

Lancaster Intelligencer.

MONDAY EVENING, MARCH 24, 1884.

Another Interpretation. Col. McClure gives to a New York Herald reporter a different deduction from his interview with Carlisle and Morrison...

That is an accurate view of the situation as we regard it, and if Mr. McClure had first so stated the impression which he derived from his consultation with Carlisle and Morrison at Washington...

Those who say that free trade Democrats carry their devotion to their idea so far as to desire to have a declaration in its behalf put into the party platform...

It does not appear that Mr. Arthur and his followers are hunting delegates with a brass band; nor are they so openly and unblushingly using the federal patronage to renominatize him as it was used, for instance, by John Sherman to promote his presidential aspirations in 1880...

It would be interesting to know how large a fund the county treasury has on hand from time to time, who has the use of it and what part the consideration of this matter will play in the make up of combinations for the approaching Republican primaries...

We fear that experience has taught our Republican friends in this county nothing, and from observations of the subterranean movements now in progress in their ranks...

A WOMAN IN SYRACUSE, mother of a family, shot and killed a man—a husband and father—because after their undue intimacy, and his rejection of her, she "insulted" her on the street.

A TEXAS COW BOY.

HOW HE DIED WITH HIS BOOTS ON.

Ben Thompson had been killed the other night in San Antonio, Texas, he probably would have been finished in Dallas, if he had not been rescued...

A NEW YORK Herald reporter has thought it worth while to gather the opinions of Philadelphia editors upon things political, and finds a remarkable degree of unanimity among them in favor of President Arthur as the Republican candidate for reelection.

GEN. MERRIS writes to the New York Tribune that the proper thing for England to do in Egypt is to lay a railroad from the Red Sea to Khartoum, and as far down the Nile as it aims to control the country.

STATE SENATOR MYLIN, in his aspiration to succeed himself, may find it difficult to explain to some of his Lancaster city constituents why he opposed and helped to defeat the obviously fair bill to equalize the costs in cases dismissed by mayor and magistrates in this city.

WHILE the bishops in the House of Lords were voting against the admission of the public to museums on Sunday, the House of Commons were voting for the abolition of bishops as peers, and came within eleven votes of carrying out their design.

USE has at last been found for bald heads. An enterprising English tradesman advertises for twenty bald-headed men willing to have an advertisement of a patent medicine printed on the back of their heads.

PARNELL has struck another decisive blow for home rule in his recent manifesto inciting a rebellion against the payment by the people of the tax required for the offensive police measures lately adopted.

THE EARLY DEED CAPTURED THE WORD. Poor foolish woman!—if he had lain snug in his cot, he would have slept the sleep of the just.

A DISCRETION in Washington a few nights ago of the advisability of the Senate bill, having in view the appropriation of large sums for the education of the negroes and the Indians brought out a colored professor of a training school in Alabama with the remark, "Let the negro stand alone; let him take care of himself!"

A VERY pretty story is traveling through the newspapers, credited to the Pittsburg Post, concerning how Harry Packer, recently deceased, found his bride in true romantic fashion as is discovered as a pretty wedding in a summer hotel near young Packer's home, Miss Lockwood by name.

THE INTELLIGENCER would have abundant opportunity to call "the same men fools one day and wise men the next," as the Philadelphia Times accuses it of doing, if it followed the different declarations of the editor of the Times on different days as to the opinions of those men.
