The talk, of which the foregoing is a fragnent, took place in Gallatin, Missourt, not long ago, in the snug office of Dr. M. P. Flowers, one of the leading physicians of the state, who followed up the vetu in which he had introduced it substantially in these words

" Noosense, that is the rigmarole of boy, or rather, of a man who either doesn't know or doesn't care what he says. Those things, as you call them, are just as different as the moon is from green cheese. Now, indiments, lotions and outments are very good to most cases for the relief of pain or inflammation. But, in the first place, they are unclear. They soil the hands and the linen, best-les being always out of reach when they are most wanted."

Well, my dear doctor," sighed the traveler from the North," what would you have? This is a wretched world anyhow, and nothing is ever at hand when it is wanted. You can'

BUCHANAN'S CREED.

HIS DREP RELIGIOUS CONVICTIONS

Letters That Indicate His Profound Helle in the Truths of Christianity— How He Became Minuter

The following correspondence relative to Buchanan's religious convictions will be read with interest, as indicating his deep seated faith in Christianity, which never flagged during his long and eventful public career. The first letter was written by Mr. Buchanan to a young clergyman, between whom and the late president there existed a warm intimacy. The letter to Jeneral Jackson is self explanatory : WHEATLAND, NEAR LANCASTER 29th August, 1856.

My DEAR AND REV. SIR .- On my return home after a fortnight's absence I received your kind letter. I do not wonder that your excellent father's sons should feel inclined to support me for the presidency; but considerations far higher than those of mere personal regard have doubtless caused you to take part in the existing canvass. For myself I can say in all sin cerity that I did not desire the nomination. thought that a man who had attained my age ought to desire to pass the remnant of his days in tranquility and retire ment and preparation for his last account Besides, I clearly foresaw that the life or the death of the union might be involved n the present struggle. For these reasons resolved to let events take their course, under Providence, without interference on my part. I await the result without feel ing any personal interest in it, except as it is identified with the preservation of the constitution and the union, No human mind can predict the dreadful const-quences which would result, not only to the people of this country, but of the world, from the dissolution of our confed I feel assured, however, that the Almighty disposer of events, who has be stowed upon us so many blessings, will not abandon us to such a fate. With sen timents of grateful respect I remain, truly JAMES BUCHANAN. P. S .- Should you pass this way I shall be most happy if you will pay me a visit.

Congratulating Jackson on his Religious Conversion. LANCASTER, April 10, 1839. My DEAR GENERAL: Aithough a long distance separates us, and we may never meet again on this side of time, yet my thoughts often dwell upon you, and I con template the evening of your days, which may Heaven prolong, with calm and unalloyed pleasure. Should you be spared a very few years, you will live to witness the inevitable and just award of posterity upon your public conduct. Already the selfish passions which blinded the judgment of your former revilers have sensibly subsided, and ere long the almost unanimous voice of a great and free people will do you justice.

I had anticipated with heartfelt pleasure a visit to the Hermitage during the pre-sent spring. Indeed, I had made every arrangement to go to the Southwest at the end of the last session, but the death of a beloved sister a few days before its close caused me to abandon my purpose. I still cherish a hope that we may yet meet again on eart'. Although not a member of any cac. : myself, yet I was gratified of the example, that you had borne a pub ic testimony to the truth and power of eligion. It can alone convert the inevita ble ills attendant upon humanity into positive blessings, and thus wean us from this world, and make death itself the portal to another and a batter state of exstence.

