There have always been quacks :- legal quacks, theological quacks, scientific quacks and medical quacks. THE CHURCH YEAR.

WHAT 1883 DID FOR CHEISTIANITY.

A Twelve Month of Quiet and Prosperity Fraternat Relations Re-established-Ritualistic Controversy in Eng-land-Church Affairs

Abroad. N. Y. Times. The past year was one of quiet and pros perity among the churches, especially those of our own country. There were no divisions, no distracting controversies. The ordinary methods of church work brought large additions to all the denominations, while financially they probably never did so well. The instances where a falling off was noted in the income of any of the denominational societies were few indeed. Increase was almost invariably reported. The losses which come to every shurch yearly by death, withdrawal, exclusion and otherwise are very large there must, therefore, be considerable activity to prevent decline in numbers. In no case, save one, did an actual decrease occur, while the aggregate net increase was very large. The disciples of Christ alone estimate their net gain to be 40,000 or 50,000. The Episcopal Convention The more important events in this country were the meeting of the general convention of the Protestant Episcopal church, the final settlement of the question of fraternal relations between the Northern and Southern Presbyterian churches, the ending of the controversy among the Baptists over Bible circulation, and the contest in the United Presbyterian church over the use of organs in public worship. The chief business before the Episcopal general convention was the report of the commission on revision of the prayer book. The commission recommended many changes designed to reach the purpose of "liturgical enrich-ment and increased flexibility" avowed by the general convention of 1880. These changes, which modify many of the rubrics and the morning and evening prayer, introduce alternatives and establish a new festival, the Feast of the Transfiguration, were considered seriatim, and in most cases adopted with little or no further amendment. The convention did not finish ts examination of the revision, but sent the whole to the diocesan conventions for scrutiny, leaving to the general convention of 1886 the work of final adoption. Several new bishops were confirmed and coase crated, and motions to change the name of the church were voted down. Concern ing the difficulties of the Mexican branch it is enough to say that the foreign cemmittee of the board of missions will not continue appropriations to the work under the charge of the bishop of the valley of Mexico. It is expected that Bishop Riley will resign.

Fraternizing Presbyterians.

Fraternal relations were established be ween the Northern and Southern Presby. terian churches of 1882, but a strong party in the Southern church protested against the action of their assembly and endeavored to have it annulled last May. They were, however, unsuccessful. The assembly received detegates from the Northern church with great cordiality, and Southern delegates were warmly welcomed by the Saratoga assembly. A sentiment in favor of organic union is growing. The Baptists had long been divided concerning their agencies for Bible work. Some supported the Ameri can Bible society, some the American and foreign Bible society (Baptist,) and some thought a new denominational Bible society was needed. The convention decided, and in its decision there has been perfect acquiescence that the publication society and the missionary union should bave charge of Bible circulation at home and abroad, and that the union should circulate the Baptist versions in heathen languages, and the publication society, to which the effects of the American and foreign Bible society were to be transferred, should circulate the King James, the Anglo American and the Conant versions in this country. The contest in the United Presbyterian church was over the question of the recall of the deliverance of the assembly of 1882 declaring the constitutional bar to the use of the organ in public worship removed. The anti organ party fought desperately, but were defeated. Division at one time seemed imminent. The Free church of Scotland, after years of controversy, settled the same question in favor

The Church of England is still troubled evidence in favor of a particular remedy? with the ritualistic controversy, though it Clearly that it should have been prepared by was much milder in 1883 than in former are used. years. The efforts of the late Archbishop Tait to establish a truce until the ecclesi-Squarely on this foundation stands BEN- astical courts commission could report were not successful, though they had a mitigating effect. The Rev. Mr. Mackonochie, whom he transferred from St. Alban's to St. Peter's to stop a prosecution against him, did not find himself beyond the reach of Lord Penzauce's court, which pronounced sentence of deprivation against him. If the privy council reaffirm it, Mr. Mackonochie cannot legally hold any living in the province of Canterbury. The commission ecclesiastical courts made a long report recommending in effect the abolishment of Lord Penzanco's court, the revival of diocesan and provincial courts, and the constitution of a new court of appeal. It also proposes to give bis hops veto power over the beginning of suits. Low churchmen do not like this last feature, nor are ritualists and High churchmen pleased with the composition of the proposed court of appeal. It is to be composed of laymen, and will not, therefore, be a spiritual court. It is expected that the government will submit to Parliament a bill based on the recommendations of the report. Meantime, suit is pending against the dishop of Manchester for refusing to institute to the living of Miles Platting the Rev. Mr. Cowgill because he could not or would not promise to be gov-erned by the regulations of the diocese in the matter of ritual. Bismarck and the Catholics.

The pope arrived at a modus vivendi with the ezar, but with the emperor of Germany, who displayed a remarkable spirit of concession, he is still in negotiation. Annoyed at the delay in coming at an understanding, Bismarck introduced and carried through the Prussian Diet a bill which greatly modified the Falk laws and granted important privileges to the of state. The visit, while it has pleased the German Ultramontanes and Conservatives, has given offense to the Liberals who say the heir apparent has "gone to Canossa." Whether the attempt to bring the Culturkampf to an end is due to the political necessities of Bismarck or to the desire of the emperor to leave the throne to his successor freed from this difficulty, the fact of concession is plain. A few days ago the minister of ecclesiastical affairs sent to the bishop of Kulm, one of the prelates who have been restored to their Complete equality of treatment will be established between Cuba and Porto Rico on the one hand, and the United States on the other. The American custom house officers will also furnish Spanish consuls with statistics regarding the quantity of sugar and tobacco imported from the Antilles.
