BETRAYS A WESTERN MURDERER

A California Tragedy That Corresponds With startilog Minuteness to the Viclent Death of Barney Short.

There are some curious cases of identity in the annals of crime, but rarely has there been such a remarkable coincidence of detail between two murders as that which is seen on comparing the violent deaths of the late Bernard Short, of this county, and Patrick Sullivan, a California

Sullivan was a prosperous farmer and stock raiser, living on Wildeat creek, in the southern part of Contra Costa county, and Lyle was a near neighbor. The latter was always getting into trouble with his neighbors and going to law, particularly with Sullivan. In these suits he was generally on the wrong side of the ques-tion, and, of course, got worsted, which enraged him to such a degree that he was injudicious enough to make threats against Sullivan's life, at one time telling the latter's son that his father would fail to come home some night. On the morning of the day of the murder Sullivan left his home with his team and went to town, where he had a triffing lawsuit with Lyle before a justice of a peace, in which he was beaten. The prophecy of Lyle was fulfilled, for Sullivan never returned to his home alive. The next morning he was found dead, with his team in a field not far from his home, his arm hanging over the whillletree and his body lying upon the ground. The first conclusion was that the team had run away with him, thrown him out, dragged him and broken his neck. This theory was strengthened by the fact there was a plainly-marked trail for 250 yards, evidently made by his body. No marks of blood were on his clothes, and no evidence that a crime had been committed. At the inquest, when the clothes of the dead man were removed, it was found that he had been murdered by some one who had shot him in the back. Several of the sho's had entered his body, one of them penetrating the heart and two of them embedding themselves in the back of the wagon seat. I attended the trial and took a great inter est in it. He was heard to pass the house of a man named Davis about 9 o'clock on the night of the murder. The road passed near the house of Lyle, so that if the latter

When the officers examined the spot where the murder was committed they found the foot prints of a man leading to and from Lyle's house over the ploughed ground to the place where Sullivan had fallen out of his wagon. They at once suspicioned that Lyle had something to do with the crime and went to his house, where he was found eating his dinner. They told him that he was suspected of the murder and that they were there to make an investigation. "I have expected this," said he, "because I have had so much difficulty with Sullivan," He then told the officers to go ahead and make their search, and that they would not flud anything criminating about his place. On two pegs on the wall the offi cers found a double barrelled shotgun, one of the barrels of which was moist on the inside, and had evidently been recently descharged. Some buckshot were found, although Lyle denied having any, and on the shelf by the buckshot was found a crumpled piece of the Sau Fran got some prime Kentucky whisky in the found a crumpled piece of the Sau Frau cisco Call, a part of which was torn off Lyle was arrested and lodged in jail at Martinez, after which one of the officers took the prisoner's boots and went to the scene of the supposed ambush, where he found in the bush alongside the road the imprints of a man's knees. The boots were found to fit the tracks in the soft ground perfectly, and at this stage of the investigation the Alameda officers offered

This little innocent looking piece are only induced to stop our practices of paper was what completed the chain of when utilitarian arguments influence us circumstantial evidence and consign against the practice. Gradually the sentied Lyle to San Quentin. It was further shown that on the night of the murder, between the hours of 8 and 9 murderous instinct toward trees. They o'clock, a woman's screams and entreaties will learn to love them and delight to had been beard issuing from Lyle's house. It is supposed that it was Mrs. Lyle, who tive loves the pines and is grateful to them knew that her husband was starting out so will all become through a larger develto kill Sullivan, and tried to prevont his opment than we yet possess. What friends going. Notwithstanding the plain evidence in the case it took three trials to their silent presence among us, standing, in the first degree, a verdict that caused great dissatisfaction. As a strange case, it beats anything in California and strange case, it beats anything in California's circumstantial history.

N. Y. Tribune, The drawing room reception at the White House on Saturday was attended by crowds of visitors. There was an impression that Mrs McElroy would not receive during Lent and every body was inclined to go to what was supposed to be the last reception of the season. Mrs. McElroy was assisted by a large party of ladies. Mrs. McElroy received in a dress of black and white gros grain with draperies of chantilly lace. Mrs. Ingalls, wife of Sen ator Ingalls, stood on her right, and wore a trained dress of black satin with chenille trimmings, the corsage finished with pale blue estrich feathers. Mrs. Cullom, wife of Senator Collum was attired in black gros grain, with heavy jet embroideries. Mrs. Philip Sheridan's collet was French gray china crepe combined with rose pink brocade, the sleeves and corsage elaborate with cut steel net-ting. Mrs. McMichael wore a train of pansy velvet over pale heliotrope crepe, with trimmings of Oriental lace. The wife of General McFeeley was attired in black silk, with ruffles of white silk and black thread lace. Mrs. McKeever's toilet was purplet velvet combined with satiu and bouquet of pansies. Mrs. Parker, wife of General Parker, wore black brocade with sleeves and trimmings of jetted lace, Mrs. Lydecker's toilet was white china crepe, Miss Knevals, with her father Mr. Knevals, of New York, was in a toilet of black silk, with black silver dotted tulle, low corsage and white roses. Miss Finch, of St. Paul who was with Commodore and Mrs. Badger wore a dress of silk and tulle of cardinal color, and clusters of yellow crysanthemums on the corsage and the same flowers in her hair. Mrs. Brewster's toilet was pale blue satin and brocade, with diamond ornaments. Miss Blaine, who was accompanied by Mr. Blaine, wore a superb pearl satin brocaded in bright flowers, point lace and diamonds. Miss Henriques, wore peach blossom satin, ruffled with embroidered lace. The toilet of Miss Preston, daughter of the Haytian minister, was one of the prettiest seen. She wore pale pink satin with smoke colored tulle and garlands of clover blossoms.

cines. Eight years have I been a sufferer from kidney disorder and inflammation of the bladder, 'Sometimes when passing water the pains were something terrible, a scalding burning sensation, with retention of urine with sharp pains in my side, loins, and back. extending clear to the back of my head, tend ed to make life miserable. I have been treated by a number of our best physicians, and have used any number of proprietary medicines, all to no avail, obtaining no reliet. How long I would have continued in this way I do not know; in fact I despaired of getting relief, until a neighbor, who had been very much benefited by the was of Hunt's Remedy, advised me to try it; and, although I had no faith that it would reach my case, yet as he spoke so highly of its great merits I declued to give it a trial, and its use has been attended with the very best possible results. Twelve hours after taking the first dose I experienced ellef. I continued on in its use until I had used five bottles, when all the pains had vanished, my otherwise good health returned, and I am free from all pains, and am a well man. I am confident my cure has resulted from the "What it has done for me I am positive i

BURT BY A FALL.

When only a boy some thirteen years old I was hurt quite badly by a fall, and severely medies, and they all failed, until Hunt's Re-medy was recommended to us by triends that I improved very rapidly; was refleved of the pains in back, and after using several bottles found that I was completely cured, and I cannot over-estimate the good Hunt's Remedy send it to those troubled with kidney com-

Although much is said about the importance of a blood purifying medicine, it may be now sible that the subject has never seriously claimed your attention. Think of it now!

Almost every person has some form of scrotulous powon latent in his veins.
