The chandel iers are hung with hundreds of crystal pendants, and when lighted beautifully illuminate the room and show off to great advantage its exquisite decorations.

To the lady friends of Mæanerchor much praise is due for their valuable aid in tying the greens and assisting in other ornamen tal work.

Street Decorations.

In all parts of the city flags are flying and the fronts of many public and private buildings are very elaborately decorated with festoons and wreaths of evergreens, with harps, lyres and other musical em blems. Following are some of the more prominent :

John Hess' Mænnerchor hotel (late hotel Franke), adjoining Mænnerchor hall, is almost covered with evergreen and bunting, the long balcony fronting on the Mænnerchor garden being especially fine, while appropriate ornamentation adds much to the appearance of the bar room. The front of Peter Lotz's saloon, No 43 North Queen street, is covered with long festions of evergreen, American flags, lyres, &c., while one large flag suspended from the top of the building bears the in scription : " Willkommen Saenger." The bar room also is decorated with scores of that has yet been secured in the history of small flags and wreaths and festoons of the enterprise. The effort to raise addievergreen. J. J. Dosch's saloon, North Queen street above Orange, which recently has been very handsomely painted, is made still more attractive by a fine display of bunt-ing, large German and American flags floating from all the up-stairs windows.

The saloons of John A. Snyder, adjoin ing Dosch's, and of John Copland, a few doors above, are also decorated with a fine display of flags and lyres.

Fred. Woehrle's saloon, 159 North Queen street, has a large transparency in front on which is painted a handsome lyre and the inscription, "Willkommen in Laucaster." Heavy festoons of evergreen, interspersed with American flags and lyres all about 75 men with Hiram McElroy, in of various colors, give a festive appearance command.
