

Lancaster Intelligencer.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, OCT. 3, 1883.

The Franco-Spanish Imbroglio.

The French have a chronic spite at the Germans, who whipped them, and have vented it on King Alfonso, whom they thought it was safe to insult. The touchy Spaniards resent the insult to their king; and out of this small trap possibly a great tempest may come. Both French and Spaniards are, however, much given to words, and probably they will be content with calling one another names. That France some day will be at war again with Germany is quite certain, and it is likely to happen before very long. The will for war is strong in the French heart, and is only restrained by that prudence which is the better part of valor. The peace of Europe is preserved only by the Frenchman's suspicion that Germany is too strong to be handled carelessly. Spain is quite another affair. It is a safe nation to quarrel with. It is not very chivalrous in the French mood to snarl at Spain because it is afraid to growl at Germany; but mobs are never chivalrous anywhere. The Spanish king who offended the French by accepting a Uhan commission, was abused as no real Uhan colonel would have been. It was safer to maltreat him than to treat disrespectfully a German colonel, though the animus was against the German and not against the Spaniard.

But probably Alfonso is glad that this thing occurred. He is not overly popular at home and his welcome back among his people would have been a good deal colder than it has been if their feelings had not been aroused by the contempt in France. It was not much of an affair to arouse a people, as it was the irresponsible action of a Paris mob, disowned and apologized for by the French government. But it was a good thing to nurse, to arouse the patriotic feeling of the Spaniards and to cause the people to forget the follies of their king in the insult offered to the nation in his person. Alfonso profits by the incident, in the aroused loyalty of his people; and Bismarck and the Germans gain a point not only in unmasking French feeling, but in arousing Spanish hostility to France.

If the French had treated Alfonso disrespectfully, because he is a very poor sort of a king or thing, they might have defended themselves on the current belief that he is not worthy of their respect. Alfonso's wife has run away from him because of his fondness for the Princess Salm Salm, and otherwise made himself very disagreeable to her. The king of Spain is said to be a very poor specimen of a man, as might naturally be expected from his derivation. His race in its later days has been a very bad lot. His mother could not have been expected to give birth to a noble man and he had no better expectations from his sire. Spanish kings and princes for ages have been worthless. The nation that has so long endured proves itself to have a strong stomach for monarchy.

Publishers and Newsdealers.

The metropolitan newspapers have resolved to undertake to teach the news paper publishers that they, the newsdealers, are important factors in determining newspaper circulation and that they are entitled to be consulted when the price of the newspaper is fixed. The New York Herald intently intimates that it cannot see this, and endeavors to persuade the newsdealers that it allows them quite as large a commission for the sale of the Herald as they earn. It is interesting to observe the confidence with which the newsdealer claims to control the newspaper, in which he has no property and with which he has no connection except as he buys it and serves it to the newspaper reader. Obviously the news paper must get to the reader to make its publication satisfactory to the owner. The newsdealer, controlling the avenues to the reader, commands the situation. The only way to defeat them is by flanking their position and creating a new body of agents to furnish the reader to the paper. As the old agents are a respectable army in numbers, controlling the places where the readers are accustomed to seek their journals, and acquainted with the residences of those who have them carried to their homes, it is clearly a matter of no little difficulty, to say nothing of the expense, to supplant the newsdealers, who talk so boldly and saucily to the newspapers. The Herald, being a journal of resources and courage, can probably make the fight successfully to attain its independence; but weaker journals would have no chance at all in the contest. The lesson taught to the metropolitan press is clear enough. The newspaper owner who wants to control his business and to own his paper in fact as well as name, will hasten to serve it himself to his readers; he will have their addresses and daily know in what houses his paper is to be distributed. Old fashioned ways often turn out to be better in the end than new styles of doing business; and it is just as dangerous to wholesale a newspaper as it is to sell goods of any other kind to a limited number of customers. A very good saying it is which forbids you to put all your eggs in one basket.

