

Lancaster Intelligencer.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, SEPT. 19, 1883.

THE COWBOYS.

Desperate Affairs—Three Men Killed and Another Wounded.

Five cowboys, all under the influence of liquor, rode into Ute creek, a small village fifty miles east of San Hilario, Col. Don Macdonald Aragon was standing in front of this store in the act of searching for a stray horse. The cowboys requested him to go to the rear of his store and call his clerk. Aragon refused, and the cowboys began to abuse him. Fearing violence Aragon procured a rifle and proceeded on his way in search of his horse. The cowboys rode towards him, and one of them, who was in advance of his compeers, went up to Aragon and took hold of him. When he had obtained possession of Aragon's hand he rode up to it firmly while the remaining cowboys began firing at the merchant with their revolvers. Aragon finally disengaged his hand and sent a bullet from his rifle through one of the cowboys, killing him instantly. He then retreated to a house near by, the cowboys continuing to fire upon him as he ran. After reaching a shelter from the storm of bullets, he sent another bullet into the breast of one of the cowboys, killing him, and then fired again, wounding another of his assailants. By this time Aragon was so weak from loss of blood, he having received four wounds, that he could no longer fire. The remaining cowboys fled into Texas, and are still at large. Aragon lingered for twelve hours, when he died from his wounds.

Another Affray With Cowboys.

J. D. Pruden, mail carrier of Deadwood and Miles City, his stock tender, Jack Harris, and two cow boys while playing cards at Little Missouri last Friday, became involved in a quarrel, when all agreed to settle it by fighting. A man named O'Neill, together with Pruden and Harris, started out in advance, when cowboys began firing, whereupon Harris and Pruden turned and fled, killing one cowboy and fatally wounding the other. They then mounted horses and made for the hills. No arrests have been made.

WHEELMEN.Over One Thousand Bicyclists at Springfield, Mass.

There were no serious accidents at the great bicycle "meet" begun at Springfield, Mass., notwithstanding the presence of considerably over a thousand bicycles. Mr. Stevens, of Millville, N. J., who was entered in the first race for one mile, took a "header" almost at the start, and was prevented from continuing in that race, although he was not seriously hurt. Afterwards he took part in the half-mile race but was not successful. His brother, Mr. Powell, of Philadelphia, who cantered in the tricycle race of one mile, passed the winner, Mr. Stall, of Boston, so closely as to be beaten only a second. Another trial would probably carry the honor of his championship to Philadelphia, as Mr. Powell is a strong, staying rider. An accident occurred on the track after the races were over, in which a rider was thrown from his machine and painfully hurt on the nose, but the damage is not likely to be permanent. The Springfield club, like true Yankees, have made the meet a strict affair of business, as is shown by the admission charge of visiting bicyclists, who help by their presence to make the affair the success it undoubtedly is. There is no open discontent expressed, however.

In small Pox, Scarlet Fever, and Impetigo Darby's Prophylactic Fluid will stop the spread of the infection.

Served, His Honor.

"I have used Brown's Blood Bitters and am happy to say they have done me more good than anything yet. Sent a further quantity at once."—A man was a sufferer from dyspepsia for three years, and was cured by Dr. H. C. Cochran, druggist, 137 and 139 North Queen street, Lancaster, Pa.—Paid $100.

We Challenge the World.

When we say we believe, we have evidence to prove our statement. We have a record decidedly the best Lung Medicine made, to as much as it will cure a common or Chronic Cough, in one-half the time and relieve Asthma, Bronchitis, &c. All and drives away the disease of the lungs. It is a cure of disease and death.

Fever and Ague, Malaria, Taken internally, it cures all diseases.

It cures all diseases.