"Well, during the time of my sickness I received very many calls from friends, and, among others, from one who was fully able to sympathize with me, as he had been through a similar experience to the one I was then enduring. He described his case minutely, and not only insisted upon my trying the same remedy that cured him, but actually went out and purchases some of it and administered it with his own hands. I did not notice any special effect for several days, but I soon saw that it was benefiting me and within a fortinght I was able to leave the house. I felt that exercise would be a good thing for me and so took a walk each day, and found my strength increasing constantly, so much so that I walked entirely across the Brooklyn bridge on the first foot passenger that crossed that structure, all of which I was enabled to do by means of Warner's Safe Kneumatic Cure, which restored me to perfect health and keeps me in excellent and proper condition to-day."

"And was the 'friendly tip' your ritend gave you when you were sick in the form of Warner's Safe Kneumatic Cure what inspired the name of the play you are now starring in ""

"No I can hardly say it was, although I really know of no more 'friendly tip' that I could give the public than to corduly kelvise them in their suffering to use the same remedy that lifted me from the depths of rheumatic agony."

It has been estimated from careful statistics that here are no less than four militons of people in America who are suffering at this season of the year from some form of theumatic difficulty. Why they will do when it can largely be avyided seems a very great meeting.

ENGLISH LAND LAWS.

THE QUESTION OF THEIR REPORM. John Bright and Joseph Chamberiain Proclaim Their Views on the Issue-

Right Hon. John Bright addressed large meeting at the Forward Liberal club in Birmingham, England, Wednesday night. He said that after the franchise measure the most pressing question for the reformed Parliament will be the reform of the land laws. He utterly condemned Henry George's land propositions, saying they were most extraordinary and impracticable and the wildest ever imported by an American inventor. Mr. George's scheme began with a hitherto unheard of general system of confication, which Mr. Bright believed would end in immeasura-ble evil and confusion. It was impossible, he declared, to imagine the corruption ensuing if the letting of plots of land everywhere was entrusted to a government department.

Mr. Bright said he had been charged with being so entirely American that he wanted to Americanize English institutions. That charge was an exaggeration, It was noteworthy that Mr. George's cheme, although American, had not been tried in America. [Laughter.] Although there were so many millions of acres of land in America belonging to the state it was surprising that no preliminary trial of the scheme had been made there, instead of here, where Mr. George was a stranger.

After an elequent reference to the civil war in $\frac{2}{2}$ the United States, in which the North quenched slavery, Mr. Bright declared that it would be as great cruelty, folly and injustice to confiscate the prop erry of the landlords as to attempt to again make the freed men in America slaves. Mr. George's plan, the speaker said, was simply an insuit to the common sense and honesty of the English people. Nevertheless the system of land tenure must be altered so as to allow the land to come gradually and naturally into the hands of the most requiring and desiring it, most able to pay for and best able to work it for the public advantage. It would be easy to abolish the laws of primogeniture and entail to facilitate the transfer of land. Englishmen should try these re forms before attempting wild and extravagant schemes. Mr. Bright's remarks were greeted with cheers. Right Hon, Joseph Chamberlaic, presi dent of the board of trade, also spoke. He pointed to the fruits of his bankruptcy act and patents act, and promised to do something during the ensuing session to stop the scandalous waste of life at sea owing to ill found vessels. He said he was certain that the coming measure of reform would pass the House of Commons by a large majority in spite of conservative obstruction. If the House of Lords rejected the bill the government might, with a clear conscience appeal to the people against the peers. There was no question upon which he would more cheerfully appeal to the constituencies. He advocate the inclusion of Ireland in the Fran-

DIVORCE IN RHODE ISLAND How They Drive Their Wives Tanden.

Brown, of Rhode Island, says : a reputation in regard to divorces us unenviable as it has in the matter of illitera ey. The proportion of divorces to marriages is constantly increasing. In 1882 there was one divorce to every marriages, and when we consider that probably one third of our population are adherents of the Roman Catholic church (in which divorces are not recognized for any cause) the proportion of divorces be-come absolutely startling. For the ten years ending December 31, 1882, there were 2,824 applications for divorces in the state, of which 2,201 were granted. The large majority of these divorces were granted without opposition, and therefore upon ex parte despositions, which are practically only such despositions of interested parties as would make a primafacte case. Though the law provides that no divorce shall be granted it it shall ap pear that there is collusion between the parties, yet it is a well known fact that in a large number of cases there is actual collusion, though it may not be brought to the attention on the court.

