FEATURES OF THE STATE PRESS.

The York Age observes that the more the Republican harmonizers work, the more fresh cuts they make.

The Pittsburgh Leader suspects that the proposal to tax oil is a mere "pincher" on the Standard.

The Pittsburgh Post thinks that Mahone will be the crucial test of Arthur's civil service reform pretensions.

So far as the Centre Democrat can judge all of Secretary Africa's appointments are first class.

The Eastern Express re-echoes Theo. Tilton's famous demand of some years ago for a uniformity of divorce laws.

The West Chester Daily Republican is unreasonable enough to want a state not a state convention.

The Norristown Register warns the Legislature that it cannot afford to waste time.

Progress doubts if our newspaper men of to-day are as good general newspaper men as they were ten years ago; and the most of them are specialists.

The Erie Herald says that the project to establish an old soldiers' home in that city is a laudable one, approved by the local G. A. R.

The Harrisburg Independent thinks it notable that the demand for more judges comes from lawyers eligible for the place and not from the people.

The Wilkes-Barre Record honestly confesses that even a tax on coal would be right, since the Almighty has blessed Pennsylvania with almost a monopoly of it.

The Westmoreland Democrat declares that a residence of six months is required to vote at a borough election in Greensburg. Is the new constitution not big enough to cover Greensburg?

The Bradford Argus believes that they who advocate constant change, or favor keeping the tariff in the whirl of party politics, are the enemies of American manufacturers.

The Reading Herald hopes that the controversy among the theologians of that town as to which is the most efficacious in saving souls, faith or good works, will be decided in favor of good works.

The Reading News finds that the House, with four times as many members to debate bills, and four times as many names to call on a yeas and nays vote, must be credited with having surpassed the Senate in usefulness and efficiency.

The Carlisle Volunteer prints a diagram of the proposed Franklin Union congressional district, as the skeleton of an unknown monster, to be found in ages hereafter right under the seat of Senator McCracken in the state capital.

The Norristown Register avows that if Rome had had such free schools as Lower Providence township, Montgomery county, the ancient republic would never have fallen into the hands of such blood-thirsty fiends as Nero, Domitian, Caracalla, or Maximilian.

The York Age having been tripped up by the Daily for a typographical error reminds its esteemed contemporary that it recently referred to a case in which "Hill appeared for the defendant" and at another time referred to a four mile bore tax.

In response to an invitation to the Wilkes-Barre Record to keep up the Independent racket that genial journal says: "The Independent racket furnished amusement for one season, but the Democracy seem to get most of the hearty laugh. This year we are after fun for the Republicans."

The Norristown Times has often noticed that just in proportion as the active competition in our large iron shipbuilding establishments increases in the Delaware valley has there been a corresponding increase of orders for more vessels and a steady diminution of the cost of construction.

To the Moravian the most troublesome church member is the superstitious and morbidly self-conscious man who thinks so much of himself, and loves himself so inordinately well, as to apply every thoughtless remark, every word and deed that is at all capable of an unkind or unappreciative, or uncomplimentary interpretation, to himself. He is continually being offended, hurt, insulted.

We still have some features in common with Germany. Bismarck suffers with neuralgia amidst political defeats; an American statesman recently was affected with toothache under similar circumstances.

A GERMAN chemist has invented anaesthetic bullets, which when fired into the ranks at war will produce complete insensibility instantaneously. When nations agree to fight with such missiles even the dead will rush into the din and clash of arms.

At Germantown Saturday, with a quantity of miserable rats, a dozen dogs and a lot of degenerated spectators, several grand contests in a rat pit were enjoyed. The canines showed up well in their conflicts with the rodents, but when a venerable and vicious resident of the dark caverns of somebody's cellar got loose and scampered among the audience humanity showed its inferior bravery by a general stampede, and the warriors of the stuns, who face without flinching the formidable strength of Jersey lightning whisks and prize ring assaults, fled howling from the approach of the diminutive monster.

