IN LUTHER'S HONOR.

Christendom Pays Tribute to the treat Reformer-A Half-Million Children's

Hongs. The celebration of the four bundredth anniversary of Martin Luther's birthday, throughout the Protestant world, reached its climax on Saturday, in Eisleben, the place of his nativity. At daybreak the chimes of the church of St. Peter and St. Paul, where Luther was baptised, and of the church of St. Andrew, where Luther used to roar and thunder, pealed forth their gay carols, and soon afterward the schools of Eisleben resounded with the solemn swelling strains of Luther's hymn, "Ein Feste Burg ist Unser Gott," in toned by over 40,000 human voices, mingled with the drums and trumpets of half a dozen military bands. The scene was most impressive and symbolical of the solemnity, force and earnestness of the German people. Every house in Eisleben was literally covered with evergreen wreaths, festoons, miniature flags, Chinese lanterns and crys tal reflectors, giving the place the appearance of a forest of Christmas trees, bearing as fruit the portraits of Luther, Kaiser Wilhelm, the Crown Prince, Bismarck and Von Moltke. The streets were strewn with evergreen branches. A special boer, called "Luther beer," was brewed for the occasion. Mottos and texts of Luther, engraved on beer glasses and painted on walls and houses abounded everywhere in Oriental profusion. All classes joined in the celebration. The house of the richest man in Eisleben is magnificently decorated with flags, transparencies and evergreens. Over the front door is a colored portrait of Luther, ten feet square, bearing the celsbrated inscription, "Hier stehe ich, ich kann nicht anders. Gott helfe mir. Amen." [Here I stand. I cannot do otherwise, God help me. Amen. | The house in which Luther was born was covered with evergreens and flags, and the small square windows were filled with lighted candles. The house in which he died, opposite the Church of St. Andrew, was decorated with a single large evergreen cross, there being no other ornament whatever. A Wonderful Medizeval Spectacle. The market place, in the centre of which was Luther's thanksgiving veil in blue and white canvas, presented a sight pos-sible only in Germany. It was like a magnificent representation of a grand spectacular scene in Wagner's "Meister-singer Von Nurnberg." The trades' unions of butchers, bakers, browers, barbers and shoemakers, all clad in madiaval dress, througed the square. Opposite the triumphal arches, the dingy brown of the Gothic Rathhaus formed a thoroughly artistic background. Dozens of heads clustered together at every window look-ing on the market place. Late comers had to pay $50 to $100 for a chair at these precious windows.

At noon the bands again struck up "Em Feste Burg" and the oldest living exburgomaster of Eisleben stepped on the platform and made a long speech, scarcely audible. Then the obschofprediger, Dr. Koegel, pronounced an eloquent address, every word of which penetrated to the remotest corners of the market place. Dr. a powerful voice, was clad in a black robe. amen.

The blue and white canvas was removed clouds that had since 9 o'clock overcast Policy of Insurance Against Accidents the sky and the national authors was sung. The Great Reformer in Person.

In his colossal bronze statue, Lather seemed to have returned with the life like expression to the admiring gaze of the densely packed crowd. Cries of "Hosh," were heard on every side, and the blare of trumpets and the roll of drums resounded way, as well performed as in the Oberam mergau "Passion play." A squadron of Prussian cuirassers on black chargers clad in scarlet and white mediaval uni forms, carried off the palm of the day by their splendid military bearing. The bodies who rode in the procession seemed a little surprised at their own picturesque appearance, and the man who impersonated Luther, and who rode in a dismal looking butcher's cart, drawn by four horses, bore a striking resemblance to the original. The butchers made a first rate appearance as they rode on stout bay horses. They wore drab and crimson costumes, and looked as if they had stepped out of one of Wouvermans' paintings. The Pomp of the Middle Ages Reviveo.

