An Irate Justice. Brooklyn Eagle, A funny event occurred in a court of astice in New Lots some years ago. The lagistrate was a very worthy man and is magistrate was a very worthy man and is still living in the enjoyment of the respect of his neighbors. He discharged the duties of his office in a manner that was generally satisfactory, owing to his innate sense of justice and propriety, although a man of limited education. But

One day certain persons were brought before him charged with malicious mischief, and a little law-yer was employed to defend them, who, when intoxicated, was very cantankerous, ill-natured and abusive. It happened that the lawyer, on the day of the trial, had imbibed somewhat freely and appeared in court in a highly inflamed and bellicose mood. The court was itself and believes mood. The court of the ingular satire on the vaunted dignity of the incumbent. It was held in a tin shop, his honor, in the intervals of relaxation from judicial duty, employing himself very worthily at his trade of a tinsmith, from the shop such articles in selling from the shop such articles of his manufacture as were in demand in the neighborhood.

At the appointed hour the case was duly called, and the pugnacious little lawyer answered "ready" for the defendants. In some way a dispute arose about the preliminaries to the trial, which culminated in the little lawyer becoming very much enraged and shricking at the justice who had contradicted him: "You're a liar, sir; you're a liar!" At this the outraged magistrate dropped his pen and looked aghast with astonishment and indignation. Silence that could be felt indicated the eagerness of anticipation with which the witnesses and spectators awaited what should come next. They had to wait

"Call me a liar, sir; call me a liar, and that, too, in my own court? Why, sir. it's unpardonable," said the irate magistrate, whose eyes scintillated with wrath and scorn. Then bringing down his fist upon the desk before him: "This court stands adjourned!" he exclaimed, and bounding from his seat and seizing the diminutive lawyer by the throat he ran him toward the door When the little fel low had been hustled across the threshold, his movements accelerated by a vigorous parting kick, the judge turned to the litigants and those in the court and politely said : "You'll excuse me, but the court's adjourned, and I'm not agoin' to have such an infamous cuss as that in my tinshop.

How Shall We Plow?

Germantown Telegraph. The depth of plowing is a subject that gives rise to more discussion and difference of opinion than almost any other in farmdepends upon the nature of the soil. Many do not consider the very im where it is sheer madness to plow deep.

Besides there are other considerations; if the surface soil be poor and we turn this down into a still poorer subsoil, we bury what little good there might have been in the surface soil far below the reach of the roots. There is no department of industry wherein circumstances alter cases more than in this, While deep plowing is an excellent thing when circumstances agree, there are innumerable cases where wisdom would direct us to take the other course.

Mr. Philip Moore, of West Webster, Mooroe County, N. Y., says: "My daughter, now eighteen years old, has, for the past eighteen months, ben affilted with rheumatism in a very severe form. One year ago it settled in the knee, since which time she has been unable to touch her settled in the knee, since which time she has been unable to touch her foot to the floor or move her limb without suffering the most exeruciating pain. Her limb was fast growing out of shape, although we were doing for herail we could, having used all the remedles we could hear of and that were recommended for rheumatism, none of which benfitted her in the least. Her case was pronounced incurable by the physician and by our neighbors, and all believed that she would be a cripple all herdays, and that her limb would never the restored to its original shape. But I am happy to say that to-day my daughter is entirely free from all rheumatic pains, and that she can walk with perfect case, having thrown aside her crutches, and her limb seems as strong and per ing thrown aside her crutches, and her limb seems as strong and per fect as ever; all from the use of your wonderful medicine "Rheumatic Syrup," which we consider one of the best medicines ever introduced for purifying the blood, and I only regret that all others who are afflicted with rheumatism cannot know of its superior merits. You are at liberty to use my name if it will do you any good, and I shall be only too glad totell any and everyone what it has done for my daughter."