My Mr. Blaine Leased His House.

Mr. Blaine's action in leasing his immense and overgrown mansion in Washington has caused much gossip concerning its meaning, the burden of which has been that it was a political device. He is said to fear the effect of such a house, with the fatal political results of Washington mansions in the cases of Winwood and Robeson staring him in the face, having concluded that politics in a cottage is next door to love in a cottage, so far as happiness and attractiveness to the public are concerned. It is not probable that considerations growing out of his candidacy have had much influence in the premises. The simple truth is that Mr. Blaine's resources for making money were reduced or almost entirely cut off when he was forced out of office. He has never made a dollar except by and through his connection with politics. When he was in power everything was fish that came

KING ALFONSO.

ALL SPAIN BOISTEROUSLY AROUSED.

At the end of the sixth round the referee stepped in to end the contest. The spectators insisted on another and the men again came together. Sheriff did some heavy work on Mitchell's head with both hands until one of Mitchell's stomach blows out his hand. This wound the fight, which was the disappointment of the crowd. It lasted thirty minutes, and the referee decided that this was a draw. Neither of them appeared to have been much punished.

The monthly statement of State Treasurer Baily shows the following to have been the condition of the general fund Tuesday: Allegheny national bank, Pittsburg, $230,000; Exchange bank, Bradford, $10,000; Exchange bank, Franklin, $60,000; Farmers' bank, Harrisburg, $66,393.14; Farmers and Merchants' national bank Philadelphia, $232,132.02; Fifth national bank, Pittsburg, $40,000; First national bank, Harrisburg, $158,000; First national bank, Altoona, $10,000; Freehold bank, Pittsburg, $100,000; National bank Philadelphia, $100,000; Manufacturers' national bank, Philadelphia, $25,000; Masonic bank, Pittsburg, $50,000; Merchant and Manufacturers' national bank, Pittsburg, $100,000; Mechanics' bank, Harrisburg, $75,000; National bank, Middletown, $40,000; National bank of Fayette county, $50,000; National bank of Commerce, Pittsburg, $100,000; Penn bank, Pittsburg, $40,000; Peoples' bank, Philadelphia, $100,000; Townsend, Wheelers & Co., Philadelphia, $100,000; Advances to employes, salaries and cash items, $4,270.78; total amount in general fund, $1,780,803.44.

The Weather.

From four to four inches of snow fell in Northern New Hampshire and Vermont yesterday afternoon. At Johnstown, Vermont, the apples and the telegraph poles were damaged by the weight of the snow. A violent wind and rain storm prevailed yesterday afternoon in the country around Petersburg, Virginia. Trees, fences and telegraph poles were blown down. The steamer Resolute, of the New England transportation company, bound for New Haven, lost her whole lot of eleven boats of Merwin's Point in the storm yesterday morning. A heavy land slide on the West Shore railroad, opposite South Ferris, yesterday afternoon, covered both tracks with rocks and dirt, and caused a detention of trains in both directions. It was caused by heavy rains.

FEATURES OF THE STATE PRESS.

Eric will soon have another morning daily with Colonel Plum as its managing editor.

Mr. George Welshons, now of the Pittsburg Dispatch, will soon take the helm of the Pittsburg Telegraph.

The Philadelphia Inquirer observes that economy is being applied quite rationally in the conduct of affairs in Europe just now.

The Hazleton Plain-Speaker notes that louder upon the Pennsylvania winds swells the increasing chorus "The treasury ring must go."

The Scranton Republican objects to runaway matches and thinks that a suitable penalty should be inflicted upon those who officiate at marriages of persons in their teens.

The Pittsburg Telegraph remarks that with all their crime, squar, poverty, friction and excitement of life, it still remains true that cities are the organizing centres of all great public works.

The Wilkesbarre Union Leader celebrates its fifth anniversary by adding another column to each page of the paper. This striking proof of its prosperity will be good news to all who desire to see the cause of elevated journalism prosper.

