FARMING AND FARM WORK.
Plenty of Room for All Corners.

Germantown Telegraph.

Undoubtedly the cultivation of the soil and the raising of flocks and herds may always be depended upon to furnish a living, and there is, therefore, no very great risk in the enterprise. In view of the overcrowded condition of all other pursuits this one may be safely relied on as an unfauling resource at all times.

Regions have been more rapidly settled than have been Illinois, Missouri, Kansas and Iowa, with farmers and stock raisers since 1860. Hence, the westward migration movement now again going on will again produce general activity. For this reason, the amount of money in active circulation, cause a large increase in railroad travel and freight, relieve the overburdened labor markets of the seaboard, and create new markets for capital and merchandise. The conditions are much more favorable to agricultural emigrants now than formerly, because the railroad charges have been so adjusted that produce can be profitably shipped or sold at the most remote and isolated points. Land is everywhere cheap and accessible, and railroads traverse immense regions.

Our country is so boundless that to talk of the public domain being all gobbled up, as do some pretentious writers, is the height of folly. There is wild land in all the states in such quantities that no one need want farm tracts in vain. And although the cry "go West" has long since grown stale and hackneyed, the West still remains a boundless wilderness—an immense ocean—in which the settlements resemble the Pacific islands. Maine, New Jersey and West Virginia alone would accommodate all the emigration for the next five years. Pennsylvania has been for fifty years a ceaseless fountain of emigration, and yet is herself admirably adapted to receive millions of new settlers. But whether emigration tends East or West, only let it keep out of the cities. There is not one in twenty who come hither who have the means to what we call "settle." They are either laborers or mechanics; but instead of making their homes in the new lands and growing with the country, they drop into the cities where they earn a very precarious living, and soon fall into the habits of idleness and drinking, and never make any headway. If they were to spread abroad even throughout the Middle States they would find abundant employment upon the farms. We venture to say to-day among farmers alone in these states a half million of farm hands could find plenty of work at much higher wages and with much better living than they ever received at home.

Enslilage again.
In regard to ensilage once more, there are beginning to be some distinct mutterings in opposition to its value, and these are being first heard in the New England states where this mode of preserving cattle food was first introduced. In one silo it is stated that the ensilage was "entirely spoiled, mouldy and rotten." This silo was constructed with great care; the fodder was cut with a $150 machine, and was pressed down with jack-screws, &c. On inquiry of the foreman of another farm he said that he did not feel heavily with ensilage, as fault was found with the milk as being "too thin." This man thought that the "life of the ensilage was in the grain and cotton seed fed in connection with it; that if a cow was fed on ensilage alone, without any grain whatever, she would soon be ruined. If he had his own way he would not again fill the silos. He also found the cost of ensilage a great objection." We notice several other unfavorable opinions. One farmer said he found that the less ensilage he fed the more bran and corn meal, the better his cattle fared! Of course it must be expected to have diverse opinions and reports on all questions so intimately touching the interests of this great industry. Still, as to our original assertions in regard to this mode of preserving green provender for cattle, to let those with long purses do the experimenting, and let others adopt or reject according to what the general result may be. We had grave doubts of it being settled on as a discovery of much value and a permanent feature in stock-feeding; but from the earnestness with which it was taken hold of, recommended, defended, and figured into great prominence, there was nothing for us to do but to watch the experiment, criticize the statements, and revise the statistics as much as possible with the view of ascertaining as nearly as circumstances permit the actual worth of ensilage as a leading ingredient in its relation to the farming interests of the country.

Tonic, alterative and cathartic; read advertisement of Simmons' Liver Regulator.

In Good Spirits.
The Walker, Cleveland, O., writes: "For the last twelve months I have suffered with indigestion and general debility, and now have recovered my appetite, my complexion has grown rosy, and I feel better altogether." Price 25 cents per bottle.

No Deception Used.
It is strange so many people will continue to suffer day after day with Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Constipation, Biliousness, and general debility, when they can procure at our store SIMMONS' VITALIZER, free of cost if it does not cure or relieve. Write for our circular to H. B. Cochran, 137 and 139 North Queen street, Lancaster, Pa.

Too Fastidious.
Some would be byrns look on with disgust at the rhymes of Feculent Oil "next" to the world. But we have the best article known to the world. And intend that all persons shall know it. It cures coughs, colds, asthma and catarrh, bronchitis and complaints of that kind. It does not cost much, though rhumatics it cures.

'Tis best Oil in the world you can find.
For sale by H. B. Cochran, druggist, 137 and 139 North Queen street.

MYERS & RATHFON.
A FEW SPECIALTIES—A few specialties with us this season are Spring Suits of Clothing for men at $8, $10, $12 and $14. We claim these suits to be excellent material, made exclusively by skilled Lancaster workmen and to be the cheapest and best suits in Lancaster market. Better lined, better made and better trimmed than most clothing sold elsewhere at $3 more per suit. These suits show just what they are and will be well worn out, as there is no artificial luster on the goods, but every piece is sponged before it is worked up into garments and it retains its finish until it is worn out. All clothing sold by agents of New York and Philadelphia wholesale clothing houses, and are purchased by retailers being compelled to pay a good profit to them, you can very readily see why Centre Hall can furnish clothing cheaper than a house compelled to buy in the East. Our prices are those of the manufacturer, prices less the price of middle men or agents. As a consequence they are such as will suit all desirous of purchasing good clothing at moderate prices. The samples sent out this spring with prices named are bringing us a great many purchasers and all go away delighted and fully convinced that Centre Hall is the place to buy clothing for men, youths, boys or children. In our custom department we are busy working up to our fullest capacity. Our stock is such as every taste can be supplied, and at such prices are within reach of everybody who is in want of a good suit of clothing made to order. We are getting in new styles every day, and what we are watching the market and the bargains offered, and we give the customers the advantage. Drop in, and at your leisure, and just see what a little amount of money will buy at Centre Hall.