MR. GOULD, owning a handsome yacht, is presumed to be a sailor, and, having plenty of money, is supposed to be able to get anything he wants, which supposition seems to be fallacious. The latest thing he wanted, and failed to get, was a membership in the Eastern yacht club, at Boston. Upon his name being presented to the committee on membership, that discriminating body of aristocratic sailors promptly blackballed the great millionaire.

The rejection, however, is apparently more creditable to the committee than humiliating to Mr. Gould, since its action was prompted by a spirit of petty revenge for personal treatment, without the advancement of any other and perhaps sufficiently important reasons to exclude the ex-Wall street king from participating in the privileges and councils of the Boston nautical organization.

SOME alarm is occasioned for the safety of General Crook whose boldness in venturing, with not a very large number of followers, into the Sierra Madre mountains in pursuit of the Indians amounts almost to the same recklessness displayed by the dashing and unfortunate Custer.

Late advices report that the Apaches, the tribe which is causing the most of the troubles on the boundary line of the United States and Mexico, must have been disturbed in their fastnesses, since several small bands have come down to the plains from the mountains. General Crook is the best trained Indian fighter in our army, but the opportunities offered by the Sierra Madre for concealment and sudden incursions upon the troops by the red men are so advantageous that even the bravery and the caution which are necessary qualifications of a frontier leader, of General Crook may prove unavailing and disastrous. It is a poor return for the lives of such brilliant and efficient officers as Custer and others of little less ability that is secured in the capture or the death of a lot of savages.

"ONE THING AT A TIME."

The Governor and the "Times" Opposition. FOR THE INTELLIGENCER.

Colonel McClure, of the Philadelphia Times, so generally defends the right and rebukes the wrong in public affairs that I seldom find myself dissenting from his views.

But his recent utterances in reference to the action of Gov. Pattison about the recorder's office are so palpably unjust that, in common with most men of sound and unprejudiced mind, I feel constrained to take exception. Col. McClure admits that he wrote the letter which Governor Pattison authorized to be published. But he wished to have an effort made for the abolition of the office simultaneously with the nomination of some worthy man for its occupancy. Now, as to this, the old maxim holds good, "one thing at a time." Plainly, the first thing to do was to recommend some suitable man for the office, and that being acted upon, he could within a brief period afterward recommend the abolition of the office. Indeed it would have been inconsistent, if not absurd, to nominate a man for the office and at the same time recommend the abolition of the office. Two such contradictory recommendations could not possibly both be carried out and hence the governor conformed to the old and universally accepted maxim in such matters, "one thing at a time."

Now, the truth is, the governor did just what he ought to have done—just what Col. McClure, in writing, advised him to do, and just what the great mass of the people emphatically approve. And all this no man would know better than Col. McClure did he not look through anti-Cassidy spectacles. CATO.

BASE BALL. Where The Big Clubs Stand in the Three Leagues.

Never was there more interest taken in baseball than during the present season. In all cities where the professional clubs appear, crowds are present to witness the games and the season has been a great success financially. In the league the Providence is still ahead, although they were defeated on Saturday by the score of 7 to 5 by the Detroit, which club has developed considerable strength. The Chicago and Cleveland have been struggling for second place and who, up to Friday night, were tied. On Saturday the Clevelanders were defeated by the Philadelphia at the home of the former, who thought they had a sure thing and made their friends lose lots of money. The Chicago succeeded in "downing" the Boston's by the score of 4 to 1, and the New York team were defeated by the Buffalo to the tune of 7 to 4. It is by no means certain which club will be the winner of the championship, but Chicago people are keeping their money in their pockets on their own team, as the Providence nine is not composed of school boys.

In the American association the Athletic is still ahead, and the Louisville and Cincinnati were tied up to Saturday, when they engaged in a game which put the Cincinnati second by the score of 6 to 3. In Philadelphia 10,000 people cheered the Athletic and Allegheny clubs. The game was a brilliant one and the home team saved their necks by making six runs in the last inning on heavy batting, and won the game by the score of 11 to 8. The crowd was not large in St. Louis to see the home club wind up the Columbus by 4 to 0. In New York the Metropolitan defeated the Baltimore by the score of 2 to 1, and the game was good. The Athletics can suffer several defeats and still "get there" for the championship.

