REGULAR CORRESPONDENCE Events Along the Susquehanna-Items o Interest In and Around the Borough

Picked up by the Intelligencer Keporter. River chronicles are scarce. No boating no black bass fishing stories, no person nearly drowned and no picnics on Big or Cooper's islands. Nothing but shad catching and rafting. Stop, a little! A party is being organized to visit the fisheries below the dam. The doctor may fall overboard and get a wetting. He's always running into some trouble. Saturday evening's inclement weather prevented much promenading being done The " masher " and " dude " kept closely housed. A little water would wash them away. When they take a bath they doubtless hold a mosquito net over them and allow the water to trickle gently down upon them. Dainty creatures!

Religious News. The churches generally were well at tended yesterday. On Saturday afternoon a service for deaf mutes was held in St. Paul's P. E. church. The sign-language was used .- A young ladies sewing society has been organized in connection with Trinity Reformed church .- St. John's Lutheran church Women Working society will meet to merrow evening at Mrs. Benj. Local Organizations and Their Works. At Saturday evening's meeting of the Columbia fire company, it was resolved to begin the immediate erection of a hose tower, a place where the hose can be hung to dry after having been used. A very commendable thing for the company to do, as it will be the means of preserving their hose. It will be a frame building 70 feet high, and will have hung on its top the old town hall bell. It is expected that it will be finished by the Fourth of July. A new member of the Citizens' band, an E flat cornet player, by the way, was seen at his residence on Lancaster avenue yesterday, rigged up in full uniform and this borough, and Mrs. Lucas is still there. -The case was heard before Alderman Diffenderffer on Saturday morning and dismissed. Mr. Lucas paid the bill and denied having had any intention of defrauding the landlady.

The Annual May Walk.

Yesterday the Mænnerchor society took their annual May walk. Although it had rained heavily the night before it was very pleasant in the morning, and the sun shone bright and warm. A large number of the members of the society met at their hall at 6 o'clock in the moreing and walked to Knapp's villa, where they took breakfast and spent the day very pleasantly.

The Liederkranz, on account of the threatening appearance of the weather on Saturday night, postponed their walk until Mysterious Duappearance of the Bill to the Free Passage of the Brook-lyn Bridge.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 7.—Several hours before the adjournment of the Legislature on Friday last Senator Kierman, of Brooklyn, received a dispatch from President Kingley, of the Brooklyn bridge, urging the passage of the bill making the bridge free to pedestrians. The opponents of the measure agreed to have it considered at five o'clock, but the governor's message and the political discussion pestponed its consideration until 6:30 at which hour Senator Kiernan called the bill up, and it was then found that the bill had been mislaid or stolen, and it could not be found or replaced before the hour of final adjournment.

New York Sun " It costs a good deal of money to keep fasionable dog nowadays," said a clerk courage, the wild despair and the passion in an up town store where all sorts of ate supplication to heaven which made up fancy articles are sold. "Extremely fashionable women are following the Prench would have been also been as following the picture of that as of all other wrecks of a similar nature. French very closely in the elaborateness of outfits for their pets. Until a couple of years ago, all that any woman ever thought of putting on her dog was a collar of more or less elegance. We had collars of every sort in stock, from plain leather or metal bands to richly ornamented and expensive work. Clasp collars with family monograms er crests in gold were made to order. About the time that bangles were being made from coins we made a number of dog collars of gold and silver pieces. Russia leather and alligator leather reigned for, a while. These collars usually had gold bound edges. "But the dog shows of late years have created a craze among women for all sorts of ornaments for their dogs. You see, one woman would have a cocker spaniel or an Italian greyhound on exhibition in a velvet cage, and this would at once set all the other women who visited the show crazy over velvet cages. Another woman would have a jewelled collar on her dog, and all the women wanted jewelled collars at once. The fashion of blanketing pups spread-like wildfire at the dog show. All the best deigns were copied. Now there are richly embroidered lap rugs and fur raps for the dogs when they are taken out for a drive. These robes usually have a monogram or crest worked in the centre. The lates: thing, however, is the dog bracelet." The clerk exhibited a number of little bracelets of gold and silver. They are made to fit the left legs of dogs, and most of them are much smaller than finger on with miniature padlocks.

