The Coming Inter-State.

The coming inter-state association may not be an inter state but the exclusively confined to Pensylvania. Lancaster is anxious to take a place in the list, the manager coming to this city, Saturday, with the intention of engaging Authracite players if possible. An offer was made to Barney McLaughlin and Holland, the third baseman, but both men stated that they were not in the market at present It was given out the same day that Manager Myers takes the Lancaster club in hand next year and had been engaged by the stockholders' representative here for that purpose. Shetzline will likely go with Myers, though Taunton, Massachusetts, is after him. Newark, New Jersey takes the place of Brooklyn, which club along with growler Greer goes in the union league and that leaves New York out entirely. There is no knowledge as to Reading, the Active nine probably disbanding for good, as a new organization is now perfecting there under, it is said. Ben Fleischman's direction. There was talk of the Active being removed almost entirely to Albany, N. Y., which city wants to go in the union league. Pottsvile will have a club run by T. B. Fielders, who has the credit of having broken up the present Authracites. In case the inter-state does not hold, and there is no sign that it will not then a Pennsylvania association will certainly be effected. This will take in Har risburg, Lancaster, Reading, Pottsville, Seranton, Altoona and Johnstown.-Har rishing Patriot.

COLUMBIA NEWS.

From Our Kegular Correspondent. The regular meeting of council was held on Friday evening. Members all present but Mr. Hardman. Minutes of last stated meeting and of a special meeting read and approved. Finance committee reported a balance of $7,933.44 in the treasury. The property committee recommended the immediate appointment of an assistant stage carpenter for the opera house. The tire committee was instructed to meet committees from the several fire companies and elect a chief director of the fire department for the following year. The road committee reported considerable repair work having been done to various streets. The sanitary way to tease his companious by passing from one to another and pulling their hats committee reported complaints still being made about the cobble stone gutters on Union street. H. Clay Matthews and H. II. Heidler were elected assistant stage carpenters. The borough solicitor reported the payment of $801.85 in settle ment of the suits of the doctors against the borough. An ordinance was presented by Mr. Filbert, which will be acted upon one month hence, providing for the open ing of Second street from Bridge street to Walnut; Chestnut street from Third to Second, and alley G from Third to Second. Council ordered that proposals for coal for the opera house be advertised for. The property committee reported that the opera house tower needed repainting and asked for instructions regarding having the work done. The committee was ordered to ascertain cost for having the same done. A bill for brick furnished the borough by S. H. Purple

Opening of a New Billiard woom.

On Saturday evening the Cline Brothers opened their new billiard room which is the finest ever seen in this city. It is on the second floor of Kepler's new building on North Queen street and over the new postoffice. No better situation could have been selected. The room is very large and it has been furnished with three pool and six billiard tables. New chairs and other furniture and gas fixtures of a new design which have not yet arrived will be put in. Ed. McLaughlin, of Philadelphia, was to have been here on Saturday evening to play the opening game in the room with John Cline, but owing to an accident in which his arm was injured he could not come. He will be here on next Saturday evening, when a fine game may be looked for. His failure to come did not necessitate the postponement of the opening, The rooms were crowded all evening and all present were entertained with cake, wine, &c., by the Messrs. Cline.

BRUTAL HOMICIDE.

KILLED IN A DRUSKEN QUARREL. An Infortated Rowdy Tramps the Life out of His Victim-The Defendant to the County Jail. A terrible tragedy, the results of a drunken spree, occurred about 10 o'clock on Saturday night in the town of Straw burg, seven miles southeast of this city. It caused a painful sensation throughout the usually quiet community in which it occurred, and ever since has been the occasion of great excitement. The parties to the tragedy were well known and all the brutal circumstances attending it have in tensified the popular feeling over it.

