Marshall College-Live Topics Graphionly Treated. The chapel of Franklin and Marshall college was well crowded this morning with an appreciative audience gathered to hear the annual senior orations. After music, "Le Diademe," by the college or chestra, a prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Apple, after which D. F. Ancona, of Reading, Pa., delivered a well-considered salutatory, entitled "Know Thyself." He dwelt on the importance of being thor dwelt on the importance of being ther oughly acquainted with one's self and insisted on the dictum of Pope that "the proper study of mankind is man." J. B. Appel, of Mahopac, N. Y., followed on the "Evils of War," depicting the miscries of war and the benefits of peace. He was in turn succeeded by W. P. Brinton, of this city, who in an elaborate man ner treated of the "Privileges of Genius" claiming for them no exemption from the ordinary laws that govern humanity. Mr. F. C. Cook, of Hagerstown, Md., then delivered a fine oration on "The Influence of Science upon Civilization," drawing a comparison between the Greeian and Roman civilization and that of to day, and

After music, "Iolanthe," by the orchestra, D. E. Eshbach, of Limestoneville, Pa., entertained the audience with a discussion of the 'Iofluence of Prosperity on States-manship," and J. F. Kennard, of Maho-pao, N. Y., followed with a discourse on "Our National Literature," the latter claiming that no nation in so brief a time had secured such a high niche in the litera-ture of the day. F. C. Moyer of Free-burg, Pa., next discussed "Artistic Singasserting that the singer must have the spark of genius within, to enable talent to tructify it. S. M. Miller, of this city, then discoursed on the "Reflections on War," and told in graphic manner how much more are to be prized the victories of assribing much of the latter to the benef-

At this point the orehestra rendered in the style "The Turkish Reveille," after which R. O'Boyle, of this city, spoke on the "Necessity of Education," in an eloquent manner, followed by E. B. Saugree, of Alexandria, Pa., on "Scottish Protestantism," and the influence for good it has had in moulding the religious thought of the day. The oration of E. Sassaman, of Reading, Pa., "A Great Mistake," was devoted to a stinging criticism of the political methods that permit unscrupulous politicians to monopolize the places of power in the government unmolested. O. P. Steckel, of Slatington, Pa., devoted himself in a scholarly manner to the consideration of "Influence of Society Upon Civilization," asserting that the former was essen tial to the existence of the latter.

Then came another musical intermission, "Splinters," by the college orchestra, followed by an admirable address on the "Spirit of Our Nation," by E. Twitmyer, of Zion, Pa. II. P. Wanner, of Reading, Pa., then told in graphic style "The Effects of Monopoly," giving at the same time some interesting views on the strug gle between labor and capital. He advocated the pensioning of laborers by the government in the same manner as dis abled soldiers are cared for. The next orator, C. B. Weaver, of Hellertown, Pa. had his subject, "Did Shakspeare Write Bacon's Work?" in which he ridicaled the assumption made by some critics that either of these great masters of English had written the works of the other. The last orator, G. W. Ziegler, of Lenhartsville. Pa., gave an excellent critical study of "Nathaniel Hawthorne," in which he showed an entire familiarity with the works of that great American writer.

The orchestra then rendered an exquisite that given by the fifteen pieces of the col lege orchestra; under the capable leadership of Prof. Bowman, of Reading. The exercises lasted from 9 until 12 and were exceedingly interesting not only on account of the variety of the subjects treated, but the breadth of comprehension shown in their presentation. The solemn benediction pronounced by Dr. Apple closed what was in all respects an enjoyable literary entertainment.

SOLDIERS' RECNION.

Next One to be Held in New Holland The second annual reunion of the 99th Pa. Vol. Infantry association was held at Donaldson's, corner of Broad and Filbert streets, Philadelphia, Thursday.

Sixty-five members of the regiment were in attendance, and Maj. C. H. Fasnacit, of this city, president of the association, occupied the chair. The other members present from this county were Capt. Abe Setley, Elam Reiter, Peter Winower and Frederick Holtman. Reports from standing committees were received and adopted. Officers for the ensuing years were elected —B. B. Ayers of Wilmington, being chosen president. The next annual bauquet of the association will be held at the public house of Captain Abe Setley, New Holland, Laucaster county, on Saturday the 10th of May, 1884. After the business veterans sat down to a fine collation at

Died in Hanover.

The Hanover Spectator has an account of the recent death in that town of Chas. E. Cremer, youngest brother of Harry W. Cremer, of the Cooper house, this city, who, the Spectator relates, ministered affectionately to his brother to the last. Deceased was a skilled machinist, and had spent a portion of his life in South America, where he was engaged in setting up sugar machines. He was a genial, ac-complished, charitable and popular gentleman.

CLOTHING.

That no man is WELL DRESSED, whose garments, no matter how fine the material, and lashionable the cut, are not artistically fitted to the form or asthetically selected in color, &c., is a fact too well known to be disputed.