Ex State Senator George W. Wright, of Mercer, George Pearson, of the same place, reading clerk of the Senate and secretary of the Republican state committee, and E. W. Smiley, of the Venango Cities, journal clerk of the Senate, have bought the Harrisburg Telegraph.

PERSONAL.

BETTER is said to be a practical Bible critic.

JUDGE JASON DOWNER, of Milwaukee, has given $10,000 to Dartmouth College.

DEWEY L. MOODY and Ira D. Sankey sailed for Alaska yesterday for Liverpool.

Mrs. COHNWALLS WEST, the English beauty, is about to visit her brother-in-law, the British minister at Washington.

Bismarck is superstitious. He will take no important steps on Friday, as he lives in astrology, and has predicted the day and hour of his own death.

Mr. Rev. Bishop O'HARA left Rome this morning to participate in the Vatican conference to be held next month. He will represent the archdiocese of Philadelphia.

GENERAL GEORGE W. GETTY, commanding the artillery school at Fortress Monroe, was yesterday placed on the retired list, he having reached the age of 64 years.

REV. J. B. SOULE, of Colerain township, this county, delivered an address at the laying of the corner stone of the new Baptist church at Delta, York county, on Saturday last.

GENERAL HANCOCK is improving. A dispatch from Governor's Island says: "The general's wound is doing well, discharging freely. His appetite is excellent and there is no fever nor depression."

EDDIE HOADLY spoke in Cleveland on Monday night and was somewhat exhausted yesterday, but he expects to be able to speak in Sandusky to-night, and also to make other speeches during the last week on the campaign.

LORD COLERIDGE made a happy allusion to the war of the revolution when he said at the Louis banquet a few evenings ago: "Like other mothers, England suffered many pangs and much sorrow at the birth of her child, but now all these have passed away. She remembereth no more the sorrow for the joy and the pride with which she brought forth."

HON. SAMUEL S. COX was in 1853-54 an editor and writer for the Columbus Statesman: "It was late in the afternoon, and the sun was just dipping below the horizon. Suddenly Cox rushed into the room. 'Boys,' he said, 'do you see that sunset?' 'The most beautiful thing I ever saw.' And, seizing some paper from the evening press and leaning over the composing stone, he wrote the famous pen picture that gave him the life-long sobriquet of 'Sunset' Cox. The article was taken by the comic posturers and put in type piece by piece, as it appeared in that evening's number of the paper."

Nothing Without License. Wm. Westhafer, charged with selling beer without license at the late independent state fair, on complaint of S. K. Alderman Spurrier, who had before a hearing and entered bail to answer at court.

THE GUILLOTINE.

A MOST BRUTAL MURDERER PUNISHED.

Many Meets His Death in Versailles—A Grim Legacy to President Grevy.

The man Huoy who was convicted, of having murdered, with a revolver, an old lady and her maid at Bourdan, France, last April, and of having stolen her silver plates and clocks, was guillotined Monday morning at Versailles. M. Diebler, Leveur de la Vieillesse, was the public executioner called—aroused Huoy in his cell at 4 o'clock in the morning, saying: "Huoy, we have received some bad news, and we must go to the guillotine."

He shrugged his shoulders with indifference and observed: "What is it to be this morning? Very good."

The prisoner refused to eat his breakfast and declined to take the proffered consolation of a priest, M. L. Abbe Charbet. Huoy asked for a pen, ink and paper, which were given him. The Abbe Charbet, again advancing to offer his services, Huoy again roughly pushed him aside and proceeded to write a letter. The first was to his brother and read as follows: "My Dear Brother: Gather together all my effects, with eight francs that you will find tied up in one of my stockings, and make a present of them to the first really poor man that you may happen to meet."