There has been for years a beer saloon cept in the first floor of the Massasoit hall building. Sometimes it is well kept and sometimes not. There has always been a division of sentiment in the borough and sometimes a contest in the courts over the licensing of it. It is a place of resort for the young bloods of the town and surrounding country, especially on Saturday night, and their meeting there night before last was the occasion of the tragic occurrence by which one man lost ns life and another now awaits in jail the determination by a court and jury of the grade of his offense.

Millard Fillmore Hilderbrand, who is charged with the death of his associate, is a young man, sen of Jacob Hildebrand, the well known scrivener, surveyor, justice of the peace, and ex burgess of the town. He is not a popular young man and has had the reputation of having an ugly disposition and a tendency to get himselt and other people into trouble. The man whom he killed was named Henry Eshleman. He was about 35 years of age, resided a mile and a half below Strasburg, and had a wife and five children. He was offensive and impertinent when under the influence of liquor; and that he did not always comport himself as a man with a family of five little children should, is shown by the fact that he was roystering around the town at 6 o'clock on Sacunday night

The Fight

It seems that Hildebrand and Eshleman had been drinking pretty freely during the evening and, with others, met in Brua's Massasoit hali beer saloon between nine and ten o'clock. All were enjoying themselves in drunken fashion and when the revelry was at its beight, Eshleman, who was particularly noisy, began in a maudlin down over their eyes. On coming to Hildebrand, the latter, who is easily arous ed and very passionate, threatened Eshle man with violence if he did not desist. The warning was however wasted on him and repeating the offensive act Hilde brand turned upon him, his face aflame with passion, and struck him a powerful blow that knocked him headlong through the open door of the saloon into the street without. The now infuriated man, not satisfied with the effect of the blow, rushed out of the saloon after his drunken victim and there hereely trampled the prostrate man in the regions of his breast and neck, the latter lying quite still and offering no resistance. One hour after the fatal affray had begun. Eshleman breathed his last, The encounter between the two men had taken place with such startling rapidity that none of the eve witnesses to the scene interfered until the unfortunate victim was bruised, but had no bones broken. beyond human aid.

The Defendant Arrested. According to the story of those who are Arm Cut Off.

A tramp named John Smith, from New York, had his left arm crushed beneath the train of engine No. 117, P. R. R., yes—

"Take me story of those who are at left and story of the story of t terday afternoon, while attempting to constable. "Take me down to pop's to J. Bemensderfer, who denies ever haviump on a car near Reading. The mangled limb was amputated at the shoulder joint, the unfortunate man was sent to the Lancaster country hospital. The victim came to this country from Lanchiester England in 1868. He lates are received in the judge has admitted the boy to a limit of the lancaster of the lates are received in the judge has admitted the boy to a limit of the lates of England, in 1868. His latter occupation thousand dollars bail," On this assurance the officer released Hildebrand.

Mr. Hildebrand's father, who was in the city this morning, says he made no such representation to the borough officers. His story is that his sou, being assaulted, only pushed Eshleman out of the door of the saloon and Cowden have returned from a trip to fell upon him. Knowing the consequences of the affair and the popular feeling, as well as the law in the case, he brought his son to town yesterday with a view to delivering him up to the proper officers and having him admitted to bail. Being advised that the county offices were all closed and that the business could not be done he returned to Strasburg; and when Officer Skelton, of the borough, came to the house, he did not even serve the warrant, but went away satisfied with Justice Hildebrand's assurance that his son would not run away.

Meantime the local excitement ran very high in Strasburg, and popular sentiment was very bitter against Hildebrand; it was intensified by the fact that he was not arrested, and the report that Skelton, was afraid to arrest him. H. G. Book esq, deputy coroner, and the justice by whom the warrant that had not been served was issued came to Lancaster obtained process from Alderman Barr and late last night Officers Deichler and Burns went to Strasburg, arrested young Hilds brand and lodged him in jail at 2 a. m this morning.