About one fifth of the applications allege adultery as a cause for divorce and yet I am informed by the attorney general that no 1 osceution for adultery was ever of the figure of their game in the night in a skiff or brought out in a divorce cases. just before the train reached Mendota, and the two old farmers were tight well noquainted. Presently another man who looked like a merchant came in, and was surprised to see one of the farmers. "Well, well, well," said the new man. "I'm glad to see you; maybe you can help me out a little embarrassing trouble. I want to pay a man a little bill on the train before I get off at Mendota and I haven't money enough. If you let me have $100 on my check I'll be very much obliged." "Certainly, I'm glad to do it," and out came the farmer's pocketbook. But alas ! he had only $40 in small bills and a beautiful, crisp $500 bill.

"You're perfectly walcome to the $40 if

"Perhaps your friend can help us out; the $40 will hardly answer," said the mer-chant, and then he apologized for making so much trouble.

until now had been silently looking on.
"I can't change a $500 bill, but I can give

London Lancet. It is sometimes forgotten that coughsproperly so called and in their integrity— are convulsive, expiratory efforts intended to eject from the air cells or passages of the lungs, or from the windpipe or larynx, either secretions or exudations, or occasionally foreign substances, which impede the act of respiration. Unfortunately, there is seldom any constant rela tion between the frequency and force of a cough and the physical need for it. This is because the act being, of course, performed by virtue of a special excitation of the nervous system, the degree of excitability of the nerves concerned in the production of the muscular contractions producing cough determines its force and frequency, instead of their being governed, as they ought to be, solely by the exigencies of expulsion. Moreover, owing to the sympathetic connection of nerves energizing different groups of muscles, and in relation with different centres, cough may be produced by excitations which are not local to the breathing organs. Therefore, we find that cough, which ought to be a very simple process or function of a remedial, or, at least, physically helpful kind is, in fact, itself a cause of disturbance and disease by reason of excessive and disorderly char-Very grave mistakes are made in practice by treating cough as a pulmonary affection and in itself morbid. It is in a very large proportion extra pulmouary in its large cause, and it is only morbid in itself, when there is no disease or disturb ance in the lung which can create a need for expulsive efforts. Cough is always a nervously induced phenomenon, and as such it ought to be treated with the utmost carefulness, so as to ascertain its cause, its raison d'etre, and the proportional relation which subsists between need and effort, where need really exists. Without clear views on these various aspects of the question of cough in each particular case, it cannot be intelligently treated.

The Abuse of Washington.

On his last day in office Washington wrote to Knox comparing himself to "the weary traveler who sees a resting place, and is bending his body to lean thereon." To be suffered to do this in peace," he added, "is too much to be endured by some." Accordingly, on that very day a Philadelphia newspaper dismissed him with a final tirade, worth remembering by In his message to the Legislature Gov. | all who think that political virulence is on the increase:

"Lord now lettest thou Thy servent depart in peace, for mine eyes have seen thy salvation!' This was the exclamation of a man who saw a flood of blessedness breaking in upon maukind. If ever there was a time that allowed this exclamation to be repeated, that time is the present The man who is the scource of all our country's misory is this day reduced to the rank of his fellow citizens, and has no longer the power to multiply the woes of these United States. Now more than ever is the time to rejoice. Every heart which feels for the liberty and happiness of the cople must not beat with rapture at the ought of this day the name of Washinging ceases to give currency to injustice and to legalze corruption..... When we look back upon the eight years of Washington's administration, it strikes us with as tonishment that one man could thus poison the principles of republicanism among our enlightened people, to endanger its very existence. Yet such is the fact, and if this is apparent to all, this day should form a jubilee in the United States."

PHUS OF DOCTORS

The fee of doctors is an item that very many persons are interested in. We believe the schedule for visits is $3.00, which would tax a man confined to his bed for a year, and in need of a daily visit, over $1,000 a year for medical attendance alone! And one single bottle of Hop Bitters taken in time would say the $1,000 and all the year's sickness. A LADY'S WISH.

"Oh, how I do wish my skin was a clear and soft as yours," said a lady to her friend. "You can easily make it so," answered the friend. "How?" inquired the first lady, "By using Hop Blitters that makes pure, rich blood and blooming health. It did it for me, as you observe."

"Is it possible that Mr. Godfrey is up and at work, and cared by so simple a remedy?"

"I assure you it is true that he is entirely cured, and with nothing but Hop Bitters, and only ten days ago his doctors gave him up and said he must die, from Kidney and Liver trouble!"
