This company contracted to put up 120 electric lamps of two thousand candle power each, one half "to be in position and lighted by the 10th of August, 1883, and the remaining sixty lamps shall be in position and lighted by the 19th of September, 1883." It is not necessary for us to tell our readers that, although the period for lighting the first sixty lamps is ng past, not a lamp is yet in position nor likely to be for some time to come; that this company has violated its contract with the city, and has not been called to count for it by councils.

But besides violating its agreement, this company has made itself more obnoxious to our property holders than any other cor-poration that has ever put up poles in this city. We have examined its contract with councils carefully, and nowhere in that locument have we been able to discover authority or authorization the part of the city authorities that can be construed into a right or privilege to the company to erect its poles on the sidewalks and before the doors of property owners. The right of the city to delegate such a privilege is not now under discussion. The fact we have to deal with is that it did not confer such authority on the electric light company, unless such a right is implied by virtue of the contract itself, and yet this company has, without the consent of owners, entered upon hundreds of premises within the past few days, and regardless of the owners' protests, set up the poles on which they propose to suspend their wires. In the absence of any direct authorization to erect its poles, has the company a legal standing against the citizens whose premises it has invaded? It every instance, and must be held responsible for this invasion of private rights.

But this is not the only cause of complaint. It does not seem to have proceeded with its work upon any well defined plan. It has crossed from one side of a street to of the weather. the other with a frequency that is very sug gestive. There are good reasons for believing that an unjustifiable favoritism has been shown in the way it is doing its work. Particular individuals have succeeded in having the obnoxious poles, intended for their own premises, shifted to those of their neighbors on either side of them and not notwithstanding the inclement weather. unfrequently to the opposite side of the street. A system that allows of such Case to have Col. Good, commanding offimethods is highly objectionable, and the company that permits itself to be made C belongs, consent to allow that company the instrument of such acts of injustice to dispense with drill during September. deserves no sympathy from a public whose rights, we believe, it has persistently vio lated. Such a course was sure to meet with violent opposition and the result is what was to have been expected. Several indignant citizens, resenting the planting Greve. of one of these obnoxious poles before their doors, cut down the obstruction. This we hope will lead to a settlement of the whole matter. Let the company now show up its rights and privileges in the courts, if it has any. Let it show its au thority to enter upon the premises of citizens and take possession not only without having purchased the right, but without having so much as politely requested it. If it has authority to do all this, the time has come to make it known.

The Poles Should Go. Harrisburg Independent,

The Lancaster INTELLIGENCER thinks not want them on the streets. The prop erty owner, on whose pavement they are planted, does not want them. They must yield to the public sentiment which pro-tests against them, backed as it is, by the property owner's power to cut them down. Right it is. They must go.

THE EPHRATA MUSIC. some Light Thrown on an Interesti correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger, under the name of "Antiquarian" asked a short time ago for information "whether the music practiced at Ephrata monastery, in Lancaster county, is now anywhere in use or in MSS? Investigation has developed the fact that while the pe culiar style of rendering the music has been lost, manuscript copies of the hymns sung at the "Kloster" are by no means rare. Copies handed down as precious heirlooms are still extant in the neighbor hood of Ephrata, and S H. Zahm's book store, in this city, contains two which are in an excellent state of preservation. They are in old German text, each containing about 150 hymns, differing from each other, and the illuminated letters and vignettes show rare perfection in penmanship. The first hymn book of the deventh Day Baptists was printed by Christoph Sauer, in Germantown, in 1739. The first book printed in Ephrata was in 1744, and from the fact that the manuscript copie

Rupp's history of Lancaster county says "the music is lost entirely now at Ephrata; inches below the knee where they not the music books, but the style of sing ing ; they never attempt it any more. It is, however, still preserved and finely executed, though in a faint degree, at Snow Hill, in Franklin county, where there is a branch of the society, and which is now the principal settlement of the Seventh Day Baptists."

a short time afterwards.