In the inter-state association the Merritts, of Camden, look like winners and stand at the head. On Saturday they defeated the Brooklyn by the fearful score of 16 to 0. The Harrisburg and Quicksteps of Wilmington are struggling for first place.

SHORT STOPS. The College Boys Victorious at Carlisle.

On Saturday the Franklin & Marshall college baseball club were victorious in the game at Carlisle with the Dickinson college club. The Lancaster nine arrived at Carlisle at 12:15 and after taking dinner at the Florence house, where they were entertained by the home club, they were driven to the fair grounds. A small admission fee was charged, and there was a large crowd present. The game was closely contested and at the end of the ninth inning each had nine runs. In the next inning the college boys secured four runs by terrific batting and the Dickinson boys got but one, making the score 14 to 11, in favor of Lancaster. The umpire was a Carlisle man and our boys complain of unfairness on his part. Otherwise they were highly pleased with their trip. The home club taking five cents of them. The score of the game by innings is:

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9
Dickinson..... 0 1 2 3 4 0 0 0 4-14
Lancaster..... 14 11 0 0 0 0 0 0 0-35

The college club returned home at 12:40 yesterday morning, and they expect the Dickinson club in this city to repeat the game shortly.

BULLIARDS. In New York on Saturday afternoon the tenth game of the billiard tournament was played and Vignaux, the Frenchman, defeated Carter. In the evening Schaeffer and Sexton played and although the former was the big odds he was defeated by his old antagonist.

JAY GOULD and his broker, W. E. Connor, were blackballed by the Eastern yacht club, of Boston, which elected George J. Gould, the millionaire's son, who at once sent a letter withdrawing from the club.

STORM-SWEPT STATES.

Many Lives Lost by a Tornado.

About 25 Killed and 100 Injured at Racine, Wis.—54 Deaths at Various Points in Illinois.

Further particulars of the great cyclone in Illinois and other Western states show it to have been one of the most terrible and destructive ever known. At Springfield it struck the ground on Elijah Hill's farm, south of the junction, and laid waste three square miles and many barns and outhouses. Mr. Hill's house, a large two-story brick, was entirely demolished. It was occupied by Mr. Booker, who was considerably injured. A male infant was nearly killed. Across the Wilson's house was swept away by the tornado, but no damage to life resulted. A quarter of a mile further to the northeast the home of Mrs. English was torn to pieces. Everything about the place was crushed and scattered by the falling timber, but there a hope of her recovery. Her two little sons, Joseph and Thomas, were only slightly injured. The hurricane struck the earth again four miles east of the city, where the little settlement of Round Prairie is situated, and played havoc with the lives and property of the farmers.

The first farm in the track of the storm was that of William Cottrell. It was occupied by himself, his wife and a hired man. They took refuge in the cellar and were blown down in safety, while the house, barn, outbuildings, fences and stock were destroyed or killed. The homes of William Nostrand, Mr. McVeigh, Henry Hughtell, Samuel Ashton, James Trotter, George Ray, Henry Turley, Henry Van Nostrand, and Annie and Annie were destroyed or injured. Mr. Farber, killed; Mrs. J. Van Nostrand, probably fatally; Misses Maggie and Annie, slightly; two daughters of Mr. Farber, Henry Hughtell, Benjamin McVeigh's son and Mrs. Trotter.

From Round Prairie the storm swept on to Dawson, nine miles north, but doing no serious damage, but that point was reached. Here a number of houses were torn down, and Mrs. Ferris was killed.

At Buffalo, another little hamlet, Mrs. Thomas Chandler was killed by the falling timbers of her home. The homes of Michael and Benjamin, near the same place, were blown away, but no other lives were lost.

Another storm is reported to have struck just east of Jacksonville, and to have pursued a northeasterly course twenty-two miles west of Springfield. It was reported to have done serious damage, and that eight persons were killed and injured. Full particulars are not as yet obtainable.

A train over the Galena division of the Northwestern railroad was caught by the fall of a tornado near Harvard, Ill.

Shortly before 9 o'clock a dark cloud was seen hanging over Chemung, a small village near Harvard. A roaring sound was heard, and suddenly the roof of the house was blown away, and the surrounding country was devastated.