The second letter was addressed to the president of the republic, conceived as follows: "Eighteen dead bodies are buried in a cellar at the corner of the Rue Des Journaliers and the Rue De Versailles. He who is about to die does not die. The condemned man, who is near eight feet tall, then gave his silver spectacles and a pair of buckled shoes to one of his jailers, who, by a coincidence, is also near eight feet tall. Half past five the prisoner was put into the guillotine cart and driven to the Pont Calbert, where the guillotine had been erected. He stepped out of the cart pale but plucky."

The Abbe Charbet again offered his consolation and held toward him a crucifix, but Huoy persisted in his refusal to have anything to do with the abbe, and declined to kiss the crucifix, making some coarse remark about it, after which he said "Adieu."

Huoy was a thick-set, robust man, fifty-five years of age, with a pepper and salt beard, wiry and bristly; in fact, the typical beard of a banished deux fois France. He wore a brown Corduroy suit and coat, and when the coat was removed on the scaffold he stood in a blue and white striped shirt. The prisoner accompanied Huoy to the guillotine, and, stepping in front of the condemned man, seized his gray, bushy hair in both hands and pulled with all his strength to compel the prisoner to advance his head under the axe. There was a moment's breathless hesitation, then suddenly M. Diebler pressed simultaneously the button of the guillotine and the button of the axe drop. The prisoner's head rolled into the wooden bucket half filled with sawdust, and the body fell into the basket. The operation lasted exactly two minutes and thirty seconds. It was a cold, cloudy, windy day, and only 800 spectators were present, the majority of whom were women and young girls. One little boy, accompanied by his mother, who had been in the possession of the guillotine, his father explaining the details. A journalist remonstrated, but the father replied: "It is very necessary that children should be taught."

Huoy came out of a good criminal stock. When eighteen years old he and his father were both sentenced to the galleys for five years hard labor for coming false money. His grandfather was a highwayman.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Event Near and Across the County Lines. Benjamen Wilson, an aged negro, committed suicide in Harrisburg on Monday by shooting himself.

The Ninety-third Pennsylvania regiment will hold a reunion at Norristown on the 24th instant.

Fairs were opened yesterday at the following places: Altoona, Reading, Doylestown, Nazareth and Lehighton.

Reading's delicate irony: Last evening the opera house ice water was served to the audience between acts by ushers.

Two hundred descendants of John and Sarah Nee had a reunion near Milestown, Bucks county, recently, prior to the old prisoner, settled upon by John Nee in 1878, passing out of the family by sale.

Two prisoners at the York county jail, named Hyerts and Koehnen, made an attempt to break jail on Monday night by cutting a hole through the wall of their cell. They were however discovered in time to prevent their escape.

An unknown man on a moving train fired a shot from a revolver into a crowd at Oxford, Chester county, on Friday night, and inflicted a flesh wound upon Joseph Mack, of West Nottingham township.

Frank Graber and Miss Kate Katz, both of Norristown, were married on Monday, and left immediately for the far West. Their departure was accelerated by the threat of a young lady in Gwynedd to have the groom arrested if he did not keep his home as a married man.

THE GUILLOTINE.

A MOST BRUTAL MURDERER PUNISHED.

Many Meets His Death in Versailles—A Grim Legacy to President Grevy.

The man Huoy who was convicted, of having murdered, with a revolver, an old lady and her maid at Bourdan, France, last April, and of having stolen her silver plates and clocks, was guillotined Monday morning at Versailles. M. Diebler, Leveur de la Vieillesse, was the public executioner called—aroused Huoy in his cell at 4 o'clock in the morning, saying: "Huoy, we have received some bad news, and we must go to the guillotine."

He shrugged his shoulders with indifference and observed: "What is it to be this morning? Very good."

The prisoner refused to eat his breakfast and declined to take the proffered consolation of a priest, M. L. Abbe Charbet. Huoy asked for a pen, ink and paper, which were given him. The Abbe Charbet, again advancing to offer his services, Huoy again roughly pushed him aside and proceeded to write a letter. The first was to his brother and read as follows: "My Dear Brother: Gather together all my effects, with eight francs that you will find tied up in one of my stockings, and make a present of them to the first really poor man that you may happen to meet."

