FROM ST. LOUIS TO SAN ANTONIO.

Graphic Description of a Southern Journey by Ball-An Ola Time Texas City Pictured.

The following graphic account of a trip by rail from St. Louis to San Antonio together with the details of a brief story in the latter city is from the pen of an old Lancastrian writing to a friend in this On the 13th of Feb, we left St. Louis in the handsome hotel car, Gallia, on the Missouri & Pacific railroad. It had been snowing through the day and was intense ly cold in the evening, when we left the city. The road seemed unusually roughthe train moved along very slowly and can tiously and there was such an extra amount of jolting that we suspected some danger. the roughness was the effect of the extreme cold, which had covered the track with ice so that special care was neces.

Our breakfast was served in excellent style, we sat down to a neatly spread table and enjoyed the coffee, steak and omelet, at our leisure. This is a vast improvement on the plan of rushing out to a restaurant or hotel, with "twenty min-utes for breakfast," or dinner, ringing in one's cars.

From the car window, after we had finished cating, a most brilliant sight met our eyes; everything was covered with ice, and glittering in the sunshine; the trees and grass, as far as the eye could reach, were dazzling in their brightness. The telegraph wires were hanging in festoons from pole to pole, and, in many places, were weighted to the ground and broken, looking like immense strings of diamonds. The barbed wire fences were hung with rows of brilliant fringe, reflecting every color of the rainbow. Resting comfortably in the cushions of a Pullman, we could enjoy this wintry appearance of clothed in the verdure of spring, we were glad for this unusually beautiful sight. We continued to travel very slowly and did not reach Indian territory until four o'clock. It was a disappointment not to have more of a daylight ride through the Nation ; but, so far as we could judge, the country was very similar to Kansas; though there were fewer towns and more

Through Indian Territory. Vinita was the only large place we passed before dark; it presented quite a thrifty and attractive appearance; it is really a city, but the better portion of it could not be seen from the cars. We watched eagerly for a genuine specimen of the noble red man, but the civilization of this part of the Nation deprived us of any such curiosity. We saw a number whose dark complexion and black hair told of the blood that flowed in their veins, but There are evidently great expectations for far distant; behind this dark ridge the to taste the luxuries which they sun sank peacefully in a cloudless sky, but lighting up the beavens with the richest hues of red, yellow and blue, so that we could imagine the poor red man might easily have been persuaded, by the aggressors who desired to possess his hunting grounds, that the land of the setting sun was just beyond the hills, and far more to be coveted than the dark country on this side. Traveling Ihrough Water. An hour after sunset we passed over the repaired wash-out, which had pre-Monday night from continuing its trip, so that it turned back to the city-many of its passengers remaining at various towns, waiting for Tuesday's train. About nine o'clock we found we were passing through water, which had overflowed the track to some depth, the large cakes of ice grating against the wheels, causing no very pleasant sensation among the passengers. An hour or two later we reached another overflow of a branch of the Canadian river, which covered the track to a depth of from two to three feet for nearly two miles. washed upon the platform. Most of the passengers had retired, but many of them made a hasty toilet and crowded to the doors and platform, feeling some tropidation as to the result of this trip through the water ; we knew that the engineer could not see the track, and that on each Hunt's Bemedy for diseases of the kidneys that if we left the track we would at least have had an uncomfortably cold bath. Be sides, the water being so high, there was danger of the engine fires being put out. It was quite exciting for a time, but as Tuesday's train had passed through only a few hours ahead of us, our engineer and

and we did get through safely, for which all felt thankful, We reached Denison nearly ten hours evening. At Taylor, we overtook the train which had started from St. Louis twenty-four hours ahead of us, and we after the patient had been pronounced incur came into San Antonio together, at four o'clock on Saturday morning. We had gained time during the night and were bie citizen .- Cos. ED. only eight hours late. We remained in ourselves—and then, after our safe and comfortable ride of two days and three nights, we left our place of two days and three used Hunt's Remedy with the best results.