Three houses in Shinn Hollow, near Grafon, belonging to Denny Shay, John McVeigh and Michael Garner, were totally wrecked. Mrs. Garner was killed. The house of a neighbor, was killed by being blown against a tree. The roof of the court house was blown off.

Morgan county experienced the most disastrous wind storm known in its history. On Greasy prairie, two miles south of the town of Porter, Story, Alexander, Gunn, William Blakeman, Thomas Kessler, Jesse Carrington and A. Warcup were destroyed, and one man, a boy and two children were killed, and others were injured. Southeast of the town, on the At Woodlawn, where there was a severe tornado, attended with fatal casualties, three years ago, the railroad depot was destroyed and cars were blown from the track into atoms, the track being partially torn up.

The worst of the tornado, however, was some nine miles north, on the Peoria branch of the Wabash railroad. The storm cloud was in the shape of a column and struck a part of the town called Litter and traveled north east completely across the Peoria branch, leveling four stores, two churches, the depot, a repair shop and thirteen dwellings, besides injuring others and destroying much other property. At Mrs. Griffin's home her three sons and one daughter were injured and another daughter, aged 22 years, was killed. She herself was in a dangerous condition from the shock to her system. Another ruined dwelling was that of her son, Dr. S. Griffin, who, with his wife, is at the city hospital, internally. His 7 months old daughter was killed. Another of the wounded is Mr. Hutchins, the village blacksmith, who was at Mrs. Griffin's home. J. Stevenson's house was destroyed, he had a leg broken and his wife was killed. Mr. and Mrs. John Trotter, an aged couple, lost their lives in their wrecked home. This makes the number of killed in the town five. There are fully fifteen persons injured, three of whom will probably die.

A wounded man was brought in from Woodlawn, where he was caught and killed by falling timbers of the scale house of Samuel Woods, whose barn was also destroyed.

Farther to the southeast, along the track of the storm, scattering farm-houses and barns were leveled to the ground. The storm extended as far south as Litchfield. Not far from that place a railroad bridge was swept away and a passenger train on the Indianapolis and St. Louis railroad plunged into a ravine. The engineer of the train was killed and the fireman scalded, probably fatally, but none of the passengers were hurt.

A Lunatic's Will. In Erie an interesting will contest is promised. A. J. Henderson, for some years a lunatic, died last Friday, and a will alleged to be his gives the bulk of his fortune of $200,000 to the mayor and Castle, Pa., for founding industrial homes for indigent boys. Only $5 is given to his only son and $100 to other relatives. The family state that another will was made before paralytic stroke disabled the testator, which no other will can be found. The family will fight it.

The meteorological conditions of the lake shore belt of western Lake Erie, and the storm were believed to be such that a disastrous cyclone was an impossibility, but the debris of wrecked houses and the scores of dead and dying which make it a city of mourning attest the fatality of the theory. The day, which has been notably quiet for the season, was ushered

DISASTROUS FIRES.

The Wide Ravages of the Flames.

In Forest, Village and City—A Remarkable Succession of Destructive Conflagrations.

Woodland fires were raging on Saturday at Twin Mountain, Jefferson, Warren and Summit, and on Mount Webster and Blueberry Mountain, in New Hampshire. Large numbers of men were trying to extinguish the flames. At Woodville, on Saturday, the steam saw mill of A. T. & E. Baldwin with 2,000,000 feet of lumber were burned; also, a station, warehouse, 500 cords of wood and two cars belonging to the Montpelier and Wells River railroad.

A fire started in the woods on Perry Mountain, N. H., Saturday, and destroyed a large quantity of timber. Jeremiah Ricker's steam saw mill and boarding house at Jefferson and Willoughby & Cole's coal kilns. None of the property is insured.

A forest fire started in the vicinity of Groton, Vt., yesterday. An immense tract has been burned and a large amount of property destroyed. The loss is estimated at $150,000.

Five destructive forest fires have been burning in the woods surrounding Yaphank, L. I., since the 10th inst.