The second letter was addressed to the president of the republic, conceived as follows: "Eighteen dead bodies are buried in a cellar at the corner of the Rue Des Journaliers and the Rue De Versailles. He who is about to die does not die. The condemned man, who is near eight feet tall, then gave his silver spectacles and a pair of buckled shoes to one of his jailers, who, by a coincidence, is also near eight feet tall. Half past five the prisoner was put into the guillotine cart and driven to the Pont Calbert, where the guillotine had been erected. He stepped out of the cart pale but plucky."

The Abbe Charbet again offered his consolation and held toward him a crucifix, but Huoy persisted in his refusal to have anything to do with the abbe, and declined to kiss the crucifix, making some coarse remark about it, after which he said "Adieu."

Huoy was a thick-set, robust man, fifty-five years of age, with a pepper and salt beard, wiry and bristly; in fact, the typical beard of a banished deux fois France. He wore a brown Corduroy suit and coat, and when the coat was removed on the scaffold he stood in a blue and white striped shirt. The prisoner accompanied Huoy to the guillotine, and, stepping in front of the condemned man, seized his gray, bushy hair in both hands and pulled with all his strength to compel the prisoner to advance his head under the axe. There was a moment's breathless hesitation, then suddenly M. Diebler pressed simultaneously the button of the guillotine and the button of the axe drop. The prisoner's head rolled into the wooden bucket half filled with sawdust, and the body fell into the basket. The operation lasted exactly two minutes and thirty seconds. It was a cold, cloudy, windy day, and only 800 spectators were present, the majority of whom were women and young girls. One little boy, accompanied by his mother, who had been in the possession of the guillotine, his father explaining the details. A journalist remonstrated, but the father replied: "It is very necessary that children should be taught."

Huoy came out of a good criminal stock. When eighteen years old he and his father were both sentenced to the galleys for five years hard labor for coming false money. His grandfather was a highwayman.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Event Near and Across the County Lines. Benjamen Wilson, an aged negro, committed suicide in Harrisburg on Monday by shooting himself.

The Ninety-third Pennsylvania regiment will hold a reunion at Norristown on the 24th instant.

Fairs were opened yesterday at the following places: Altoona, Reading, Doylestown, Nazareth and Lehighton.

Reading's delicate irony: Last evening the opera house ice water was served to the audience between acts by ushers.

Two hundred descendants of John and Sarah Nee had a reunion near Milestown, Bucks county, recently, prior to the old prisoner, settled upon by John Nee in 1878, passing out of the family by sale.

Two prisoners at the York county jail, named Hyerts and Koehnen, made an attempt to break jail on Monday night by cutting a hole through the wall of their cell. They were however discovered in time to prevent their escape.

An unknown man on a moving train fired a shot from a revolver into a crowd at Oxford, Chester county, on Friday night, and inflicted a flesh wound upon Joseph Mack, of West Nottingham township.

Frank Graber and Miss Kate Katz, both of Norristown, were married on Monday, and left immediately for the far West. Their departure was accelerated by the threat of a young lady in Gwynedd to have the groom arrested if he did not keep his home as a married man.

EPISCOPAL CONVENTION.

The Gathering of Clerical and Lay Delegates.

