HE IS A FOURTEEN YEAR OLD LAD

" To See It Jump." The Philadelphia newspapers of this morning contain dispatches from Reading giving accounts of the capture in the Welsh mountains of a boy named Jacob Ganaway, aged 14, big for his age, accused of having placed the plank obstruc tion on the railcoad near Ephrata, which caused the recent wreck of the railroad train there and the death of Master Methe lad was seen on the bridge overlookmet by a farmer half a mile away, to the Masons were observed. whom he told a very crooked story. Thereupon the police officers of the P. & R. railroad proceeded to the Welsh mountains, in which retreat they believed the lad had taken refuge. They were met at the foot of the mountain by several hardlooking characters, who demanded their business. Their policeman's stars betrayed them. They were told that the best thing for them to do would be to leave at once. They were not to be scared so easi ly, however, and upon advancing further were met with a shower of stones and a pack of savage dogs were set upon them. The outlaws then re treated, while the officers closely followed up the hill, and came upon the cabin where the boy was kept. He was hurried off by some of the outlaws, while the remainder tried to intercept the officers. The officers, by a flank movement, started after the boy and the men who had him in charge. They surprised them with drawn sullenly handed the boy over to the officers, who took him to Reading and thence brought him to Lancaster. The Arrival Here Officer Boone arrived in this city on the Reading train this morning with the boy in charge. Owing to the account which had appeared in the Philadelphia papers concerning the arrest of the boy, some excitement was caused in the town, and there were a number of people at each depot anxious to see the prisoner. Upon the arrival of the train at the King street station the officer hurriedly took the prisoner from the car and with him walked down Water street, out Vine and thence to the prison to avoid the crowd. The boy is a little bit of a fellow, who does not look to be more than 12 years old, although the morning papers report him 14 years old and "large for his age." He looks to be delicate and as he sat munching an orange in the car this morning he did not seem to realize the gravity of the charge against him. He was very poorly clad, wearing an old slouch hat, a very ragged looking knit. jacket of man's size and an old pair of pantaloons made of overall goods. He the committee on synod, which was finishwore an old pair of shoes and no stockings, and altogether presented a pitiable ap-

THE BOY CONFESSES.

While on the way from the King street | Pennabecker. depot to the prison this morning the boy confessed to the officer. He first asked if a man had been killed in the wreck and was told that one had lost his life. He said he had heard so, and then proceeded to tell the officer of the affair : He said he had been working near the place where the wreck occurred and on Wednesday went to this point; there were a numbe of planks laying to the track, which bad placed there for the construction of road crossings; he took hold of the end of one of these and lifted it on the track, after which he slid it across the track; he then went up on the bridge to wait for the train which he knew was not far away, as it had been shifting at Ephrata. The train soon came and the boy stood quietly watching it until the plank was struck and the cars thrown from the track; he then became terribly frightened and ran away; he made his way to his home in "The Sassafras," a swampy region in Brecknock township, not on the Welsh mountain, but more in the neighborhood of the famous Weller murder of some years ago.

When interrogated as to his motive for committing a crime involving such terrible risks the boy simply said he did it " for fun, just to see the train jump.'

How He Was Captured. From the time of the accident until he was captured he remained at the home of his step father, where he was appre-

On his return from the prison this morning Officer Boone was met by several re porters, to whom he gave an account of the affair. He stated that he and Sergeant Heisler started to look up this affair on Friday. They had heard that the boy was seen to run away from the bridge at the time of the wreck by a tarmer; they started for the place and saw the farmer, who told them that he had seen the boy; the officer soon got on his track and traced the boy to different stations and thence to the place where the arrest was made. Before looking for the boy Officer Heis ler, who is 76 years of age, disguised himself as a drover. He went to the house of the boy's step father, a man named Clark, and pretended to want to hire a boy to drive cattle. The folks in the house said the boy was not in and asked the officers where they wanted him to drive the cattle to. The officer said to Tuckerton 6 miles away, and received a reply that it was too far for him to go. The officer left the house and started for the residence of the boy's sister, but was unable to find him there. They then went to the place khown as the "swamp." On the way they met a number of rough looking men, relatives of the boy and others, who seemed to be very angry. One of them accused Heisler of lying when he said that he was a drover. They became very angry and Officer Boone was soon recognized by one of them. They caught hold of Heisler, and while one held his hands another choked him. A vicious dog, one of several with the men, caught Heisler by the leg. Seeing this, Officer Boone went to in getting bim away from the men; he told them that they were mistaken in accusing old man Heisler of doing anything wrong; he, Boone, was responsible for doing everything, and would abide by the consequences. The Boy Taken. About this time the boy was seen with a fishing rod over his shoulder walking to the crowd. Officer Boone went to him, and informed him that he had a warrant for his arrest on the charge of wrecking the train. The boy started to tell something about the affair but was interrupted by the crowd; the officers told them that they intended to take the boy and when the gang saw that they had been fooled and that the officers were determined, they resisted no further. The boy was then taken to E was made by 'Squire Kratz, As the last train had left for this city the boy was taken to Reading where he was kept until this morning. The officers deserve great credit for the good work they did in the matter, and the successful stand they made against the roughs.

Funeral of George M. Hain. umbia railroad, who was killed at Ephrata on Thursday, took place in Reading on Saturday afternoon, from the residence of his parents. The floral offerings were profuse and pretty. Rev. Dr. C. F. Mc Cauley, of the Second Reformed church, Reading; Rev. Yuengling, of the Lutheran church, Columbia, Pa., and Rev. Henry Mosser, of the First Reformed church, Reading, held services at the house. The ceremonies were very impressive and solemn. The corpse was at tired in a plain black suit, and lay in a handsome walnut casket, covered with velvet, heavily silver mounted, with the name and age inscribed upon the plate. About 30 employes of the railroad shops, members of the Lutheran church and friends from Columbia attended the funeral in a body, as did also Chandler Lodge, No 227, of which deceased was a member, chanic Hain. The same accounts relate that and delegations from Lodges Nos. 62, 367 435 and 549 F. & A. M., and Camp 61, P ing the scene of the accident when the O. S. of A. The Reamstown cornet band, a good musical organization, is in town to-day in brilliant uniforms, on a little excursion trip, with no particular object in view. This morning the mayor had two disorderlies, each of whom were made to pay costs and a fine of $1. Another drunk paid costs and two vagrants were sent out for 10 days each. Daniel Zook, of Intercourse, died in that place on Saturday at the age of 45 years.

He was a brave soldier during the war, serving as lieutenant in Co. I, 79th regi ment Pa. Vol. On Friday a valuable mare belonging to Frank Hartmyer, of this city, was badly kicked by a horse at Intercourse. The injures are such that the animal will be of no use for several weeks. On Saturday evening an entertainment was given in the Quarryville hall for the tenefit of the Helicon band of that place. There was a large crowd present and there were dialouges, speeches, singing and music by the band. A saug sum was realized. Plenty of pipe line men may be expected in the city within the present week, as workmen are now engaged laying the pipe between a point near Oregon and another near Rocky Springs, southeast of the city. The line is almost completed from the last named point to the Susquehanna river. While at work near the city the work-