Two incendiary fires were started at Catawauqua, Pa., on Friday morning, but were discovered before they had gained headway. This makes six fires at that place in that town within a short time, and it is said the chief burgess has received a letter threatening that the "whole town will be laid in ashes."

A fire in Nashua, New Hampshire, on Saturday afternoon destroyed a large quantity of wooden buildings, causing a loss of $30,000.

A fire in Courtwright, Ontario, on Saturday, destroyed Hughes' general store and several other buildings, causing a loss of $30,000.

The glass works of Morse & Gardine in Wallingford, Connecticut, were burned early yesterday morning. Loss, $5,000. Incendiarism is suspected. Nearly 50 persons are thrown out of employment.

A fire in New Hope, Kentucky, on Saturday night, destroyed a large quantity of property, including a saw mill, a grist mill, and nine cattle pens, causing a loss of $35,000.

The granite Methodist church at Hantsford, Quebec was burned on Saturday. Loss $60,000.

Pennsylvania Railroad Shops Burned.

A disastrous fire broke out on Saturday evening at the shops of the Pennsylvania railroad company, on the Hackensack meadows, midway between Jersey City and Newark. The fire resulted in the total destruction of the plant, upholstery and cabinet shops, all contained in a large masonry brick building, 100 by 175 feet. The fire was discovered breaking out of the roof of the cabinet shop by a watchman shortly before six o'clock. He at once gave the alarm and the few men about the place attacked the fire hose in a vain endeavor to extinguish it. The word was then telegraphed to Jersey City, but by some mistake at the central office the message was sent to the police department instead of to the fire headquarters. When the message was finally delivered engine companies No. 3 and 4, together with No. 5 and 6, and ladder companies were dispatched to the scene.

NEWS NOTES.

All Sorts from Various Quarters.

Nearly two acres of ground, near Haven Run, near Shenandoah, Pa., caved in on Saturday afternoon and passengers on the Lehigh valley railroad had to be rescued after a delay of three hours. It will be several days before the damage can be repaired.

The smallpox epidemic in Mercer and Wyoming counties, W. Va., continues without abatement. Being a divorcee, Mrs. Frances Marie Scoville, of Chicago, has given notice that she will file a petition in the courts for permission to assume the name of Frances Marie Howe. Her counsel says she wished to change her name on her own account and that of her daughter Bertha, who has a divorcee woman she could either retain her husband's name or take her maiden name. She desired to get rid of the name of Scoville, but of course, that of Guiteau was not desirable, and Bertha was very averse to it. Mrs. Scoville has a fine musical talent, and her mother's name, Howe and her daughter's name will remain unchanged for the present.

H. M. S. STANFORD. Come Opera in an Language.

The vocal novelty of Gilbert & Sullivan's "Pinafore," translated into Pennsylvania Dutch, was rendered in Fulton opera house on Saturday evening, by a company composed of Allentown and Reading amateurs under the direction of the translator, Mr. Alf. Chas. Moser. The opera was a success, but a burlesque upon the original, which gives the translator an opportunity to employ the naturally ludicrous characteristics of the Pennsylvania dialect. Much of the opera is given in the original and some of it rendered in broken English, and it is the novel and ridiculous expressions and change of ideas that make up all the fun there is in it. Among the cast, which does well for amateurs, is Mr. E. L. Newhard of Allentown, who fills the role of Sir Joseph, and who has undoubtedly more than a common dramatic talent, supplemented by a good voice, that with more training and care would succeed in legitimate opera. Miss Lucie F. Wright as Josephine, gave an agreeable rendition of the role, and Miss Sallie Corkey, as Little Buttercup, threw into her part a good deal of vivacity and earnestness, which enabled her to give an intelligent interpretation. Two notable features of the entertainment are the horripid dancing by Master Henry Austrian, whose performance was unusually meritorious, and Little Minnie Hafer, a diminutive tottler, who filled the role of the mischievous, and who with a telescope not very large, but bigger than herself, made a most conspicuously funny appearance in make-up and actions. The scenery, which the company carry with them, was fine.

MAIL MATTER. List of Unclaimed Letters.

