Along the Susqueha Interest In and Around the Borough Picked up by the Intelligencer Keporter.

It has been generally supposed that Miss Dunbar, the victim of smallpox here came to town direct from the Carr family in Lancaster. This is a mistake. She left their house as soon as young Carr was brought there with the disease, and be-came an inmate of a Mr. Dean's residence at No. 20 Dorwart street. After remaining there between two and three weeks, she was taken ill, and then brought to Columbia. Dr. W. G. Taylor was summoned and found symptoms of measles, and this disease developed fully in a couple of days, and at the same time several smallpox putules appeared on one of her arms. Last Wednesday the smallpox appeared and Councilman George Tille was immediately notified of the fact by the doctor. It was a mistake that neighbors first revealed its existence. As already stated, all possible precautions to prevent it spreading were then immediately taken. Dr. Taylor said in an interview, that he had taken every precaution with himself since his first attendance upon the girl to prevent spread. ing any disease which she might have, as he knew she had been the inmate of a family where the smallpox existed. No person but her mother is allowed to see her, and when he began to suspect smallpox, had her removed to an upper room of the house. He believes she contracted the disease from the mourning apparel sent her from the Carr residence, to enable her to attend the funeral of her grandfather, the late Thomas B. Dunbar. At this time she was still residing with Mr. Dean, in Lancaster.

The Smallper. Favorable reports are received from the few remaining smallpox patients in town, and no new cases are reported

In answer to inquiries from Columbia as to how Miss Dunbar, who was at Carr's when the smallpox was raging there, was enabled to get away from the house and go to Columbia, thus putting the people of that borough in jeopardy, the health commissioner informs us that she left Carr's before the house was quarantined, and spent several days at a friend's on Beaver street before going to Columbia. She was beyond the reach of the health officers before they knew anything of her. There is another story, however, that Joe Hinder, who was in jail, and who had the smallpox was cured and discharged from that institution yesterday. It is said street. Narrow Escape This morning about 9 o'clock, as Mr. Kamm, the milkman, was driving on North Queen street, near the railroad, he made a parrow escape from being crushed beneath the cars. The Columbia accommodation train was just coming in and Mr. Kamm did not hear it nor see the signal made by the watchman. He drove his horse upon the track when the engine was but a few feet away, and had barely time to pull him back before the engine was on the crossing just grazing the horse's head.
