MURDERERS EXECUTED IN ARKANSAS They Addressed a Crowd Assembled to se Them Banged-Urging the Sheriff

to Hasten Bis Work. The four train robbers, Grove Johnson, Jim McDonald, James T. Herndon and Jim Johnson, who murdered Conductor Cain, on the night of the 7th of March, of this year, were hanged at Clarksville Friday. The prisoners remained in the penitentiary at Ozark until they were taken from their cells by Sheriff McConnel, of Johnson county, and transported by rail to Ciarksville, the place of execution. They were heavily shackled, Grove and Jim Johnson were handcuffed together after being shaved and given clean linen. Herndon and McDonald were shaved, dressed and bound together. A special hack conveyed the prisoners and the guard to the depot, where a large crowd of people awaited their arrival. They were placed in a special car bound for Clarksville, 100 miles west of Little Rock. At all the stations along this line large crowds of people thronged the platforms.

all the time, telling each incident of their lives, while the anxious crowd stood around them to eateh all they might say They were cheerful and seemed not to dread death. At Clarksville they were placed in the court house and guarded through the night. Jim Johnson met his father there. The scuffold, which stend in the edge of a wheat field, was ten by twelve feet and sixteen feet high. Three thousand people witnessed the execution, a motly group of men, women and children. About noon the prisoners were conveyed to the scaffold in an open back, surrounded by guards, and followed by the county physician and the sheriff. A 12:27 p. m. they walked upon the platform of the gallows and were seated. Sheriff McCouncil read the death war rant. Grove Johnson stepped for ward and

The fillingars to Start Wo-day for ities All day yesterdry there was burrying to and fro on Jay Gould's steam yacht, the Atalanta, as she lay at Cramp's Philadelphia shipyard taking in stores for her coming voyage. From the amount and variety of the provisions shipped it is evident that the owner of the handsome craft meditates taking a long voyage. Of flour alone no less than twenty barrels been caused by a defective flue in the were shipped, enough as an old salt who has sailed the bring ocean for many a long year remarked, "to withe one o' them them there Liverpool steamers for a woyage out an 'ome." A barrel of molaste, ease after ease of canned goods, sacks of po tatoes and all sorts of comestibles haried aboard and slowed away below during the afternoon, and by nightfall the hatches were replaced, everything was shipshape and the yacht ready for sea. Mr. Gould is expected to arrive in Philadelphia about 12 o'clock to day. As at present arranged he will at once go on board the Atalanta, and she will steam down the river and anchor for the night inside the breakwater. At daylight, on Sunday meroing the Atalanta will proceed on her journey to Irvington, Mr. Gould's summer red dence, on the Hudson river. Betty, the colored said of E win Booth's daughter, was, during the greatragedian's tour in Germany, the object of a degree of cariosity and attention, which displayed a singular amount of ignorance respecting the negro race on the part of the populations of the German cities. In many places Mr. Booth's courier was seriously asked as to what kind of food shou'd be specially prepared for her. In one town the inquiry was made if she were not a Zulu? In Berlin, her promenades, Betty was gravely pre-sented with a lot of plants by a deeply in terested young Gérman, who probably took her for some kind of savage crea ture. On another occasion, while she was passing through the corridor of the hotel, she was stopped by an elderly gentleman, who applied his finger to her check and gave the skin a vigorous rub, afterwards Bitter. incites the torpid organs to act, and sends its looking at his linger, and being amazed to see that the color did not come off.

A Young Hero. New York Tribune.

Charles H. Billar, age 19, a bookkeeper for J. & F. T. Fearey, of Newark, went to Coney Island. He was alone, and while standing, at noon, on the beach between the Brighton Beach hotel and the iron pier, he noticed a little child about four years of age playing on the sands with a toy bucket and shovel. Further up the beach stood a horse and carriage near which sat a middle aged man and a girl of about 16, reading. They were not apparently observing the child, which wandered close to the water. A high wave swept up the beach and enveloping the child carried it off its feet. At that moment the girl turned her head and saw what had occurred. With a scream she sprang upon her feet and rushed to the edge of the water, only to see the child swept out by the retreating tide. Dashing into the water she reached the child, but in a moment she was beyond her depth. The man left the carriage and struggled to get to where the two lives were in peril, but he Billar, who is a well built lad and a good swimmer, had advanced to the spot, and without any hesitation he kicked off his shoes and plunged into the water. The two girls had floated some distance, the elder holding on to the younger, but by a few vigorous strokes Billar reached them. He held fast to his two charges, and swam with them until he got a footing on the sand. Then he dragged them beyond the reach of the breakers. Turning he saw that the man needed his help. He had entered the water desperately bent upon saving the children, but had been swept off his feet and was floundering in the breakers when Billar dashed in again and caught him. He managed to drag his burden back to the dry land, and then he fell unconscious. Several young men ran up from a distance and arrived in time to lift the form of the gallant lad and rub him to consciousness. The child, which was also un conscious when brought ashore, was soon restored. The carriage was then brought into requisition, and the rescuer and the rescued were driven to a cottage some dis tance inland. Here Billard learned that the three persons were father and daughters, and that the man for whom he had done such signal service was Henry Benediet, of Philadelphia. The wife and mother was at the cottage and the family overwhelmed the young man with gratitade. His clothing being soaked with sea water, he was compelled to don a suit be onging to a son of about his age. Mr Benedict, ascertaining that the lad was a alaried clerk, offered him a large sum of money, saying that he felt that it could not discharge an iota of the obligation. The money was modestly but firmly refused. Then Mr. Benedict pressed upon him a superb gold repeater which he took from his pocket, with a gold seals attached, and also a diamond ring of considerable value. The family carriage was again brought into requisition, and Billard was driven to the iron pier to eatch a spamer for New York.

Billard already possesses a gold medal owing on the Passale river near the town of Passaie when he saw a boat containing three hoys tow into a boat in which sat three little girls. The girls' boat was overturned. Billar palled immediately to the spot, sprang into the water, and suc eceded in resching all three of them.

HE REPEATS THE REMARK. "Will you please repeat that remark; Mr. Mathison ?"

Turning so as to look your represent tive Soren Mathison & Co., Pharmacists, No. 1802 State street, Marble Block, Chicago, rep ied : "Yes, sir, with pleasure. My remark was that We consider PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, now called PARKER'S TONIC, the best article of its kind in the market. Our sales for the last six months tell the whole story and settle the question. The Tonic, like a good dinner, car ries its own recommendation with it. It's bound to sweep the West like a prairie on fire. In cases of rheumatism, dyspepsia and liver and kidney troubles it scores successes and wins triends every day."
