Without speaking to Each Other.

An event of considerable importance has occurred in a little farm house a few miles from Cauton, O., within a few days.

Mrs. Dewees spoke to her husband. This is what she said:

"William, I believe I am dying."

However, she did not die, and she is now nearly well again. But the fact that she spoke at all to her husband has greatly excited those who are acquainted with the old couple. They are past three score. This is the first time either has spoken to the other for nearly a quarter of a century, the other for nearly a quarter of a century, though each has spoken to other persons daily all she while.

Nearly twenty-five years ago Mrs.

Dewees desired her husband to do a trifling thing which he regarded as either impossible or unwise, and he refused.

She, becoming pstulant with disappointment, rashly exclaimed:

"If you don't I'll never speak to you

"If you don't I'll never speak to you again as long as I live."
"I not only will not do it." he said, aroused to anger, "but I will not speak to you until you speak first to me."
The issue thus joined lasted longer than either imagined it would. Until the recent night spoken of neither Mr. ror Mrs. Dewes ever uttered a word to the other. The quarrel was soon over, and the best of feeling was resumed between them. They have lived together ever since, contented and harmonious, the only cloud upon their happiness being their silence toward each happiness being their silence toward each other. But even that has had its advantages. When Mr. Dewees wanted to say anything to his wife he would say, for example to one of the children: "Jennie tell your mother I wish she would sew another button on my overalls." Or the mother would say: "John tell your father to bring some sugar, oil, pepper, and a spool of thread, No. 60 from town to-day." At first it was difficult for them to repress the impulse to speak to tion until habit made it easy to do so.

"Yes," said Mr. Dewees to a neighbor one day, "we have not spoken for pretty near twenty five years. It has sometimes been a little inconvenient, and, of course, it seems silly to most people; but it has been a blessing to us in some ways. That one quarrel was our last. I know from my disposition and hers that, if we had kept on talking, we should have kept on quarrelling more or less. Possibly we'd have got worse, because we are both pretty highstrung, and it might have gone so far that we'd have been divorced."

A Sensation

On the night when the silence was broken Mrs. Dowees had been ill for sev-eral days, and about 1 o'clock in the morning she awoke in great pain, and thought her end had come. In her agony she called to her husband William, I believe I am dying !"

The old couple have been talking to each other ever since.

FAIRT HEART LOST FAIR LADY. A Canadian Gentleman Runs Away From the Hymeneal Altar.

Intense surprise has been caused in Montreal by an event which stopped a young lady of the leading society circles in Montreal from changing her name to Mrs.
Walter Wilson. It appears that for some years back Miss MacDougall, has been affianced to Mr. Walter Wilson, a gentle man engaged in business and whose social connections, like those of the lady, extended among the leading families in Canada. Some time ago the nuptials were postponed on account of the lady's illness, and it was expected that the event would take place yesterday in Christ church cathedral. His lordship Bishop Bond was donning his vestments for the ceremony, the groomsman was leaving the St. James club for the church, the bride was dressed awaiting her carriage, the bridesmalds were arranging the last duties of the happy hour and already the church was fairly filled with the friends of the parties Suddenly the news went around place to place in a hurried whisper that the bridegroom had bolted for New York and that there would after all be no marriage. The news was broken to the expectant lady by her brother in law. James Wilson, who is a brother of the missing groom.

Mr. Wilson's story was that Walter had telegraphed him that he had not the heart to go on and marry the lady and that the only thing left for him to do would be to leave for New York. He promised a satis-factory explanation to any of Miss Mac-Dougall's relatives who wished to see him

The news was like a thunderbolt to Miss MacDougall, who, however, bears it with much spirit. As her relatives are all influential people the explanation must be a satisfactory one ere Mr Wilson is pardoned his offence. The young man had already signed his marriage contract and other marriage papers, all of which awaited only the signature of the promised bride. His friends had dired him on Wednesday at St. James club, and no thought of such an ending occurred to any

BENSON'S SKIN CURE.

From Frank Lestie's Illustrated Newspaper. A LADY SAID.

Those Horrid Pumpies: No, 1 Cannot Go

Please Present My Excuses. Probably two-thirds of the ladies in society nd nomes of our land are afflicted with skin diseases of various kinds, to do away with which, it it could be done without lajury, would be the happiest event of their lives. Then she would have instead of a disfigured and marred countenance, one that would be nandsome, or at least good looking, for any one with a clear, pure skin, no matter what the cut of her features are, has a certain amount of good looks which attract everybody. As it is now, she imagines every one sees and talks about "those treckles," "those
