostile and threatening letter, Nutt entered the private bed room of Dukes, heavily armed, and indicated a determination to execute his threat. Dukes had abundant cause to believe that his life was in imminent peril, and impelled by the first law of nature—self-defense—he killed the man who had in truded himself upon his castle. But the people of Pennsylvania cannot sever the murder from the cause that provoked it. The letters of Dukes were cruel and brutal. Nuit was goaded to desperation, but the law does not recognize murder as the remedy for infamous letters. Dukes was not on trial for writing scandalous letters to a father, detailing the shame of his daughter. He was tried for killing a man who had rushed into his room determined to execute previous threats. To save his own life he was constrained to kill the armed enemy that confronted him. This was the opinion of the jury, and it rendered a verdict of not guilty, as juries under similar circumstances have always done and always will do. But the mobin Penn sylvania is still hounding down every man that composed the jury who would not con viet the author for writing infamous let-And has all the power and efficacy of Calomel or Quinine, without any of the injurious after ters when he was on trial for murdering a man about to take his own life. There is nothing in this case to justify the popular demand for abolishing the jury system. Sir William Blackstone, to whose opinious on all legal questions the greatest jurists still defer, speaks of trial by jury as the palladium of the liberties of England, which should remain sacred and inviolate, not only from all open attacks, but from all attempts to undermine it by substituting for it new and arbitrary modes; "for," says he, "however cautious these may be at first, yet let it be remem bered that delays, and little inconvenien-ces in the forms of justice, are the price that all free nations must pay for their liberty in more substantial matters." are, no doubt, more indebted to trial by jury for our property, our character, our safety, our society, our civilization and our liberty, than to any other single institution in the country, and the fanatical clamor about the acquittal of Dukes-for not sending him to the penitentiary for writing infamous letters when he was on trial for murder-will not in duce the American people to abolish a system which has so long been the freeman's refuge. We have more faith in the verdict of twelve men, acting under the sanctity of au oath and made familiar with the law and facts, than the surging mob, influenced by prejudice and led by outlaws, who prefer the rule of the mob to law and order. Almost every day develops facts which show the wisdom of our jury system, and the evils that will follow if it is to be substituted by the rule of the infuriated mob. Both are illustrated in a very curious case which was termin ated in Baltimore on Thursday last. In January, a year ago, a woman by the name of Elizabeth E. Gensler came to New York from England and charged Henry Herman, a wealthy furniture manufacturer of that city, with having married with severe inflammation of the kidneys, and it became so bad that at times I urinated blood, and my sufferings were intense. My condition was so painful that for and abandoned her in England. Herman had just married a New York lady, awhile I was scarcely able to attend to bustness, and the severe pains would come so sud denly and severely that I would be obliged to and the charge was not only embarrassing leave a customer whom I might happen to be but promised to land him in the penitenwaiting upon. During a part of the time I tiary for bigamy. He was tried on the charge of bigamy, and only secured a verdict of acquittal after he had presented was unable to walk, and scarcely knew what to do or which way to look for relief. At this time a friend recommended Hunt's Remedy. I took two bottles of it, and it took right hold such evidence as left no doubt that the woman had made a mistake. At the conof my disease and cured me very speedily, clusion of the trial, the judge remarked and I have experienced no trouble with my kidneys since. "Furthermore, Hunt's Remedy has strength ened me very much, and since I began to use it I have been able to attend to business, and that if he had been a poor man he would probably have been sent to state prison. The sympathy of the mob was against Herman just as it was against Dukes. Herman was insulted, called a bigamist, a wretch who had basely wronged and be trayed a good woman. His acquittal did not silence the scandal. Indeed, it was as injurious to him as conviction, for the facts revealed at the trial satisfied the mob that he was guilty not only of bigamy but the additional crime of bribing the jury. Scorn and contumely were his only salutations in the community where he had formerly been greeted with nothing but friends and fortune Conscious of his own innocence, and with faith in the ultimate triumph of truth, he resolved to vindicate his name, and to restore himself in the confidence of friends and in the affections of his family, even if it cost him his en tire fortune, which had no value to him so ong as he was an outcast. With this door; but I was in the doctor's hands and of w, Herman employed detectives to bunt up the husband of the woman that he hal so cruelly wronged and disgraced him. A few weeks ago the detectives discovered that there was a John Gensler in Baltimore, foreman of Charles Hodender & Sons' furniture factory. The men in the employ of Herman carried Mrs. Gensier to Baltimore, where she was confronted by Michiganders. The world is indebted to you and I hope you may not go without your rethe man of her own name. On his part, Gensler said he was acquainted with the woman, and that he had once lived with her in London for about three years. It is said that Herman spent $12,000 in demoastrat ing his innocence. This case furnishes a powerful vindication of the jury system, and a strong condemnation of the growing disposition of the masses to persecute every juryman who dares to render a verdict at variance with the views of the popular mob. Obedience to the law is the first duty of a good citizen, and all who engage in traducing and maltreating jurymen on account of their verdicts rendered in a court of justice and under the sanctity of an oath, are giving aid and comfort to the communists, to lawlessness, and to the return of the anarchy of the dark ages,

