DISASTROUS WRECK.

THE TERRIBLE ACCIDENT IN CANADA. Additional Particulars of the Sad and Mangled Bodies.

The great accident on the Grand Trunk railway, in Canada, which occurred yesterday, and was a frightful affair, is being given additional particulars: About seven o'clock in the morning a suburban train, consisting of a dummy engine and two cars, on the Great Western division of the Grand Trunk railway, left the Union station, having on board sixty passengers, chiefly employes in the mill and iron works at Lumber, who resided in the city and who were going to their work. They were all in the best of humor and although the weather was piercingly cold, the glare blowing from the furnace of the car windows, the merrily chatted and did not heed it as they told of how they had spent New Year's day.

Upon rounding a sharp curve just before reaching the belt works the engineer saw a freight train thundering down grade towards him. He reversed his engine, shrieked out a warning and along with his fireman jumped for his life. The conductor heard the warning and crying out "Jump, boys, for your lives!" Spring into the snow. In a moment a most terrific crash. The engine of the freight train knocked the boiler of the dummy car through the first car, crushing the unfortunate passengers in every direction and plowing many of them to the snow. In a moment a most terrific crash. The engine of the freight train knocked the boiler of the dummy car through the first car, crushing the unfortunate passengers in every direction and plowing many of them to the snow. In a moment a most terrific crash. The engine of the freight train knocked the boiler of the dummy car through the first car, crushing the unfortunate passengers in every direction and plowing many of them to the snow.

The boiler exploded. The engineer of the freight train, when he saw that a collision was inevitable sprang from the engine. The dummy car was instantly killed. To add to the horror of the scene the boiler of the dummy car exploded and the escaping steam and boiling water scalded and carried death or terrible injuries to the mangled and bleeding men. These five broke out in all directions to the scene of destruction. Startled, groaning and heart rending cries of agony were heard from the agonized sufferers near the air. Several poor fellows, suffering untold agonies, with their limbs and bodies burned to a crisp, pitifully implored those near them to get away from their scalded limbs or to get away from their sufferings. Strong men looked on appalled and many an eye was dim with tears.

Every possible phase of disfigurement was to be seen--limbs cut, mangled and bruised, legs cut away by fire or scalded to an enormous size by the action of steam and water. No more awful scene could be witnessed nor was any possible horror left to the imagination. The first passenger car was a terrible wreck and several boys appeared before the pool of fellows buried beneath the debris could be extricated.

A relief party of thirty or forty men was soon at the scene and at once slowly and tenderly set to work to rescue the survivors and to bury the dead. The first load of the dead and injured was on the way to the city. On arriving at the Union station an ambulance wagon and several cabs and buses were in waiting. A large crowd had gathered, and an hour after the accident the dead and wounded were carried from the car to the conveyances many turned sick at the sight, while others bled away the falling tears. The wounded men bore their sufferings with fortitude and patience, a few groans being the only indication of their torturous agony.

At the Morgue. The scene at the morgue beggars description. Fifteen bodies lay side by side in two rows, on open shelves of the room. Mothers, fathers, sisters and brothers were to be seen passing from body to body and with trembling hands lifting the coverlet to gaze on the face of the dead. Now and again a cry of anguish was heard, which told too plainly of the discovery of some dear and cherished one in the prime of manhood. The hospital from an early hour was crowded with relatives and friends of the wounded. On the arrival of the wounded the full hospital staff immediately proceeded to manure the patients who had not been so severely injured and dressing those who were terribly scalded. Some of the latter were buried from head to foot by the steam. One of the victims, John Rowlett, died shortly after arriving at the hospital. The following were instantly killed: Charles Thomas, the fireman of the freight train; G. Aggett, who leaves a widow and child; Joseph Koster, who leaves a widow and two children; C. Spohn, a single man who has been married to-night; R. Mulligan, who leaves a widow and child; J. Keraghan, who leaves a widow and family; Alexander Carruthers, who leaves a widow and large family; J. White, who leaves a widow and child; Joseph M. Donald, single; W. Terrell, single; Thomas Burns, single; George Prosser, single; George A. J. Beale, single; John Mackenzie, single; Charles Stanley, aged 12 years.

Seven have died at the hospital. Their names are as follows: John Rowlett, who leaves a wife and child; John Lynch, who leaves a wife and child; Eddie Robinson, a boy; Sam Bailey, a widower, but who leaves a family; H. C. Kerman, who leaves a wife and a child only six days old; Fred. Rothroyd, single; Hugh Cunningham, who leaves a wife and three children.

Three others are not expected to live through the night. Those still alive in the hospital are: W. Fitzgerald, slightly injured; Michael Kelly, slightly scalded; W. Rogers, badly scalded and internally injured; Charles McDonald, slightly injured; F. Norton, severely injured; John Carrigan, slightly injured; Matthew Walker, badly injured; Patrick Caran, severely injured; James Kelly, Alexander Banks and John Aggett, who will recover; Victor Greaves, Thomas McDonald and two others, named Montgomery, who were also injured, were taken to their homes.

The damage to the rolling stock is $20,000. Manager Hickson, of the Grand Trunk road, immediately telegraphed to Mr. Wragge, the local manager, to give every care and attention to the injured and to let nothing be neglected which could possibly contribute in the slightest degree to their recovery or alleviate their sufferings, and that he was pained and distressed at the occurrence no beyond anything he could express.

The Lord Mayor of London was only a policeman in a warehouse, but he persevered in the face of all opposition and was rapidly. It is only a matter of time that has made Dr. Clark's cough syrup the greatest family remedy for colds and coughs now offered to the suffering public.

Old men suffering from Rheumatism, kidney troubles, or any weakness will be almost new by using hop bits.
