Frankford A report having reached the jail author ties here of the arrest in West Chester recently of a one eyed man accused of horse stealing, and suspected there of being an old offender, the local authorities were very naturally reminded of John Frankford, who with nine of his fellow convicts broke jail here on May 24, 1882, and who had heretofore evaded re-arrest, though several of his companions in escape have suffered recapture. Keeper Burkholder forwarded to West Chester a picture of telegram which assures him that a comcustody there satisfies the West Chester people that they have Frankford. account of the capture of the supposed caster. Frankford and of his depredations, all of which have a familiar appearance to those who know this old offender. It seems that Wm. Hemphill, a well known citizen of West Chester, a member, by the way, of the Democratic state committee, was in Philadelphia on Sunday and on returning home on the train which reaches there at 6:40 p. m. noticed a man occupying a work, including the missions and Sunday seat in the car who was minus an eye. The man inquired of the conductor the next but so unostentations that they seldom station before West Chester. On being informed he said he wished to get off there. The conductor told the man that his death the poor lose a friend whose place ticket was for West Chester, but he said will be hard to fill. Mrs. Evans' funeral he did not care to go that far and would get off at the station aforementioned. This conversation and the fact of the man having one eye led Mr. Hemphill to believe that this was the individual that had twice stolen the horse belonging to Messrs, Hoopes, Bro. & Thomas, Mr. Hemphill therefore watched him closely and on arriving in town sought Constable Frame and together they started towards Villa Maria seminary. The officer, however, struck the trail, and a short time after starting met the one-eyed individual walking toward West Chester. The officer as a pretence asked the man if he had seen two ladies walking out in that direction. The man replied that he had not met them and continued toward town 'On reaching Washington street he passed mar where Mr. Hemphill was standing, as that gentleman had witnessed the meeting between the officer and the stranger. At the corner of Washington and Walnut streets the man started to run. but on looking back and seeing that he was pursued, dropped into a walk. He then entered the lumber yard of Sharpless & Hall. At this point, Mr. Hyer, who has charge of P. R. R engines at that place, joined the officer and Mr. Hemphill in the earch. Each took different stands so that if the man attempted to escape he could be captured at almost any point. The man was seen to climb upon the gate in the yard, but on discovering that he was watched he changed his tactics and pretended to be arranging his cloth-Mr. Hemphill walked past near where the man was standing and returned to Constable Frame, to whom he gave his pistol and told the officer to wait until he went up town for assistance. Sheriff Hoopes was found and the party went in self under a pile of lumber. He refused to come out of his hiding place when ordered to do so by the officer. The officer thereupon threatened to shoot him if he did not surrender, which advice the man rest was then made "The man refused to be handcuffed, stating that he would walk along like a gentleman. He was then placed in prison, after which a search was made where the man had been hiding in the lumber yard, and a pistol was found which had apparently been dropped by the prisoner. On returning to the prison the man was searched, but nothing was found on his person execut a few silver dollars. It was thought that he had accomplices with him, but all efforts to find anyone else of a suspicious character proved of no avail. The officers are now satisfied that this is the man who had been stealing horses here and selling them in Philadelphia."

Since the arrest numerous parties who have recently lost property have visited West Chester to see if they could find any reason in the identifiation of the arrested man for be ieving that he was the thief. He is charged with stealing the grain, has and wagon of John Parke, of Parkesburg, early in February; with taking clover seed from Hemphill Bros., a borse and wagon from Hoopes' Bro. & Thomas; and other larcenies.

Robert Cummins, who is a hostler at the Turk's Head hotel, identified him as the man who came to that hotel and fed his horse the morning after the team was tolen at Parkesburg. Officer Young was confident that the man was the individual who drove through town with the clover seed from Parkesburg. Moses G. Hepbura was of the opinion that he was the same man who stopped at his hotel the morning after the robbery at Parkesburg, but could not swear posi tively as to the identification. The man who stopped at his place had whiskers, whilst the prisoner had but a moustache. He will have a hearing in West Chester on Thursday morning.