The general convention of the Protestant Episcopal church in the United States which held its opening session this morning in Christ church, Philadelphia, was composed of some of the most distinguished clergymen in America. Every train arriving in the city for the past two days has brought bishops and clerical and lay delegates from the several dioceses of the country. The bishops who had reached the city up to last night were: Right Rev. Gregory Thurston Bell, D. D., third bishop of Ohio; Right Rev. Charles Clifton Penick, D. D., the third missionary bishop of Cape Palmas and parts adjacent in West Africa; Right Rev. Basil A. Minn Lowthorpe Smith, S. T. D., LL. D., the first bishop of Kentucky; Right Rev. Henry Champlin Lay, S. T. D., LL. D., the first bishop of East Tennessee; Right Rev. Thomas Hubbard Vail, bishop of Kansas; Right Rev. John H. Smith, bishop of New York; and Right Rev. Thomas March Clark, S. T. D., LL. D., second bishop of Rhode Island, who preached the opening sermon. Pennsylvania and neighboring states will be represented by a prominent and able body of men. The delegation of this diocese is as follows:

Clerical—Revs. W. D. Leverett, Carlisle; Cyrus F. Knight, D. D., Lancaster; William P. Orick, D. D., Reading; Henry L. Jones, Wilkesbarre; Lay—Robert A. Lamberton, LL. D., South Bethlehem; Henry Coppee, LL. D., South Bethlehem; John L. Atlee, M. D., LL. D., Lancaster; Peter Baily, Danville.

The ceremonies in Christ church to-day were inaugurated with a procession of the clergy into the sanctuary in this order: The sextons of the church and chapel in verges' gowns, the secretaries of the convention, the officiating and visiting clergy and the bishops in the order of their consecration. Rev. John H. Smith, bishop of New Brunswick and Metropolitan of Canada, and Rev. J. B. L. Lough, Vicar general of Bermuda, were expected to be present.

Among the important matters that will engage the convention is a proposition to form an organization within the church for the colored people of the South, granting ordinations to colored men and providing bishops for their own race. There will be one representative of the race in the convention, to be elected by the laymen. Another subject that will come up will be the one of a readjustment of representation, so that some dioceses will have a larger number of delegates than others proportionate to their importance.

DIVING ACCIDENT.

A Lady Injured and Wagon Wrecked. This morning about 4 o'clock, as Andrew Shaubach and wife, who reside on the Beaver Valley turnpike not far from Refton, were driving on South Queen street near German, on their way to market, a wagon loaded in marketing their horse shoe and running upon a pile of dirt in front of the residence of George B. Schaum, upset the wagon and threw out both Mr. and Mrs. Shaubach. Luckily the top of the wagon broke off and thus the horse and driver were saved. The runaway horse which continued its flight along South Queen street. The body of the wagon was crushed against the pile of brick and stone in front of Engle's new building, and the horse with the running gear, ran on and was killed. The runaway horse which continued its flight along South Queen street. The body of the wagon was crushed against the pile of brick and stone in front of Engle's new building, and the horse with the running gear, ran on and was killed. The runaway horse which continued its flight along South Queen street. The body of the wagon was crushed against the pile of brick and stone in front of Engle's new building, and the horse with the running gear, ran on and was killed.

The citizens band was out serenading last evening. The boys need help and should receive it liberally. Like all new organizations it is a little shaky in a financial sense, and requires some very energetic bolstering in the shape of contributions.

PERSONAL. Mr. Paul H. Bietz is laid up with malaria.

Miss Alice Michael has returned from Philadelphia, where she has been making an extended visit.

Mr. John Vaughn, of Baltimore, a temporary resident of this place, left to-day for a visit to a sister residing in Reading.

Miss Anna, a young lady, who was returned to their home in Altoona. They had been visiting Miss Maggie Ziegler for some time past.

Mr. F. S. Given, of Philadelphia, who has been visiting his brother, Wm. B. Given, esq., here, has returned to his home at Mt. Joy social event.

The largest social event of the season at Mt. Joy, was a birthday surprise party which was held last night at the residence of Mr. Christian Shearick, in honor of his daughter, Anna, a very young lady. About 75 guests were present. The refreshments were of the most elegant character. Social games and amusements of various kinds were indulged in, and the lovers of the dance were furnished with abundant opportunity of gratifying their tastes. The party continued until 2 o'clock in the morning.

