THURSDAY FVENING, AUG. 23, 1883,

Some time," the blue eyed maiden cried, "Some time I'll be a rich man's bride, I'll have his gold when he is old,

And grandly in a coach I'll ride." Sometime," the brown-eyed maiden cried, And blushing turned her face aside, "God grant it me ! I'll married be

To him whom Heaven shall provide.' The blac-eyed maiden had her way ; She married one both rich and gray, And when he died she took his pride, But that is all she took-they say.

A handsome lover came one day And bore the brown-eyed maid away; He was her li'e and she-his wife; What more is there to ask or say ?

Uharity Among Birds.

Virginia City (Nev ) Enterprise. In this city notice was recently made of. a robin that went to a house to feed one of its young that some boys had carried off and placed in a cage that was allowed to hang out of doors. Thomas Prince, who es on Carson river, above Dayton, tells of a circumstance still more singular. He says a pair of robins had their nest on a fence near his house, while in a bush near by a pair of catbirds had built their nest. The two pair of birds hatched out their young about the same time and all went well for several days. Then the cat birds were seen no more, probably having

Dayton. The young catbirds were evidently starving. When the robius came with a worm or other insect for their young, they always alighted on the top rail of the fence before hopping down to their nest. Each time when a robin so came the catbirds opened their mouths, thrust up their heads and made a great outcry. They were begging to the best of their ability for

The robins appeared to understand the appeal, and began feeding the hungry little catbirds. They did not do what they had undertaken by halves. Each evening the female robin sat on her own nest and warmed with her body her own young while the male robin took to the nest of the catbirds.

In this way both broods were reared, the little orphans growing up as strong and lively as though they had been cared for all through by their own parents. Both broods are now able to fly, and the young robins and catbirds all still flock together. but presently the latter will probably and take up with their own

PERILS OF THE DEEP. Two Drowned Yachtmen Found on a meach.

On Tuesday noon the body of a man dressed in a yachtman's shirt, with a life preserver on, was found on the beach at West Falmouth, Massachusetts, and yes terday morning a second body was found near the same place. The bodies were buried above high water mark so that they can be exhumed for identification if necessary. A later dispatch says both bodies were dressed in yachting shirts, in vachting shirts. and on one of them was a life preserver, marked "C. R. Northam." As the yachtsmen of the yacht Mystery borrowed four life preservers from the steamer C. R. Northam while at New Haven, it is feared the drowned men are two of the crew of the missing yacht. E. W. Bullinger, of 75 Fulton street, New York, has offered $500 reward for information to be sent to him, before September 1, of the whereabouts of the missing sloop and her crew. The Mystery sailed from New Haven for Nantucket on the 10th inst. West Falmouth is in Buzzard's bav, Massachusetts, opposite Martha's Vine-

A sister ship of the Ludwig, now so long overdue, arrived at Montreal yesterday from Antwerp, having left that point a month later than the missing vessel. Almost all hope of the Ludwig's safely has been abandoned.

The schooner Waterline of Boston, from Charleston for Richmond, Virginia, with guano, sprang a leak and sank near Body's island on the 18th inst. The crew were saved.

The sloop Ocean Star was capsized by a heavy sea while crossing the bar at Egg Harbor inlet, New Jersey, on Tuesday, and is a total wreck. The crew were

A Rum Story.

Maggie Mitchell was recommended by her physicians to take a daily bath in rum for the purpose of recuperating for her dramatic business. Demijohns of the liquid were carried from point to point for the purpose, but it was found by the actress that the strength of the rum had degenerated into something like water. The physician was consulted and he ordered a fresh demijohn with a serene smile that he would have a hand in its manipulation. The next day after its arrival over half a dozen of the company supporting the actress were deathly sick. The physician smiled even more serenely as he announced the fact that "emetics do not injure rum for bathing purposes, but they incapacitate it for internal use,' Bathe the hands in Darbys Prophylactic Fluid and no contagion will attack you.