How He Obtained the English Mission Buchanau's nomination to the court of St. James, and his almost immediate con firmation by the Senate was brought about in the course of an exciting state of events. The 4th of March was near at hand, and President Pierce had to nominate a minis-ter to England. At 3 o'eleck in the morning the door bell of the house of Hon, Richard Brodhead, then United States senator, was pulled vigorously. The sen-ator, looking out of the window, beheld the graceful form of Jefferson Davis, then secretary of war, who was, of course, ad mitted. Mr. Brodhead had married a niece of Mr. Davis, and the secretary of war was supposed to have special influ ence with the senator. Mr. Davis stated that the cabinet had been in session all night and it had just been determined to ne minate James Buchanan as minister to the court of St. James. He had consented to accept the mission, provided he was first confirmed by the Senate, which was about to adjourn, by experation of time Should any senator object, the nomination must lie over, and the appointment must fail. It was feared that Sena tor Brodbead would object and hence this untimely visit of Mr. Davis to Mr Brodhead, to secure a promise that he would not object. Mr. Buchanan and Mr. Brodhead, though belonging to the same great party, were not on friendly terms the senator alleging that when he was candidate for senator Mr. Buchanan bad pledged his support, in a letter, and that he secretly worked for the election of another. At first the senator answered the secretary of war that he would most cer tainly object to the confirmation of Mr. Buchanan, and the wordy contest was kept up until broad daylight. Finally, President Pierce appealed to the senator on personal grounds, and the matter was arranged that Senator Brodhead should absent himself from his seat in the Senate when the nomination of Buchanan was presented, so that his silence might not be construct into acquiescense. The nomination was confirmed. Mr. Buchanan was absent from the country at the most exciting political times, and, escaping political quarrels, he was deemed the most available candidate and secured the presidential nomination and election. It will here be seen that President Pierce, Jefferson Davis and Richard Brodhead were to a great extent responsible for making James Buch anon president of the United States.

CAPTURING AN ENGINE. Locomotive That Had Heen Seized Stoler

After a Hard Fight. A few hours before the failure of Bradley Bradley Barlow and the Southeastern railroad was announced a stranger on the Canada side of the line hired a special train to convey bim to Newport, Vt. He plead urgent private business and paid sixty dollars for the ride, but on arrival there the locemotive was at once attached by a deputy sacriff in the interest of the special passenger, who proved to be a creditor, who had resorted to this ruse to get security for his claim. It was necessary for Sheriff Sowley to keep close watch of the engine for fear of its being recaptured by the southern men, and for that purpose he has kept a man on it through the day and had men sleeping in the cabin at night. Eugene Bowley, the sheriff's son, and a man by the name of Fleming were asleep upon the engine last night, when they were awakened about 2 o'clock by an en gine passing. A titter Wage War Probable. At Pittsburgh there is every prospect of a protracted and bitter wage war between the window glass workers and the manu-facturers. John O'Leary, secretary of the Western window glass manufacturer's association, has arrived from Chicago and says: "We will fight the blowers to the end, if our factories shut down till eternity. The reduction that we propose does not amount to more than five per cent., while the changes in the tariff have reduced the duty on glass 25 cents per hundred feet. We understand that it was their intention to ask that all distinctions in reference to quality be abolished; in other words, that we be made to pay as much for second rate glass as we do for the best. We will not do it." The blowers say they will await developments.

Immediately after sommitting the murder Smith escaped to Mississippi but was captured and brought back. He was tried by a jury of his own race at the October term of the district court in 1875, was convicted of murder and sentenced to be hanged. Soon after his conviction he broke jail and remained at large until June last, when he was arrested at Vicksburg and brought back. Since his last incarceration he has made several attempts to break jail, succeeding at one time in making his way for a distance of half a mile before being cap

"I can't tell you how, but Parker's Tonic cured me. That was three years ago. I'm lively as a cricket now, sir, and go my business rounds every day, rain or shine. You may tell this to all the world, and refer the doubte's to me,"

This preparation, which has been known as Parker's Girker Tonic, will be called simply Parker's Tonic. This change is made for two reasons: first, because girger is an unityportant flavoring ingredient, and secondly, because unprincipled dealers deceive scir customers by substituting inferior preparations under the name af ginger.

There is no change, however, in the preparation itself, and all bottles remaining in the hands of dealers, wrappes under the name of Parker's Girker Tonic, sont an the genuine medicine if the fac-sirdie signature of lissox & Co, is at the bottley of the outside wrapper. toes urned up to the roots of the dalsies.
