After a Ramy Ride a Country Physicist Tells What He thinks of Some l'eople.

"I wish to gracious some people would learn when they need a doctor and when they ton't," exclaimed Doctor E --- , as he en tered his house in a cozy little village in the interior of the state of New York, after a tedious night ride of many miles, "I have been down among the mountains to see a man who the messenger said was very sick and not likely to live until morning, unless he had immediate help; and found him suffering from a rather sharp attack of colic, which hi family might have relieved in ten minutes, i they had a grain of sense and two or three simple remedies in the house. But no: they must remain ignorant as pigs, and when the least ache or pain takes them, send for a doc tor, whether they ever pay him or not."

" Why, Doctor, what |kind of simple reme dies, as you call them, do you expect people to keep in the house?" asked his wife, as she poured him a cup of hot tes. "In this case," answered the Doctor, "if they had only put a BENSON'S CAPCINE POROU PLASTER on the man's stoma b, he would have been all right in an hour and saved me a dreary ride"

In all ordinary complaints it cures at once All diseases are climinated from the system by what may be roughly called expulsion or extraction, or by a union of the two process es. Benson's Plaster promotes both. It incites the torpid organs to act and sends its healing, soothing influence through the myr-tad pores of the skin. All other plasters oblige the patient to wait. They give him hope for to-morrow. Benson's plaster gives him hely to-day. Which is better, do you think? Buy the CAPCINE and keep it in the house. Price commend it to the attention of all : It has been tried for now all but twenty years, not only in the one city from which it takes its name, but in every other city in Sweden of any size, save one, and in num-erous cities of Norway as well, and everywhere has been uniformly successful. been tried anywhere. As such it is worth studying, in order that it may be ascertained, if possible, in how far its success is owing to circumstances of national temperament, political forms, etc., and in how far it is to be accredited to the system itself, directly and absolutely. Space, of course, forbids us to do this here; and we must content ourselves with a mere sketch of the origin, methods, and superficial results of the work.

A PRACTICAL METHOD IN SWEDEN

What the Gothenburg System Has Accounplished for a Nation of Drankards -A Temperance, Not Probibliory, Plan. Rev. J. Max Hark in the Christian Union.

