After a Rainy Ride a Country Physician

"I wish to gracious some people would earn when they need a doctor and when they don't," exclaimed Doctor E-, as he entered his house in a cozy little village in the interior of the state of New York, after a te dious night ride of many miles "I have been down among the mountains to see a man who the messenger said was very sick and not likely to live until morning, unless he had mmediate help; and found him suffering rom a rather sharp attack of coilc, which his family might have relieved in ten minutes, if they had a grain of sense and two or three simple remedies in the house. But no: they must remain ignorant as pigs, and when the least ache or pain takes them, send for a docor, whether they ever pay him or not."

Paper Hanging and Shade Work, " Why, Deeter, what kind of simple reme dies, as you call them, do you expect people As the rush will soon commence. We have an Elegant Stock of to keep in the house?" asked his wife, as she poured him a cup of hot tes.

"In this case," answered the Doctor, "If they had only put a BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER on the man's stoma h, he would have been all right in an hour and saved me a dreary 11de."

In all ordinary complaints it cures at once. All diseases are eliminated from the system by what may be roughly called expulsion or extraction, or by a union of the two process es. Benson's Plaster promotes both. It in-cites the torpid organs to act and sends its bealing, sootning influence through the myr tad pores of the skin. All other plasters oblige the patient to wait. They give him hope for Benson's plaster gives him belp to-day. Which is better, do you think? Buy the CAPCINE and keep it in the house. Price

At a recent lecture delivered by Bishop Littlejohn to the students of the General Theological seminary, of New York, on "The Christian Ministry at the Close of "The Christian Ministry at the Close of "Theological seminary, of New York, on "The Christian Ministry at the Close of "Theological seminary, of New York, on "The Christian Ministry at the Close of "Thrown partly "The Maken and "Thrown partly "Thrown the Nineteenth Century," the bishop said there were various estimates of the Christian ministry, which were reducible to three views—that of the agnostic, who held that it would be supplanted by another interviews of reviews of restrictions and forming a strong Ruben. This cloak ground, was a rich scarlet glowing cloak or woolen fabric. This cloak was lined with purple and its cape and edges trimmed with a tiny border of gold. held that it would be supplanted by another instrumentality; the view of persons to whom the ministry was a matter of doubt; and thirdly, that the Christian presethood was an institution by which God was reconciling the world to himself. The free thought of the time, handled the The free thought of the time handled the ministry with scant courtesy, but that was not the most abiding thought. The clergy once wielded a wide influence as a learned class, and were accepted as educational guides. They founded schools and seminaries, and in this country there was scarcely a college up to 40 years ago that did not owe its existence to their sympa-thetic interest. To day, at home and abroad, in the movement for secular education, the clergy had been retired, and of Pope Leo XIII. Then comes your place any attempt on their part to manage the public schools would be met with deter-mined opposition. The battle has been won by the secular power. There were still schools where clergymen governed, but it was as the representatives of the religious bodies to which they belonged. In England, clerical influence was waning in this respect, and the drift of legislation was adverse to the clergy as educators.

direction. The solemn trust had changed hands. There was no limit, continued the bishop, to the power of the press in throwing off marvelous photographs of the thought and movement of the world, but it was not easy to see how this agency should be forced into comparison with the pulpit. The press could set up a pulpit in countless spots all over the world, but spoken truth and written truth were widely different things. The postal office also was no longer the chief dispenser of charity. There were altered methods of relief, which was now now largely accomplished by taxes levied by civil authorities. It followed from these considerations that the influence of the priest had fallen off in bulk and force, but might it not be that in being less mixed with secular influence it would revert to the original apostolic spirit? As to the dearth of great preachers, no age had a more gifted and versatile ministry than the present. There was a great deal of preaching that was more wind and had no doctrinal backbone. There was not a little that was heavy and dull by those mesterious Providence had transferred to the pulpit from the byways of mediocrity. But the ministry was on a level with any other calling, and the world was passing to a period when men would crave the inner heat rather than the outward sparkle of language. The ministry was blamed for its want of self the church edifice was warmed in the winter, whether it was near a railroad, and how about donations. The bishop de clared that no citadel of sin could be carried by those who asked such ques

"In our day," he continued, "boldness in the pulpit has become recklessness. With us the system is greater than the individual. The ancient creeds are greater than any man's speculations. This may be our misfortune, but it is our character istic. Some minds are at peace only when they are at war, and they are happy only when they are showing what fools their fathers were."

Female Education in India. The first steps taken in India in the direction of female education for the masses were taken in Madras about 1841 by the Scottish missionary society and in Bombay by the American missionary so-ciety so far back as 1824; and in the North of India, as well as in the South, the report tells us the missionary societies have been the pioneers of female educa-tion. Since 1854, indeed, government has done much in the same direction, and it is highly satisfactory to find from the evidemand for girls' education in schools is surely, if slowly, springing up among the natives But much remains yet to be done. The funds available for dence taken by the commission that the female education are extremely meagre. amounting in the year 1882 3 to less than eight and a half lacs, or only about 4.65 per cent. of the total expenditure on edu cation from the public funds. This arises in great part from the fact that munici palities and local boards are allowed to exercise full discretion in the assignment of funds for education, and that hitherto the sympathies of the people have not gone sufficiently in the direction of female education to induce local bodies to devote to it any of the funds at their disposal. The commission propose to remedy this by making all public funds, local, municipal and provincial, chargeable in an equitable proportion for the support of guls' schools as well as boys' schools, and they also recommend that the grant in aid rules as applied to girls' schools should be greatly relaxed. Next to the want of funds comes the want of trained female teaching power. It appears that there were only 515 girls at normal schools throughout all India, and that Bengal, with 18,550 girls in female schools, had only 41 young women under training for teaching. The consequence is that the teaching staff of girls' schools at present has to be mainly recruited from superannuated schoolmas-ters, many of whom have lost their powers Wilcox & White Organ Co. of work. The commission, therefore, recommend that by the establishment of normal schools, the subsidizing pupil teachers and other means, efforts should be made to raise up a class of trained female teachers, who should be substituted by degrees for the present male teachers. The need of female agency in the matter of inspection also is insisted upon, as it is urged that the present system of inspection by male inspectors often tends rather to retard the progress of female education.

A Visit to the Pope. tome Correspondence of the Baltimore Sun There is not a ruler in all Christendom that is as easily approached as Leo XIII. To be presented to his Holiness, a gentleman must go in evening full dress, sans gloves. A lady goes dressed in black, wearing a black lace veil over head and shoulders, after the early Italian court style or the modern Spanish mode.

The lady also goes sans gloves. The presentations are of two orders, public and private, and generally in the morning. A public audience sometimes embraces the papal mass and afterward the personal introduction. I was presented by Mgr. Macchi, the chief chamberlain. The pope was seated. He wore a cashmere all, made from the chosen lamb's wool on each St. Agnes day; fitting his body closely, it presented the outlines of a lithe and somewhat nervous figure. Around A BISHOP ON GOSPEL MINISTERS.