SHE WHIPPED HIM.

A French Woman Insulter Chastised by an American Heroine. Lucy H. Hooper's Paris Correspondence. I recently heard of an action on the part of a young American girl towards a French woman insulter, which has filled my soul with admiration and delight. The young lady in question, who is a refined, modest and high band young girl, is staying with some members of her family at one of the prominent hotels on the Avenue de l'Opera. As her dress and manners are alike unobtrusive, she has never hesitated to go out alone whenever business or inclination impelled her to do so. One would fancy that on that wide, brilliant avenue, in broad daylight, a quiet, modest young lady, in this city deemed the centre of the world's civilization, would be perfectly safe from annoy ance or molestation of any kind; such, however, was not the case. For a few weeks past whenever she ventured out alone, she was followed and accosted by a stylishly dressed individual, about forty five years old, wearing the red ribbon of the legion of honor in his button-hole. This personage would not only follow her, but would address her in language of the fulsome, complimentary style, would thrust his face under her bonnet, would go a few steps, in front of her, and would then look back and leer at her, and in fact he conducted himself in the manner that a well-bred Parisian gentleman usually considers proper to assume when he meets an unprotected young girl. This went on for some time to the infinite annoyance of the young lady. Her tormentor never made his appearance when her brother was with her, or when there was a policeman within hailing distance—on these occasions he kept discreetly out of the way. Finally, the other day, the affair came to a climax. The young lady was returning to her hotel about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, when her persecutor made his appearance and began tormenting her as usual. The hunted girl, worried, wearied, and exasperated, was at last wrought up to the highest pitch of indignation and nervous excitement. Chancing to pass a cab stand, by sudden impulse she snatched one of the drivers' whips from its socket, and turning on her tormentor she cut him sharply across the face with the lash. Being taken by surprise he started back and let fall his hat. As he stooped to pick it up she followed up her advantage, raining blow after blow on his head and shoulders, so stunning and bewildering him that he was some time in discovering his lost headgear, every moment of which she employed to the best advantage. At last, sulters of Paris has at last met with his deserts, and that at the hands of an American girl! I feel inclined to cry with the

PLAIN TRUTHS

The blood is the foundation of life, it circulates through every part of the body, and unless it is pure and rich, good health is impossible. If disease has entered the system the only sure and quick way to drive it out is to purify and enrich the blood.

These simple facts are well known, and the highest medical authorities agree that nothing but iron will restore the blood to its natural condition; and also that all the iron preparations hitherto made blacken the teeth, cause headache, and are otherwise injurious. Brown's Iron Bitters will thoroughly and quickly assimilate with the blood, purifying and strengthen-ing it, and thus drive disease from any part of the system, and it will not blacken the teeth, cause headache or constipation, and is positively not in-

Feb. 12, 1880, Gents:-Upon the recommen dation of a friend, I tried Brown's Iron Bitters as a tonic and restorative for my daughter, whom I was thoroughly convinced was wasting away with Consumption, Having lost three daughters by the terrible disease, under the care of eminent physicians, I was loth to believe that anything could arrest the progress of the disease, but, to my great surprise, before my daughter had taken one bottle of Brown's Iron Bitters, she began to mend and now is quite restored to former health. A fifth daughter began to show signs of Consumption, and when the physician was consulted he quickly said "Tonics were required:" and when informed that the elder sister was taking Brown's Iron Bitters, responded "that is a good tonic, take it."