The following is a list of letters remaining in the postoffice for the week ending May 21, 1883:

Miss Mrs. Wm. Carroll, Miss Marie Fisher, Miss Sarah E. Heider, Mrs. Jane M. Jackson, Mrs. Annie Koehler, Mrs. John Mills, Catharine Nauman, Mrs. Mary Riner, Adeline Sobler.

Gen's List.—Wm. Bissinger, John Bittinger, John Miller, J. Frain, E. Fray, C. H. Gaff, Geo. Guist, John Herrnest, J. K. Huber, M. L. Lamber, L. H. McAteer, John McClain, Jas. R. Miller, M. D. Mull, John Mounck, Samuel Ney, C. W. Otterson, Wm. Reilly (for.), Julius Reager (for.), J. B. Shafer.

Third and fourth class letter: Third class.—Alfred Bleiz, Harvey D. Mann, M. G. Murray, David Siffing (for), Adam R. Tschopp, Nora E. Widmyer. Fourth class.—Mrs. Sarah Handy, M. G. Shinder.

Reports of Viewers. The viewers appointed by the court to assess damages sustained by property owners from the opening of Laurel street, from Mauor to the junction of Hazel and Wabank, have made the following awards, to be paid respectively by the county and city to the parties named:

NAME. County. City.

John Spieckel..... $200 400
John Hartberger..... 250 300
George Shier..... 250 300
Shelburne & Co..... 250 300
Shelburne & Co..... 250 300
Adam Godeker..... 250 300
Charles G. Brown..... 100 100
Henry Hebrink..... 100 100
Augustus Stantz..... 100 100
Martin Kirchner..... 100 100

Reduced Figures. The diamonds, said to be worth $75,000, stolen from the home of Paris Jeweller, by George Shier, were recently captured in New York, divided in value under the scrutiny of an appraiser to $21,000. The thirty-eight and a quarter carat stone, which Kramer's agent claimed was worth $7,500, was valued by the expert at $100 carat, or $5,925.

THE INDIAN WAR. Crook Following the Red Skins into Mexico.

Sixty Indians from the United States passed Carmon on the 15th inst., going to the Sierra Madre. At Mayne's Pass they killed and beheaded one man and threw the head away after carrying it some miles. The horses were shot down upon the building and scattered the brick walls to the ground. The three little ones were killed, but the four men escaped without a scratch.

Mrs. Gustavus Kessness was holding her three children in her arms when the blast struck her home. The front wall of the house was blown down and the mother swept across the room; as she made an effort to save herself the child fell from her arms and was carried into the street and killed. The mother escaped unhurt. An elder child of the same family was playing in a lawn when it was seized bodily by the whirlwind, carried a distance of sixty feet and dropped into a creek. Its dead body was recovered. Paul Kugel and his three brothers were in the former's house when the hurricane bore them aloft and hurled them through the air. Paul was killed and the others were all seriously injured. Their ribs were broken and their flesh torn in strips from their ribs.

Three Children Killed. Three children, Hallock by name, were standing in front of a saloon and within the wall, four men were drinking beer. The storm swept down upon the building and scattered the brick walls to the ground. The three little ones were killed, but the four men escaped without a scratch.

Mrs. Gustavus Kessness was holding her three children in her arms when the blast struck her home. Paul was killed and the others were all seriously injured. Their ribs were broken and their flesh torn in strips from their ribs.

A Bloody Railroad War. An attempt was made on Saturday by the Omaha railroad company to cross the Wisconsin Central company's track at Chippewa Falls, Wisconsin. While the Omaha men were at work the Central men backed up a train killing a workman. The riot which threatened in consequence was prevented by the sheriff. An injunction had been obtained by the Central officers returnable on the 25th inst., but it is not likely to be obeyed, as the Omaha company's lawyers say it is "not applicable."

Rare Presence of Mind. An escaped lunatic went into the house of Mrs. Buckley, in a narrow street of New York, and told her he had a mission to tare her heart out and clean it. He displayed a set of surgeon's knives, and she said she would let him cut her to do the work. She coolly suggested that a dissecting table belonging to a neighbor be procured, and volunteered to accompany him. He agreed, and on reaching the street was seized by three men from the Bloomingdale asylum, who had tracked him to the place.