His counsel, M. Brosius and P. D. Baker, esqs., appeared before court this norning with a view to arranging for a hearing on a habeas corpus and to have him admitted on bail, but as District Attorney Davis was not yet ready for this t was fixed for next Saturday at 9 a. m., Hildebrand meanwhile to remain in jail. It is said by parties who pretend to know that there had been an ill feeling between Hildebrand and the deceased for some time, as they once had a quarrel about a dog. The Inquest and Autopsy. Deputy Coroner, Book yesterday sum moned a jury and held an inquest. Drs. Keneagy, Weaver and Black made an autopsy and it was learned that Eshleman's injuries consisted mainly of a rupture of blood vessels in the breast and death probably ensued from internal hem-orrhages, the result of being trampled Eshleman was originally from Martic township, this county, where he has a brother Benjamin still living. He is a small farmer, with a family, as above related, and owns the place upon which he lived south of Strasburg. On last Satur-day he attended market in this city and when he went to Frank Brua's saloon on Saturday night he was attended by his

AT WASHINGTON.

THINGS AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL The Navy Department Considering Means Which the Greely Explorers may be Relieved-The Corean

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. - Secretary Lincoln, Secretary Chandler and Commodore English held a consultation at the navy department this morning for the purpose of discussing the possibility of relieving the Greely party this fall and the advisa-bility of ordering home the Yantic and the Garlington party. No conclusion was reached, but it is possible that some plan of action will be decided upon before the day is over. After the conference the secretary of war stated that he had seen no reason for changing his mind as to the impracticability of sending a relief expedition this year. Secretary Chandler shortly after the conference sent word to Dr. Bessels, the well known Arctic explorer, that he would like to confer with him upon the state of affairs. The Corean Embassy.

The Corean embassy left Washington at 10:40 this morning for New York, accompanied by Mr. John Davis, 1st assistant secretary of state, and Lieut, Mason and Ensign Faulke, of the navy. They will be presented to the president in New York before continuing their journey to Boston.

A CHRLIE KOSS CASE IN ALABAMA. The Boy Murdered by His Captor—Farmers Hunting the Kidnapper—A Most Dastardly Deed.

Three recent kidnappings by a man named John Ogletree bave exercised Georgia and Alabama as thoroughly as the Charlie Ross case did the North. Wednesday last while James C. White, who lives on a farm in Jackson county, Alabama, was absent from home Ogletree rode up on a horse and induced one of White's young sons to accompany him to a spring half a mile from the house, on the protext that he wanted to herd some cattle.

At the spring Ogletree made the boy a prisoner and hurried away with him. Upon his return home White gathered a posse of farmers and started in pursuit. Saturday Ogletree dashed through Taliapoosa alone at breakneck speed, but, his crime being unknown there, no effort was made to detain him. A few hours later White and his posse of seven rode into the town, in pursuit, and, upon learning how near they were to their game, continued the chase on a gallop without a that the boy was his son and that his injuries were the result of a beating adminis-tered by a negro woman, who hit him on the head with a wagon spoke in retaliation the head with a wagon spoke in retaliation for some trivial cause and left him for dead in the road. The vilagers seemed satisfied with the story, and lighter passed on, as already stated. When he rode through Tallapoosa blood stains were noticed on his clothes, and there is little doubt that, being hard pressed by his pursuers, he murdered the boy after leaving Oak Levee, and hid the body by the road-side.

The boy was only nine years old, was dressed in home made clothes, and had one very sore foot when carried off. The one very sore foot when carried off. The body can, therefore, be very easily identi-fied if found. Ogletree is of a swarthy complexion, a muscular built half-breed of medium height, with a murderous record.

A few weeks ago he threw Atlanta into excitement by abducting Charlie Tilden. The chase became too hot, however, and the boy was recovered. Soon after that escapade he was again frustrated in a similar attempt in Pauiding county, Alabama. The Alabama authorities have offered a reward of $500 for Ogletree's arrest, but there is a prospect of him being overtaken and lynched by White and his companions.
