FRIDAY EVENING, APRIL 27, 1883.

A Wise Council.

The convention of Irishmen in Philadelphia has done a great deal for the cause it represents, in the harmonious strength with which it presents its grievances and the good judgment with which it seeks their redress.

We are glad to see the distinct separation of the dynamite Irishmen from the general mass of their countrymen, for to these we, with the most of their fellow citizens, would like to extend a hearty sympathy in their noble purpose to secure the freedom of their native land.

With the Rossa party of Irishmen consigned to the penitentiaries and galleys, which properly claim them, and the united Irish sentiment expressed by the patriotic men who show themselves seated in the council places of the Irish party, there is renewed hope for attainment of the just aims of the men who present Ireland as their chief.

Mr. Randolph Keim can hardly feel pleased with the way in which his appointment as examiner of the civil service commission has been received by those who know him.

Mr. Keim is permeated with a peculiarly strong persuasion that he is especially adapted to the work of securing good men for office and of obtaining office for good men.

The Erie Herald inclines to the opinion that our Rev. Weiselman is nothing if not unique.

The Altoona Tribune backs up the committee of forty-eight which is intended to reform that deformed municipality.

The Harrisburg Independent proposes to look to the general appropriation bill after it becomes a law for evidence of the fulfillment of reform pledges.

The Reading News wants to know what the Republican party of Pennsylvania ever did for the colored man.

The Altoona Times learns that John R. Packard, of Greenville, Mercer county, will not be a candidate for the Democratic nomination of state treasurer.

The Pittsburg Telegraph trusts that conservative Irish agitation can affect the moral forces in Great Britain that have been trying to give Ireland relief.

The Wilkesbarre Union-Leader is confident that with the shadows of Independence hall falling upon the men who are assembled in Philadelphia, it ought not to be very difficult for the honest Irish agitators to discover the best methods and the safest guides for future work.

There is but one newspaper of any pretensions to standing in the country which expresses the opinion that the new civil service reform commission makes sign of "beginning right."

As might have been expected from an assemblage of earnest men, gathered for a heroic purpose, the race characteristic of good humor surmounted the tendency to a free fight in the Philadelphia Irish convention.

TERRIBLE CALAMITIES.

MANY WORKMEN BURIED TO DEATH.

The Toronto-Minor-Factor Hands Shot Down—Minor Crimes and Casualties.

A fire occurred in Warsaw in a cabinet-maker's workshop. Sixteen of the workmen were unable to escape and were burned to death.

The steamship Valletta, which was wrecked on Blue and Scotia, had a cargo of potatoes and other produce. The vessel itself was valued at $35,000.

The rather untimely campaign for the appointment of county superintendent seems to have subsided since it became known that the state superintendent would give the subject that deliberation and careful consideration which it so eminently merits.

The state Senate has appointed next Thursday to consider the prohibition amendment.

The prohibition amendment before the Michigan House of Representatives failed to pass yesterday for want of a two thirds vote.

A New Jersey chancellor has dismissed the rule to show cause by the trustees of the Methodist Episcopal church at Moores town should not be attached for contempt in locking out the new pastor.

ENGLAND'S latest move is to depopulate Ireland by shipping the inhabitants to the northern parts of Canada.

At Fort Monroe yesterday, twelve "dummy" torpedoes were sent a distance of 14 miles under water and returned to the base of operations by endless cable.

THE NORRISTOWN TIMES notes the coming of the time when judicial oaths will lose their sanctity.

ROMANCE OF A BRIGADE.

A Once Prominent Philadelphian Who Died in a Wilderness.

The traveler from here to Rising Sun in the night, through the famous and fertile Chester county. The trip is made in a matter of hours.

Of the numerous objects to be seen in the barrens is an old log that stands alone of the highway, south of the state line.

During the Whig days Williams was a successful Philadelphia. He was located on Market street near Fifteenth.

He was surrounded by an affectionate family and many comforts. Through the years when Mayors Henry Van and others governed the city, Jesse Williams was a prominent politician and citizen.

FREE IRELAND.

The Big Irish Convention.

A Weighty Body's Deliberations—Twenty Hundred Delegates Assembled—Harmonious Deliberations—Good Temper Observed.

In the Irish convention in Philadelphia yesterday when it was reported that there were 1,138 delegates on the floor.

The reading of the message gave rise to protracted applause, and the president was instructed to have a fitting answer to it.

While the dynamite faction, headed by the irrepressible O'Donovan Rossa, did not make an uproar in the convention yesterday, it was not without effect.

The enduring good nature of Father Dorney, as temporary chairman, was remarkable. He began by winning over the house and putting it into good humor.

When he was calling out the names of delegates for whom letters or telegrams were received, he called out the name of Miles O'Brien.

It was some minutes before the delegates recovered from their laughter, then the jolly priest hoped that the other delegates were not offended.

There was much delay in selecting the committee on credentials, but it was touched up by coming forward and saying: "If the gentlemen will consult their watches they will see that it is about time to get some dinner."

Yes, sit down, gentlemen," said Father Dorney, solemnly, as he came from behind the desk.

The conference committee of the Amalgamated association and the iron manufacturers of the Pittsburgh district met again on Wednesday next.

A telegram has been received in Chicago announcing the shipment from London of seventeen cases of exhibits.

QUANT OF COMMON FLEAS.

A Case in Which a Will is the Post of a Plaintiff.

BEFORE JUDGE PATTERSON. Joel L. Lightner vs. Jacob D. Houser, guardian ad litem of Jacob Hartman, Emma K. Hartman, John M. Hartman, Minnie V. Hartman and Harry Hartman.

The plaintiff sued by Charles R. Fralley, who wrote the will, and Joseph Cramer and Simon Barr, the subscribing witnesses, that the paper executed on the above date was Hartman's last will and testament.

The defense then opened their case and called witnesses. Their allegation is that the will was made through the undue influence of the decedent's housekeeper.

An issue was granted in which George Johns is plaintiff and the city of Lancaster is defendant.

MUSICAL.

Minnie Minnie Mauk in Her Concert.

A charming Entertainment at Fulton Opera House—The Vocalists, Parted Strung, Her Fine Soprano.

The largest and most brilliant audience that has assembled in Fulton opera house this season greeted Minnie Mauk and her company last evening.

While it is reasonable to assert that a concert is not as satisfying as an operatic performance wherein the singing is supplemented by appropriate acting and scenery.