Sunday in Erie. A party of men, with pistols for hunting and beer for drinking, engaged in an altercation on the bay. The Central captain and his men were rescued and is still unconscious. At another part of the bay three young men were upset while changing seats in a boat, Joseph Schoen was drowned and Frank Koen and Emil Oboth were generally rescued by two little boys.

New Sunday school organized. A new union Sunday school was organized yesterday at Rock Point school house near Marietta. Jesse Klugh, of Maytown, was elected superintendent; Simon L. Brandt, assistant superintendent; and Wm. Nisley treasurer. Much interest was manifested and the prospect for a large and good school seems encouraging.

THE TERROR AT RACINE. A Terrible Story of Destruction.

The meteorological conditions of the lake shore belt of western Lake Erie, and the storm were believed to be such that a disastrous cyclone was an impossibility, but the debris of wrecked houses and the scores of dead and dying which make it a city of mourning attest the fatality of the theory. PERSONAL.

Ben Butler can go to sleep whenever he wants to.

W. W. Bair expects to make "Maud S." trot in 2:08 this season.

Rev. J. Y. Mitchell, D. D., is a delegate to the Presbyterian general assembly in Saratoga.

Chas. A. Dana says it costs from $9,000 to $12,000 a week to get out a leading morning daily in New York.

Norman J. Blackwood, of this city, who had previously passed the mental examination at Annapolis, has also successfully passed the physical examination.

Hon. Herman Yerkes will be the choice of the Democrats of Bucks county for their next judge. He will sit admirably.

Wm. Chambers, LL. D., the well known publisher of miscellaneous and encyclopedias, London, is dead, aged eighty three years.

Mrs. Ann Eliza Young, the nineteenth wife of Brigham Young, has been married to W. R. Denning, a prominent citizen of Manistee, Michigan.

Mrs. Dr. Ridley, a daughter of the late Senator Hill, of Georgia, was severely if not fatally injured by a runaway accident in Atlanta, on Friday evening.

Dr. J. D. Dixon Burns, a native of South Carolina, and prominent as a physician and literateur, died suddenly in New Orleans yesterday morning, aged 47 years.

Chas. Avery, for thirty five years professor of chemistry and natural philosophy in Hamilton college, died at his home in Clinton last night, aged eighty-eight years.

Rev. Samuel A. Brist, a prominent Baptist minister, formerly of New York, and at one time financial secretary of the Rochester theological seminary, died in Indianapolis on Friday, aged 71 years.

Alexander Scott, son of J. Scott, president of the Allegheny Valley railroad, was shot dead by a runaway on Friday in Colfax county, New Mexico, on Friday.

Joseph Pulitzer's wife is a niece of Jefferson Davis. She is so handsome and so homely that when they came to St. Louis after their marriage the couple were generally known as "Beauty and the Beast."

Mr. E. R. Hawk is one of the governing board of Harvard University, and as such is said to be using his utmost endeavors to keep that corporation from bestowing the customary degree of LL. D. on Gov. Butler.

Miss Newbold, of Philadelphia, who knows of a young woman that got $500 for a million and hand stamps, is making a like effort, and has accumulated $50,000 already.

Judge Longworth, of Cincinnati, worth $10,000,000, and on the supreme bench of Ohio, resigned the other day because his residence at Coleridge, and his official position debarred him from fishing on Sunday.

P. J. P. Tynan, the alleged "Number One" of the Dublin Inebriates, is in New York, and, through the counsel, General Roger A. Pryor, announces that he is "ready to deliver himself up for examination whenever the United States government makes a demand for his extradition."

Washington T. Hayes, a sash manufacturer, ex-member of the Legislature and Alderman of Dover, New Hampshire, hanged himself in that city on Saturday. The recent burning of his factory and the death of a favorite daughter are supposed to have unbalanced his mind.

Mrs. Frances Marie Scoville, of Chicago, has given notice that she will file a petition in the courts for permission to assume the name of Frances Marie Howe. Her counsel says she wished to change her name on her own account and that of her daughter Bertha, who has a divorcee woman she could either retain her husband's name or take her maiden name.