We do not remember ever to have seen the like on our round globe. The scene opened in the west with a whole horizon full of a golden interpenetrating lustre which colored the foliage and brightened every object into its own dyes. The colors grew deeper and richer, until the golden lustre was transfused into a storm cloud, full of finest lightning, which leaped in dazzling zigzags all over and around the city. The wind arose with fury, the slender shrubs and giant trees made obeisance to its majesty. Some even snapped before its force.
The strawberry beds and grass plats

As the rain came and the pools and the gutters hurried away, thunder roared grandly and the fire bells caught the excitement and rang with hearty chorus. The south and east received the copious showers, and the west all at once brightened up in a long, polished belt of azure, worthy of a Sicilian sky. "Presently a cloud appeared in the axure belt in the form of a castellated city. It became more vivid, revealing strange forms of peerless fanes and alabaster temples and glories rare and grand in this mundane sphere. It reminded us of Wadsworth's splendid verse in his "Ex

"The sun, wearied of the elemental commotion, sank behind the green plains of the west. The 'great eye in Heaven,' brow hanging over its departing light. The rich flush of unearthly light had passed and the rain had ceased, when the solemn church bells pealed, the laughter of children out and joyous after the storm is heard with the carol of birds, while the dark and purple weapons of the skies still darted illumination around the starling college, trying to rival its angels and leap into its dark windows." DEATH ON THE OCEAN.

Dreadful Pictures of Human Fortitude and London Telegraph. A terrible memorial of the recent dread-ful loss of the steamship Navarre was fished up a few days ago by a smack, whose people found in their trawl the bodies of a man and woman tied together, with their eyes bandaged. Probably the mysterious deep never yielded up a secret more shockingly suggestive than these corpses. Whether the man and woman were a married couple, or sweethearts, or brother and sister, we know not; but their bodies, fastened together in death, tell a moving story of devotion, just as their bandaged eyes convey a most pathetic picture of resolution and anguish. vertisements the murder of his father in law, Aaron Nichols, confessed his crime before the coroner's jury this morning.

He claimed that the deed was done in self defense and to protect himself and wife, Nichols' development from the form of his kind, telling how those who seemed of a shrinking and timid nature when all was well stood forth most noble and perfect types of heroes when danger was supreme; how the swaggerer, the bully, the tyrant proved an abject cur, casting himself down upon the deck in his terror, alter. nately praying and shricking in the agony of his fear; how some, unable to await the approach of the last moment, destroyed themselves, while others, with folded arms and contracted brows, stood motionless upon the sinking hull, going to their death like men lost in thought. One of the most pathetic stories in the language is the account of the loss of the Kent East Indiamen by fire in 1825, for the reason that a hundred particulars are introduced by the writer relating to the behavior of the people when all hope was abandoned, and death seemed inevitable. We read of the little children who, when the flames had mastered the ship, and all was uproar and horror on the deck, " continued to play as usual with their toys in bed, or to put the most innocent and unseasonable questions to those around them;" of a young military officer removing from his writing desk a lock of hair, and placing it in his bosom, that he might die with that sweet keepsake upon his heart ; of another writing a few lines to his father and enclosing it in a bottle, men visited the home of an old colored in the hope that it might eventually man, whose daughter lay dead, fired a load of shot into the dead girl, another reach its destination, with the view, as he stated, of relieving him from the long years of fruitless anxiety and suspense which our melancholy fate would awaken; of the older soldiers and sailors seating themselves over the fore batch under which was the magazine, so that they might be instantly destroyed when the his three year old boy to drink as much as powder caught fire; of cowards drinking themselves insensible or writhing in their terror upon the decks; of young girls praying calmly amid a kneeling crowd; WASHINGTON, May 7.-For the Middle their eyes on the setting sun, whose light Atlantic states, increasing cloudiness they never hoped to see again. of brave men standing collectively with ways and amid other seas! The last is not indeed, the worst, but it is among the worst. The Navarre is but one of scores of ships which have gone to their doom offering before they took the final plange, the most dreadful of all pictures of human anguish; but the sufferings she embodied seem to survive yet, even in her dead, when we hear of those two corpses tied together coming to the surface, with their eyes blindfolded, and when we endeavor to realize by those devoted silent witnesses from the bed of the ocean something of the terror and the resolution, the fear, the
