FRIDAY FVENING, AUG. 3, 1888,

TO MY CHILDREN (IN FUTURO.)

A REVERY. Eweet little lass with raven hair-No, golden brown I'll have it rather-

And eyes of blue, complexion fair: I'll have it so, I am your father. At first you'll be like other girls;

Sweet infant, launched upon life's channe All fist and feet and fluffy curls, All soothing syrup, lace and flannel.

Then, darling, for a year or two Your cunning ways will make us merry, Then you will grow (girls always do) Tall, angular, affected very.

And you, my son, have naught to dread; You will be handsome like your father-With massive, done like, curly head, You'll look at first top-heavy rather.

You'll be a nuisance till you're ten, By that time I'll be cross and forty, A little gray, dyspeptic; then I'll whip you oftener when naughty.

I'll send you soon away to school, And afterward you'll go to college, And then you'll think (it is the rule) That you have drained the cup of knowledg

You'll smoke, of course, your cigarette : You'll go, of course, to all the races; You'll lose, of course, whene'er you bet-In short, have all the manly graces.

You'll fall in love a score of times, You'll be an athlete, boxer, fencer; You'll even take to writing rhymes, Perhaps you'll take to reading Spencer.

Quite early you'll begin to show Some gleams of the immortal fire That burns within. It must be so, For, happy boy, I am your sire.

Perhaps (what horrid thought is this ! How could my massive brain conceive it?) Life's greatest prizes you may mi s: Great heavens, no! I can't believe it.

You both, perhaps, will be the same As other folk, as wise, as silly : You'll keep your fingers from a flame And cover up when it is chilly. You'll wreck your lives as others do,

Your faul ts to all but me app rent, And I, perhaps, like others too, Will be a blind and doting parent. No, no, my children, it can't be,

Your genius must make nature pliant: Your min is, my children, came from me-From me in intellect a giant.

My tair-haired maid, my blue-eyed boy, You 'll much resemble each the other-Your tather's pride, your mother's joy : But, y the way, who is your mother ?

Teil me, my son, who is your ma ? You ought to know ; I prythee show her. My daughter, tell your anxious pa : Come, children, answer, de I know her?

She's pretty and, of course, she's go d, But has her father bonds in plenty " And will she love me as she should ? And, tell me, is she under twenty?

Shall we be married to a church? Will I be awkward, stupid, flurrled? Will "papa" leave us in the lurch? Fray tell me this, I'm rather worried.

Confound it, 'tis a burning shame Can you not tell what she's doing, Nor where she lives, nor what's her name? Then how can I begin my wooing?

Come, hurry up-delay is crime! You're compromising me, I'll show you; For you are growing all this time, And yet your own mamma don't know you -H. C. Faulkner, in Our Continent.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Events Near and Across the County Lines The stable of George Billmeyer, at York, was burned down on Wednesday. Loss, $1,000; insurance, $500.

The first installment of the issue of $5,000,000 collateral trust bonds recently authorized by the Pennsylvania railroad company for the construction of its Schuylkill Valley lines, was placed in the hands of the trustees on Tuesday, and will be forwarded to Europe.

The books of Osmund Geier, late secretary of the American building and saving association of Reading, have been examined by a committee, which fourd deficiencies for about $20,000. Geier is new undergoing imprisonment for embezzlement.

It is now asserted that the recent blow-ing up of Miller's powder mill at Summeytown, Montgomery county. was the act of John Schmidt, who was blown up with it, and was a deliberate suicide. Schmidt was recently released from Doylestown jail, where he had been put for chicken stealing. He had a very jealous wife, with whom he constantly quarrelled. On the day the explosion took place he had a violent quarrel with his wife and was heard to tell her that ! she would never again see him alive. An hour later he was seen in the powder mill by an assistant, Wm. Wambold, pulverizing the pressed powder in an iron trough BLOOD PUBLFIER ever discovered, effectwith an iron hammer. Mr. Wambold remonstrated with him upon the danger he was incurring, when he substituted a wooden hammer for the iron one. Mr. Wambold then left. A short time after wards the explosion took place and it is supposed that Schmidt had again used the iron hammer, with suicidal intent

News Miscellany. President Arthur and party left Louis ville Thursday morning on a special train and arrived at Chicago in the evening. Large crowds of people were assembled at all the stations along the route, who cheer ed the president and fired salutes in his honor. At a few of the principal points stoppages were made, and brief speeches delivered by the president, Secretary Lincoln and Postmaster General Gresham. The party on reaching Chicago found a large gathering at the depot, but the