The man to whom before all others belongs the honor of being the author of the Gothenburg systen is Sven Adolph Hedland, the editor of a commercial paper in that city. He had become so deeply impressed with the prevalence of misery and crime, especially among the lower classes, that in May, 1864, he influenced the city government to appoint a commis sion to investigate the causes of this condition of affairs, and propose measures for their removal or mitigation. Hedlund was made one of this commission, which, after thorough investigation, came to the conclusion, and so reported that drunkenness was at the root of the whole evil, "inasmuch as it weakens the mental faculties, dulls the moral sense, and undermines the health and vigor of the body; causes indifference to domestic virtues and duties, and to the interests of the family and home, and thereby brings about coldness and dissatisfaction between husband and wife, neglect of parental training and education of the young, disorderliness, ruin of the household, and finally, universal misery and distress. Now drunkenness had indeed been the national vice up to 1855. But the inforcement of the liquor laws of that year had wrought a great improvement. Unfortunately, however, only in the rural districts, where the prohibition of all but steam distilleries, the high tax upon these even, and the restriction of their manufacture to only a part of the year, besides the introduction of a kind of "local option" system, had succeeded in effecting a radical reform. But this reacted upon the cities, by driving the bibulous in hosts into their limits, where liquor could be had in abundance. So that while in the country intemperance was well nigh abolished, in the cities it was increased to an alarming extent. How to remedy this evil was now the problem. Hedlund's commission proposed two measures. One was the erection of houses suitable for homes for the working classes. The other was the regulation of the liquor traffic according to a novel plan, which was adopted, and at once put into effect. It was this: The retailing of intoxicating liquors was to be given into the hands of a stock company, formed not for the puroose of making money, but of regulating the use and preventing the abuse of strong drinks. Such a company was promptly formed, consisting of a number of the most prominent, respectable, and publicspirited business men and citizens. As soon as the licenses of forty out of sixty liquor saloons of the city expired, on October 1, 1865, this company bought them from the city, paid the legal taxes, and pledged itself to devote the entire ten profits of the saloons for the benefit of the working classes. A number of these resorts it at once closed, and the rest it pledged itself to keep clean, well lighted and ventilated, and to fit out also as cozy, inviting eating houses for working people, where they might procure good, wholeome, warm meals at a small price. Each saloon was given in charge of a reputable person who sells the liquor only for the company, and under the supervision of its agents. He has no interest whatever in the sale. While, on the other hand, all the profits from the sale of coffee, a weak kind of beer, soda water, all kinds of eatables, cigars, etc., are his own. This, in itself, does away with one of the worst evils of liquor saloons. There is no inducement to the seller to incite, persuade, encourage, entice, coax his customer to buy and drink anything intoxicating. Moreover, he is under no circumstances permitted to sell intoxicants to any one under eighteen years of age, nor to any one already under the influence of liquor; and never to sell on credit, or to take anything in pawn for drink. Finally, on Sundays and holidays no liquor is sold except the "appetizer"—one drink, with a meal ; none is sold after seven o'clock in the evening in winter, or eight o'clock in summer; on Saturdays none after six o'clock in the evening. All these regula-tions are strictly enforced by regularly appointed agents of the company. How admirably the system worked thus far is seen from a glimpse at some of the results. Three years after its organization the company thought best not to bear any onger the responsibility of disbursing the funds derived from the net profits of its saloons; and therefore handed the whole over to the municipal treasury. The latfor trymen to adopt the system—which in 1866 was about $14.835, had in 1868 increased to $27,240, and in 1872 to $56,701. When in 1874 the whole retail liquor trade of the city fell into the hands of the company, this income rose to the sum of $80,516. Its highest point, however, was reached in 1876, when the net profits returned were $198.963 Since that year. Since that year, however, there has been a decrease; but this is only another proof of the consientious, disinterested administration of the company, and of the progress being made in the really reformatory character of the work. The end desired is being reached. There is less liquor being consumed from year to year, and therefore the income from its sale is less, and has been steadily growing less since 1876. In that year there were about 607,396 quarts sold; next year over 16,000 quarts less; and so on diminishing every year, in 1881 the number having sank to 523,556 quarts. And all the while, be it remembered the population was steadily and rapidly increasing. As instructive would it be to note some of the statistics in other departments. Suffice is to say, however, that the number of arrests for drunkenness diminished in the last twenty years by more than one half-steadily growing less and less in proportion to the number of inhabitants ; and that the same diminishing scale is to be seen in the record of cases of delirium tremens. In 1865 there were 118; in 1875. only 80; and in 1880, not more than forty-four in the whole city.

As we before said, it would be interesting to inquire how much of this remarkable record of success is owing directly to the system itself, and how much to other circumstances. This will have to be done before any attempt at its adaptation to our work in this country could be thought of. Yet there are a few elements observable in the work there, which are too frequently wanting here among us and without which no system, however wise and skillful, can ever succeed. They be-long to its spirits. And when the spirit shall once be right and ready, there will be little trouble about method, means and The Gothenburg system has this to

As such it is ing with a tramp printer named Phelps. The facts regarding this strange infatuation on the part of Mrs. Kerkendall are as follows : Phelps, who is a native of Parkers burg, or, at least, has been working there for some time, was accidentally thrown in contact with Mrs. Kerkendall about a month ago, and that lady at once fell in love with him. She followed him above the town, and so annoyed him that he, being unwilling to injure her or her husband by encouraging her, left Parkersburg and came to Wheeling about three weeks ago. He heard nothing of her, and began to congratulate himself on his move, when Thursday morning Mrs. Kerkendall arriv ed in Wheeling, sought out Phelps, and told him she could not live without him, and had abandoned home, family, and friends to live with him. She brought considerable money with her, and seemed determined to presist in her strange course notwithstanding the appeals of friends to return to her husband.