At the head of the procession walked several elegantly caparisoned horses. After them marched a herald with the emblems Saved of the new German empire, followed by a horseman with a kettle drum, the drum mer being clothed in a suit of red and And a Family Made Happy. white, the colors of the counts of Mans-field. He was followed by twelve trump eters, after whom came in blue and white colors, the herald of the city of Eisleben. The burgomaster and his staff, with a crowd of citizens, welcomed the procession, joining it at the gates of the city. The color bearers of the counts of Mans field came next, with some of the noblemen bearing their coats-of-arms, followed by a large crowd of falconers and hunters on horseback and on foot. On a large horse rode the armor bearer of the house of the counts Von Mansfeld, Albracht and Gebhart, with their wives, daughters and the young counts who already were able to master horses. In this part of the procession were seen many garbs made out of brocade or Venetian mantles of silk, velvet suits and robes trimmed with real embroidery of Flan-

And herewith was given a true picture of the lustre and glory of the time of the Renaissance. Everything showed the immense wealth and opulence of the counts of Mansfeld. The prince of Wolfgang, of Anhalt, was welcomed with great favor, riding on a vivacious battle horse, conducted by his banner bearers and marshals of his court. He presented himself as a stately hero, devoted to the noble sport of hunting, and was accompanied by many bunters.

churches, where they attended religious services in honor of the great reformer, whose bust was placed before the altar in each of the edifices. They were presented each with a copy of works on Luther's life. The services began and concluded with the singing of several of Luther's best known hymns, including "Ein Feste Burg." The Emperor William, the Crown Prince, Frederick William, Prince Frederick Charles, the principal general of the army and other distinguished personages were present at the services in the St. Nicholas church. The emperor was received with marked enthusiasm by the throngs of people that lined the streets through which the imperial cortege passed from the palace to the church. The whole city was bedecked with banners and flags. Telegrams received from many other towns in Germany state that they all celebrated the anniversary with great enthusiasm. During the service in the church of St. Mary, Berlin, a woman was killed by a piece of iron fralling from the tower, but the congregation in the church were ignorant of the accident. The Berlin and the Frankfort bourses were closed on account of the festival. In Erfort and Other Towns.

At Erfurt, where Luther first entered the Augustinian monastery in 1501; at Eisenach, where Luther was confined for ten months in the Castle of Wartburg, and at Nordhausen the corner stones of monuments to be erected in honor of the great reformer were laid with ceremonies appropriate to the occasion. In Worms, where Luther was brought before the diet in 1521, a new halle was opened in his honor. The ceremonies were conducted with great splendor and were attended by immeuse crowds of people. At Hamburg the Luther festival was celebrated by the unveiling of a colossal bust of the reformer and a popular fete in the Moorweide. The market square in Bremen has been transformed into a grand festsall for the demonstration in honor of Luther's birth day. In Leipsic a grand monument, commemorative of the reformation, with the statues of Luther and Melancthon upon it, was unveiled in front of St. John's church, with appropriate ceremonies. It is intended to erect a memorial church to the great reformer, the architect of which will be Herr Julius Zeisseig Collections on behalf of this building and likewise for the erection of a Lutheran church to com memorate the Diet of Spires in 1529 have been largely made and liberally responded The latter church will be erected in the city of Spires. The celebration will be continued and the collections likewise. Indeed, at nearly all the meetings the collections have been the leading fea and Women know ere this that of the many diseases and derangements of the body each has a separate cause or origin, and that each needs a different method of treatment in order needs a different method of treatment in order to effect a cure, and a moment's reflection must convince that any of the quack nostrums folsted upon the public claiming to care all of a number of diametrically different diseases must prove failures, even if we do not call them humbugs.

and people of moterate means, and even people well-to-do or wealthy, find that the enor, mous charges of practising physicians are a serious burden to them, and also find that after paying themselves poof that no benefit has accrued to them, that in fact they have thrown their money away. To overcome these evils we ofter Wheeler's No. 36 Sure Remedies to the sick and suffering one Remedy for each disease, without for a moment claiming that one remedy will cure any other disease than the one claimed for it, and as those remedies have stood the test of years without a single failure, we agree to refund the money paid in every instance where a cure is not positively effected. The remedies are entirely vegetable, can do no harm, and will positively cure every disease for which they are prescribed.