The Local News says: "The prisoner is an average sized man, with a defect in one eye. He had a heavy moustache, which is just as beavily dyed. When questioned about the recent robberies, he rays he knows nothing about the affairs whatever, and assumes an air of total in

CATTLE SPECULATIONS.

The farmers and drovers of this county, and others interested in live stock dealings, are having a good deal of talk over the alleged failure of Levi Sensenig to meet his contracts to take cattle said to have Mr. Knight's horse won easly in two heats been purchased from the raisers and feeders by his authorized agents. Last year The crowd on hand had plenty of money Sensenig, who is the largest and boldest operator in live steek in this market, secured the services of quite a number of well-known cattle buyers in the county to purchase cattle of the farmers for him, for which he paid them a commission of $1 per head. Cattle advanced beyond the figures at which they bought, and Sensonig made money. This year the same, and likely more, persons are said to have been retained by him, and they made large purchases through the county at prices which, in comparison with present market prices, are found to be very high and to involve the purchasers in loss. The number of cattle purchased by persons who claim to have been engaged by Sensenig is variously estimated at from 2,500 to 4,500, and of these a considerable number have already been delivered to him. But within the past few days it has been rumored that in view of the depres- May 18 to May 19th. sion in prices he would not accept the cattle or recognize the agency of those who bought them. This morning Edw. Yohn, the or recognize the agency of those who bought them. This morning Edw. Yohn, of Mountville, who is said to have bought nearly 1,000 head, of which not make up than half had been delivered to be the best one in the city by one who makes up silk from nearly every store in the city will be presented at the opera house by Newell & Scott's comedy company. Several more than half had been delivered, Newell & Scott's comedy company. Several came to town, and in a conference with Sensenig the latter refused to take from him the 400 or 500 yet standing in the county to Yohn's order. Eli Weaver, of East Earl, another of the buyers who has some 200 to be delivered seems to be uncertain as to what Sensenig will do in his case, but expects to have difficulty with him. With some of the other buyers he has compromised the difference but a number of law suits are threatened as the outcome of the matter The buyers generally declare that they must and will take the stock off the hands of the farmers and that they will look to Sensenig for indemnification from loss.

OBITUARY.

Death of Anna M. Evans. Mrs. Anna M. Evans, one of the oldest, most worthy and highly esteemed ladies of this city, died at her residence, No. 205 East King street, last night shortly after 10 o'clock, in the 90th year of her age. Mrs. Evans was a daughter of Michael Gundaker, and sister of Henry W. and Samuel E. Gundaker. In early life she married Robert Evans. who died many years ago, leaving a family of six children, all of whom survive, except one. They are Frankford and this morning received a John J. The Cook and the Cat. New York Sun.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has begun a criminal prosecution against Peter Duvernoy, a French cook attached to the Lotus club, for having out off the tail of a $100 cat with a cleaver. The cat appears to have been in the habit of coming into the club kitchen with predatory intent. On Friday, being fish day, there were mackerel in the kitchen. The cat came in and smelt of a mackerel. This displeased the cook, who drove her away and audibly threatened her with vengeance dire if she returned. On Saturday the cat again intruded, and in driving her out the cook struck a blow at her re treating form with his cleaver, which deprived her of a portion of her tail. If a man tries to steal from your water melon patch and you pepper him all over with small shot, people think you have done rather a smart thing. If you are traveling on Long Island Sound and carelessly kill an occupant of the same stateroom under the impression that he is a burglar it is a matter of no great consequence. But if you happen to hurt a cat that persistently makes raids upon your larder, the gravity of the offence cannot be overlooked by the officers of the law.

Many a man who has wounded or perhaps slain a fellow man walks the streets of New York scot free, but a cook who has made a cat bobtailed must go to prison.

Ravages of the Aphts. The aphis, a destructive insect, has within the past few days appeared in considerable numbers on the apple buds in Niagara county, N. Y., creating much uneasiness among nursery men and apple growers.