H. S. Whitney, assistant postmaster, Putnam, Conn., writes May 3, 1833; "I have used Hunt's Remedy with the best results." our berths until seven o'clock, as the connights, we left our pleasant quarters in the Gallia, and bidding our genial conductor good-bye, drove to the Hotel Maverich, after breakfast. Summer Weather in San Antonia. The morning was cloudy and cold, and there was a sense of disappointment and a suspicion that the sentiment about the 'balmy, sunny south' was a base fabrica tion; but before noon the sun was shining so brightly, and the air was so warm, that we sat by an open windew watching the ladies promenading, without any wraps, and carrying parasols! The mornings have been usually cool, but by ten o'clock t grows warmer and the rest of the day s generally delightful; at midday it has really been too warm for comfort; in the evenings we can sit on the porch or gallery, till eight and nine o'clock. The grass, vines and bushes are looking very green and spring-like, and the peach trees have been in blossom for at least a week ; most of the trees are budding rapidly, and in a short time will appear in full leaf.

A Texan City. We remained at the hotel for a few days and then found comfortable accommodations in a boarding house on the bank of the San Antonio river. This is a very winding stream, narrow, but a swift ber of squares or plazas at various dis-tances through the city; they are used for market purposes, very much as Centre Square in Lancaster used to be. All of the old houses here are low, mostly one story, built of stone and plastered; adobe, I believe it is called ; they are surrounded by pretty yards and present a quaint, old fashioned appearance, but they are rapidly giving way to more modern homes.

There are a number of handsome new business buildings now occupied, and many more are being put up; improvements are going on in all directions, and in a few years this ancient, interesting old

Mexican city will be transformed. Points of Bistoric Interest. It would have been gratifying to have risited it before these changes commenced for now things are in a somewhat chaotic state, because of the great amount of building that is going on. Of course many of the old historic buildings will be preserved as points of interest. One of these is the old Alamo mission, near the centre We reached Sedalia two hours late. The delay was caused by the heavy rains having made the road bed uncertain and which Gen David Crocket and his when of the city, on Alamo Plaza, the building were building during the siege, and where they lost their lives, being murdered on surrendering to Santa Anna. It is of course much defaced and dilapidated but has been protected by a new roof. There is also San Fernando Cathedral, from the tower of which Santa Anna displayed his flag, when demanding surrender. A party of eight of us took carriages: few days ago and visited the old missions -three and six miles from the city; these are from 150 to 200 years old-the first one, three miles distant, is preserved in pretty good condition, the interior being whitened, and kept so that services can be held in the main part of it; but in some parts the old paintings and decorations on the walls are still discernible, The second mission is the oldest. From the ruins still standing it is evident that it was once a fine building, the arched entrance over the principle door showing some handsome carving. A celebrated artist from Spain was brought here to do this work. There must have been a number of targe figures and many smaller ones, few of which remain in good condithings and as we could not see the country fion; most of them have been defaced or carried away piecemeal by visitors. These missions are now guarded by families living on the grounds, so that little more damage can be done.

San Pedro Springs. One afternoon we took a drive to San Pedro Springs, located in a beautiful park ; the clear spring water comes from a large hole in the rock, which is fringed about with lively maiden hair-fern, and then flows over a mass of brilliant green vines, producing a charming effect; nu-merous other springs swell the stream and it flows on through ditches made for pur poses of irrigation, and then into the San Antonio river. San Pedro Park is the prettiest one here -it is about two miles from the city, and is a great resort on bright, warm days, crowds going out in the street cars, which run to the entrance. One evening we went down to the militheir dress and general aspect were so tary plaza, where the Mexicans furnish modern as to destroy all the romance. Juneli, having the tables spread in the open square, with no covering over them. the development of this country, judging from the numerous signboards marking of a stove on which to make coffee and the sites of prospective towns. The chief at checolate, and cook special Mexican traction here was the beautiful sunset at dishes; things did not look very inviting, this hour; breaking the monotony of the or give one the impression of being any plains, a line of hills was to be seen, not too cleanly, but some of us were tempted tamales (ta-mah-lis) and chilli con carne. We did not find them very palatable, but possibly we lacked a cultivated taste ! Recently we had a mild norther, which blew rather cold all day and raised a dreadful dust; to day it is quite cold. There are many attractive things about this country, but we are not enthusiastic over it. There are more signs of winter

C. R. B. than we expected to see. The reason why Solomon said, that there was nothing new under the sun, was that he could not buy a good remedy to cure his sinb-born cold. Dr. Ball's Cough Syrup had not been compounded then. It has long since proved fiself to be the great benefaction of the ninoteenth century.

My business requiring me to be on my feet most of the time made my case worse. I was advised to use Runt's Remedy by a friend who had been cured by it, and can truly say that it has benefited me more than all the other medicines I have used. I consider it the best medicine for kidney and liver troubles, and cheerfully recommend it to all.'