The "Kloster" contained a room, "Das Schrieb Zimmer," used for the purpose of transcribing the writings of Courad Beissel, the founder of the sect, and another exclusively devoted to the copying of music. Beissel him self is said to have been quite a musi cal genius, his native ability and fine musical discrimination being discernible in the thousand productions which the society had in its possession Ot the music itself Rupp says: "It was set in four, six and eight parts. All the parts, save the bass, were led and sung exclusively by females, the men being confined to the bass, which was set in two parts, the high and low base." Its effect, when rendered in the conventicle, with its low ceilings, is said to have been indescribably fine.

Many of these quaint manuscript copies were probably lost, when just prior to the battle of Germantown in the war of the Revolution, three wagon loads of books were seized at Ephrata by soldiers and used by them as wadding for their mus-

RIVAL INSURANCE COMPANIES.

They Bring Suits Against Each Other. The office of Alderman Fordney was filled with people for several hours to-day, who had come to listen to the hearing in two false pretence and one forgery case, which seem to have grown out of the rivalry between two insurance companies. W. N. Lucas, an agent of the Prudential company with headquarters in this city. was charged by Alfred Colborn, an agen of the Metropolitan company of Columbia with false pretense in obtaining a book from him by representing himsel to be another man. H H. Snyder, the Prudential company charged Colborn with false pretence, al-leging that he represented himself to be an agent in his employ. Snyder was charged with forgery by Colborn, who claimed that he wrote him a postal card using the name of another man. The wit nesses were all officers and agents of these heavy insurance companies. There was not much in the false pretense cases and the strongest one was against Snyder. The alderman reserved his decision.

BASEBALL.

The Chambersburg nine is very strong and it is said that they should have defeated the Altoona on Monday. The last game between the Ironsides and Sam Field's nine was twelve innings long and the one on Saturday next should at tract a large crowd, as the home team are going to win if possible. Pyle, who was recently expelled from the Quicksteps, of Wilmington, will be taken back into the club at once.

It is expected that the Ironsides, ir. will play the Dauntless, of Mt. Joy, next Saturday. The Ironsides have changed their programme for next week, and will go to Easton on Monday and Tuesday, instead of Chambersburg.

Hall Insurance Erroneous reports have been circulated that the Mutual hail instrance companies of Laucaster and York counties have disbanded by reason of the heavy losses resulting from the tobacco destroyed by the recent hail storms. There is no truth whatever in these reports. The companies have paid or will pay all losses as rapidly as they can be adjusted. They are organized on the mutual plan and cannot become bankrupt. In addition to the cash premium paid at the time of insurance, the company takes from the insured a premium note equal to 6 per cent, of the amount of insurance. Usually the cash premium paid is sufficient to cover all osses, but when it is insufficient the companies collect the full amount or only a part of the premium notes as may be nenessary. Even if the full amount of the premium notes was insufficient to pay the losses the company could not become bankrupt, but would pay to the insured a pro rata of their insurance, so far as the funds of the company (which are in reality the funds of the in sured) would reach. Tobacco farmers can make no mistake in taking out policies in mutual companies. If their tobacco is destroyed they are well paid for it; if it is not destroyed they can well afford to pay a trifling premium for the benefit of their less fortunate neighbors.

In close succession within the past two or three weeks A. B. Landis, proprietor of the Landis' coach works, made no less than three narrow escapes from accident on the railroad. Friends saved him each time. The closest rescue occurred on Wednesday morning just as the Niagara express was passing west over Main street crossing. Mr. Landis was walking on Barbara street past the Exchange hotel as the train approached. Being almost deaf he did not hear the train moving along, neither did he look around. John Wharvell, proprietor of the Exchange hotel, seeing the danger Mr. Landis was walking iuto, caaght him by the coat when within step from the north rail. Landis looked towards the west, and, not seeing the train, moved on. The heroic little landford struggled with Mr. Landis, both being on the railroad, and almost instantly succeeding in pushing Mr. Landis from the track, barely escaping with his own life.