A NOTED HORSE THIEF CAPTURED. A letter from a man who has been dealing in Cheap Horses.

Later yesterday morning a fireman, Clemons, a notorious horse thief, was arrested at the Nine Points, in Bart township. Clemons is a son of Amos Clemons, the leader of the notorious "Gap gang," which flourished years ago. He has not lived that neighborhood for many years, but he has been in the habit of returning to his home in Altoona. They had been visiting Miss Maggie Ziegler for some time past.

Mr. F. S. Given, of Philadelphia, who has been visiting his brother, Wm. B. Given, esq., here, has returned to his home at Mt. Joy social event.

The largest social event of the season at Mt. Joy, was a birthday surprise party which was held last night at the residence of Mr. Christian Shearick, in honor of his daughter, Anna, a very young lady. About 75 guests were present. The refreshments were of the most elegant character. Social games and amusements of various kinds were indulged in, and the lovers of the dance were furnished with abundant opportunity of gratifying their tastes. The party continued until 2 o'clock in the morning.

A Concert in Paradise. A Paradise correspondent says of a recent concert held here.

During the past summer Mr. A. K. Wimer erected a fine two story building, 90 feet long by 30 feet wide. The upper story is used for a school which is now in full operation with Miss E. M. Clemens, of Lancaster, as principal, and Miss Frisco, of Pittsburg, as teacher.

The lower story is to be used as a public hall and has been fitted up regardless of expense. It is one of the finest halls in the county, and was dedicated on Friday, Sept. 28th, with a grand musicale under the management of the old folks to this place. The orchestra was composed of students who have been playing their instruments less than a year, but certainly do themselves great credit. The duets, "Norma" by Helmi and "Cousins" by Glover, were rendered in a very fine style by Mrs. J. C. Van Norstrand and Mrs. A. E. Witmer. The solos entitled "Robert Le Diable" by Meyerbeer, and the "Vagabond" by Campbell were rendered by Mrs. Van Norstrand and Wm. Hedenborg, with almost professional accuracy, and with a treat in the shape of a violin and piano duo by Master Charles Witmer, aged ten years, and Miss Gussie Witmer, aged eight years. The last were the choruses by a church choir from your city under the direction of Prof. J. H. Kevinski who very kindly came to assist in the occasion and contributed their full share toward the evening's entertainment. We must say that Paradise has never been favored by anything half so pleasing and all the participants deserve great credit.

List of Unclaimed Letters. The following is a list of letters remaining in the postoffice for the week ending Monday, October 1, 1883.

Ladies List—Mrs. O. Eshleman, Mrs. G. Gaylord, Mrs. S. B. Irwin, Mrs. Hugh Kennedy, Mrs. Mina Klemm, Maria Laferty, Miss Rinda Lutes, Miss Margery McDonald, Miss Katie Troy, Miss Ada Wm. Miss Estelle Woodard.

Gent's List—Emanuel Astor, Benj. F. Bleacher, Peter Bruner, John D. Brubaker, Geo. Coiscose, Isaac Eshelman, Wm. F. Fenninger, Frank Guhrin, B. L. Holcomb, Lieut. Chas. P. Kachel, Andrew Karl, H. Lorenz, Geo. A. Denny, Monac, Frank Miller, D. A. Post & Sons, Lewis Fetters, Christ Rauscher, (for.), J. B. Russel, Jno. Sentman, Simon M. Sechrist, Benj. Smith, Eniel Soudwick, Wm. Walker, A. B. Welch.

Amateur "Fire-Work." Prof. Chris. Burger and H. L. Hartmeyer, who are conducting the preparations for bringing out the opera "Pinafore" by home talent, have secured the costumes for the occasion. They are exceedingly handsome. A rehearsal of the ladies and gentlemen will take place Thursday evening in the second story of the opera house.

