SECOND EDITION. FRIDAY EVENING, FEB. 29, 1884. A NIGHT OF FIRES. THE FLAMES IN PHILADELPHIA. Five Different Conflagrations at One Time - The Greatest at Powers & Weightman's Chemical Works - A Mill-Uniontown's Candidates.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 29.—Last night was emphatically a night of fires in Philadelphia. In all directions the startling alarms were heard, as the five fires, which were in progress at the same time in different parts of the city, blazed in the wild storm. It required the attention of the entire fire department at the conflagrations.

The worst of the fires was the one at Powers & Weightman's chemical works, on the corner of Ninth and Parrish streets. It broke out at a short time before one o'clock this morning, and in still, at 12:30, burning although nearly all the entire works have been destroyed. The loss on the building and stock will exceed a million dollars.

The fire became so alarming that notwithstanding the fire department was at work, the firemen were forced to call on citizens for help and volunteers rendered them valuable aid, working in a perfect storm of sparks and frozen spray.

It was in this building that bismuth, melba, potash, soda and other preparations were made and stored. The building, together with all its contents, were entirely destroyed. Up to this time, five o'clock, the flames have steadily triumphed over all opposition, lighting up the entire city, while the neighboring streets are blocked with panic-stricken residents removing their goods to places of safety.

The walls have been crushed down during the early morning, but as these accidents were not unexpected no one has been hurt and the streets have been properly cleared of the debris. The machinery and stock were insured for over $500,000, of which $215,000 was placed in this city, and the remainder in New York, eastern and foreign offices.

It has been impossible so far to obtain from anyone connected with the fire any idea of the value of the machinery or stock either in detail or round figures. The general estimates however, vary from a million to a million and a half of dollars.

Information is being lodged with the police of the intention to blow up the law court. Three arrests have been made. A large quantity of dynamite was discovered in a house in Chestnut street near Strand.

Colonel Humby, war correspondent to the London World, wired from Trinitia, Egypt, last night, that the forces were on the eve of action and expected to be engaged this morning at day-break.

UNIONTOWN'S CANDIDATES. MISS LIZZIE NUTT Among the Applicants for the Postmastership. Washington Dispatch to N. Y. World. Geo. Bailey, state treasurer of Pennsylvania, a Stalwart Republican and one of the best political bosses of that state, was in a very angry frame of mind Thursday evening, when he addressed a group of friends at the Riggs house. He is a resident of Uniontown. He came here for the purpose of asking the president to appoint a man by the name of Ben postmaster there. He arrived Thursday morning and called at the White House soon after 11 o'clock.

"Oh, yes," said the president; "you are Gen. Bailey, state treasurer, I believe." "I dare say," said Gen. Bailey, "that you will be willing to concede to me the fact that I represent a certain political influence in the state."

"Far would it be from me," said the president, "to contradict such a modest assumption." "My reason," said Gen. Bailey, "for making the assumption is to demonstrate the fact that when I give a pledge I have the power to carry it out."

"Then I am to infer," said the president pleasantly, "that you have called this morning for the express purpose of doing me harm?" "Well, I don't know," said the president, "but I am to infer that it is exactly what you look at. I have got a man, Rush, that I want made postmaster at Uniontown. He is a first-class man and a big fellow. If you will appoint him, I will master you can with confidence count on the delegation from that district at the Chicago convention."

"Will one postmastership do that all?" said the president, with an air of levity which grated upon Bailey's sensitive nature. "The president continued to fence with the Pennsylvania politician, chaffing him in the midst of most ardent protestations, and refused in the most exasperating way to make a single promise. The result was that in a very few moments Gen. Bailey had a rush of blood to the head and became so mad that repeated shouting of his woe during the rest of the day had not cooled him off.

When the shades of evening came he left the town swearing vengeance against the president. This Uniontown fight has some complications which may or may not have an effect on the delegation from that district to Chicago. Sturges, the editor of the Uniontown paper, is backed by the Independent Senator and all of the Republican congressmen of the state. Miss Lizzie Nutt is being pushed for the place as a compromise candidate. The president is gravely asked to appoint this young woman so as to enable her to regain lost social standing.

Greely's Boyhood. HORACE GREELY'S personal appearance was always a subject of remark from his boyhood. Rollin C. Mallory, a member of the New York army, was an able champion of the American system, used to narrate a visit of his to the printing office of a country newspaper at Poutney, Vt., his place of residence. His attention was attracted to a young compositor, who was rather awkwardly dressed, but who had a certain air of growth, was evidently the youngest apprentice in the office. His legs ran a good deal more than "a feet" through his pantaloons, the sleeves of his coat scarcely reached below his elbows, his hair was very white and flaxen, and he was on the whole, in the aggregate, taken separately and together, the greenest looking specimen of humanity we ever looked at, and this is saying a good deal, for "that" is looking a little like "that." "That boy," said Mr. Mallory, "will make a remarkable man; I can't hold an argument with him on Masonry or anything else connected with politics."

As Mr. M. was considered one of the ablest men in Congress, his remark caused some surprise, and we not only "made a note of it," but took another look at the "devil" (printer we mean), and could not but trace in the expansive forehead "a mind wrought in nature's finest mould and wrought for immortality." It was years afterwards that we became aware of the fact that that boy was Horace Greely.
