Picked up by the Intelligencer Reporter. The social world here goes by fits and starts. The picnic season has been open ed, and most of the Sunday school picnica will come together, one after the other in rapid succession. At a later period of the summer there will be nothing of a social nature going on, unless it is an occasional little basket picuic. The Lotus social club talked a great deal about what was to be done in the dancing picnic line this summer, but like the turtle when danger approaches, it has drawn in its head. The embers had better clothe their heads in night caps and go to bed. We don't mean the kind of "night caps" some people put on before going to bed, however. The Lotus Eaters wouldn't wear that kind, none of them. No sir, not them.

The grading and macadamizing of Union street has been completed, and a number of new pavements have been made in front of the houses at that point. The improvements in the neighborhood of the Five Points of late years have been very marked the principal of which has been Dr. Markel's new drug store, a fine brick structure. That gentleman has built up a large trade there, his location for business purposes being one of the finest in town. The double siding which is being laid by the Pennsylvania railroad company, between Shock's station and Marietta, is being rapidly put down. It is intended to relieve the pressure on the Columbia rail road yards, when the latter are blocked by cars, by running slow freight trains on to these sidings, where they can remain until the trains in the yards can be Personal Mention.

OBITUARY.

Death of Mrs. Mary P. Lowry. Mrs. Mary P. Lowry, widow of the late Wm. Lowry, died at her residence, No. 217 East Chestnut street, this city, yester. day afternoon, about half-past four o'clock, in the 82d year of her age. Her maiden name was Russell. She was born in this city on the 31st of October 1801, and lived here nearly all her long and usefut life. She married Wm. Lowry, a hatter, who was afterwards for many years, as sessor and tax collector, and who died in January, 1876. They were the parents of nine children, of whom only four survive-Mrs. Mary C. Quinn, widow of James W. Quinn, William, now residing in Des in Philadelphia, and Mrs. Jennie M. Franklin, widow, residing in this city.

Perhaps no woman in Lancaster was more widely known or more universally respected than Mrs. Lowry. At least thirty-five years ago. She engaged in the business of an undertakeress, continued in it until a few years ago, when advancing age compelled her to relinquish it. In the thirty years thus occupied, she prepared not less than 3,000, probably 4,000, dead bodies for burial, a greater number by far than was ever attended to by any other person in this city. She was peculiarly adapted to her profession. Gentle, considerate, sympathizing, she ever had words of comfort and hope and encouragement for those bereft of their treasures; and to hundreds of families in this city she seemed like a good angel, who came to bring back words of consolation and hope to those whose loved ones had descended in the dark valley and shadow of death. And now, after a painful illness of fifteen months she, too, has gone to join the innumerable throng whose path-way led to dusty death. But she was being managed. He has now organifully prepared and even anxious for the zed a nine of his own, which has fine change. She had an unswerving faith in the efficiency of the Savior, whose cross Alerts, of Pottstown, by the score of 11 to she took up in early life and whose man- 30. SACRED BEART ACADEMY.

t xamination of the Classes-Highly Satisfac-

The examination of classes commenced on Thursday, June 15, and closed on the 20th. The papils were thoroughly tested in their respective studies, as well as in theory of music and thorough bass. In the latter the pupils passed through a severe ordeal. Each one answered with a readiness and accuracy that showed com mendable industry on her own part and reflected great credit on the teachers. The examination of the higher classes in vocal and instrumental music took place on Tuesday morning. Several sonatas by Beethoven, Haydn and Mozart, as well as many difficult selections, fantasias, &c., by Liszt, Mendelssohn, and other firstclass composers, were skilfully rendered by the graduates, and pupils of the first class. Each and all displayed fine cultiva tion and efficient training. The studio was next examined. Here the display was bril liant and expensive. Chief among the department next year. The fancy work case also presents a gorgeous display. Elegantly embroidered table covers, lambrequins and other fancy articles, as well as plain sewing, (which this year merits a special premium) are neatly fin ished and tastily arranged. All this goes to prove that the pupils of Sacred Heart academy are taught all that is necessary to complete a useful and refined education. Their well merited rewards will be dis tributed at the closing exercises which take place in Fulton opera house, Friday, June 22d, 1883, at 10 a.m. These exer cises are more of the nature of a grand concert than anything else, on account of the classical music rendered by the pupils this year, particularly since there are several graduates in the conservatory of

ELOPEMENT.

A Ma: yland Woman Leaves Her Husband gossiping a short time ago by the elope-ment of Mrs. Charles Rinehart, of Port Deposit, with Norman Whitlock. Interest was added to the affair by the wealth and high social position of the erring lady's husband. She was a young woman of remarkable beauty and at one time was eugaged to Whitlock. Whitlock was not wealthy, and when Mr. Charles Rinehart came along he was accepted, and they were married less than two years ago. He was a young man of fine address and quite wealthy. He lavished the most costly presents upon his wife. She dressed in elegant style and her ever whim was gratifled. The day they were married she got $1,000 from her husband and gave it to Whitlock. After the marriage Whitlock and Mrs. Rinebart were often seen together, and at times their conduct excited great deal of comment. One fine day Mrs. Rinehart got a large sum of money from her husband, joined Whitlock and rau away with him. Rinehart at once instituted suit for divorce, which resulted in a decree being granted a few days ago. On Saturday Norman Whitlock and Rine hart's divorced wife were married at the Continental hotel, in Philadelphia. They will return to Port Deposit and live there, despite the feeling which their escapade Moines, Iowa, Mrs. John Franklin residing has aroused.

Manager Mishler at Home. A prominent showman upon being asked on one occasion when he had seen John D. Mishler last, replied: "When I left him he was in his office busy interviewing himself for a morning paper." This morning's Times, of Reading, contains a long interview with Mr. Mishler, who is at home now, but it is not stated who the author is. Mr. Mishler has been managing the Bar tholomew trained horse show since Nov. 13th, and the party has now closed for the season. He will open with the clever animals in Philadelphia during the month of September. Mr. Mishler will remain in Reading during the summer superintending the improvements which are being made at his opera house which will be managed by him next season as in the Interesting Exercises-Premiums Awarded. St Mary's school had their closing ex ercises to day in the new school house, West Vine street. He awarded the premiums to those who had the highest average, and then gave to each little child ome mark of approbation.