In Town. Arthur Johnson, an actor who is well known in this city, several years ago he resided in this city for almost a whole winter performing at Frank's winter garden with James Radcliffe, who was then his partner. Since then he has been in this city upon several occasions with different tent and hall shows. He is now a member of the firm of Harrington & Johnston.

Will Be Held. The Christiansa machine company, whose shops were burned on Monday morning, last, announce that they will rebuild the shops, and that they hope to have them up without great delay. During the time occupied in rebuilding, neighboring shops will lend them assistance.

The Berks county fair opened under very auspicious circumstances yesterday. There is a large number of exhibits and the attendance yesterday was large. George Meigs, who was in charge of the fair, of Lancaster, who are larger than the five mile bicycle race, arrived this morning, but subsequently left when they learned that the race was postponed.

COLUMBIA NEWS.

ORIGINS OF THE SUBSEQUENCE—ITEMS OF INTEREST IN AND AROUND THE TOWN.

Orion lodge of Odd Fellows meets to-night. St. John's Lutheran sewing society held a meeting at Mrs. Julia Leaman's, on Locust street, last evening. The Cordelia furnace will be "blown in" within the next two weeks. Orders for ore for its use have already been given.

A large dancing party will be held in Central Hall, Marietta, to-night. A number of Columbians have received invitations to it.

"Squire" Walton yesterday sent to the county all three men who have been arrested by officers of the Pennsylvania railroad for train jumping.

Engine No. 526, of the P. R. R., broke down yesterday in the west yards. It was just starting out on a trial trip after receiving a overhaul in the shops here. It has again been shopped for repairs.

A canal boatman was injured about the face by falling over a raised collar entrance below Snyder's saddlery. These raised collar doors on pavements are nuisances and should be replaced by those lying even with the pavement.

The special 8:30 a. m. train over the Frederick railroad, which will be run during the continuance of the York county fair, has been delayed this morning.

Gas pipes are being all through the Keely stove works, to enable the workmen to do night work. The press of business is so heavy that this action is necessary.

During the absence from town of Mr. Thomas Smith, the freight operator, the west yard dispatching office, Mr. Marshall Smith is filling that position.

Deputy Chief Sashem Byron J. Brown, of Lancaster, having announced his inability to make the installation of the new officers of the "Hippocampus" club, the next night that ceremony is postponed until next Tuesday evening, when he will be present.

A little colored boy narrowly escaped being struck on the head by the heavy sign of the Herald printing office, which sign he was carrying on his back this morning. The thickest kind of a skull would have been cracked by a blow from such a heavy object.

"Young Mrs. Wintrop," by the Madison Square theatre company, has been billed for the evening of the 20th. These companies are Columbia's favorites.

A large birthday party was given by Mr. Kinzer Haughey at his home on North Second street, last evening. The host received a number of handsome birthday presents.

All of the Frederick railroad passenger trains now have extra cars attached, rendered necessary by travel of persons attending the fair at York.

Gen. Welch Post of the G. A. R., did his best to make his appearance at the new post room not having been finished. A meeting will be held there next Tuesday evening, beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

A large and pleasant surprise party was given by the friends of Miss Adie Yeager last evening at her home on Locust street, on the Lancaster turnpike, last evening.

The citizens band was out serenading last evening. The boys need help and should receive it liberally. Like all new organizations it is a little shaky in a financial sense, and requires some very energetic bolstering in the shape of contributions.

PERSONAL. Mr. Paul H. Bietz is laid up with malaria.

Miss Alice Michael has returned from Philadelphia, where she has been making an extended visit.

Mr. John Vaughn, of Baltimore, a temporary resident of this place, left to-day for a visit to a sister residing in Reading.

Miss Anna, a young lady, who was returned to their home in Altoona. They had been visiting Miss Maggie Ziegler for some time past.

Mr. F. S. Given, of Philadelphia, who has been visiting his brother, Wm. B. Given, esq., here, has returned to his home at Mt. Joy social event.

The largest social event of the season at