A JOCKEY AT HOME. HOW A TURFMAN LIVES. The Emoluments of a Turfman. James McLaughlin's talk about horses, riders and courses.

Frederick Archer, England's favorite jockey, has been the subject of countless articles in the British press. We have in America a jockey as honest as Archer, and a bold and swift to seize every chance in a race, and one whose long lists of victories...

The reporter was received by a young and charming lady to whose skirts a beautiful, blue-eyed, three-year-old girl was clinging in an affectionate and somewhat embarrassing fashion. For whenever the lady moved the child, who was staring with all her might, and smiling and laughing at the stranger, was taken up, and fell back, forming a barrier against her, or buried her head and shoulders in the rich Axminster carpet.

"That was a fact," said Mr. McLaughlin, "it did cost a pretty sum. We have just been in here a week, and have only begun to furnish the place. I bought the house out and out and paid for nearly twenty-five thousand dollars cash down, and I don't think I'll be able to get it back."

bridge and back again. I always eat nourishing food that gives me strength, and meat and airton steaks, without any vegetables—and no cake nor pie, nor ice creams, nor anything of that sort. I live pretty much then as I always do, but I'm more, and particularly in more, eating food. And as I don't drink at any time, nor smoke nor chew, I don't give up anything when I'm training. The exercise makes me feel as bright as a dollar, and I can never better nor healthier than when I'm training. This makes me think that I shall always be able to ride down to my present weight."

"And you are fond of walking?" "Very fond. I go of a brisk pace, and in fact I think my gait is better than four miles an hour from start to finish."

"Which of the jockeys do you think your most manganous foe, when you're mounted for a big race?" "Well, Hayward. For an all round rider short distances and long, and any kind of horse, he is no rider so good in America as Hayward. Barboe and Peakes come next."

"Saratoa, perhaps. But Monmouth park and Sheepshead Bay are nice and safe courses. I have seen a pair of the maps of the improved course at Sheepshead, but people tell me it is to be wonderfully fast and perfectly safe."

"I do not intend. There is always considerable danger for the inside horse of being crossed at the bluff, justed against the rails and thrown down. Then if a horse is on the inside and a little behind, he gets out off. And when there are two or three in front, he gets a pair of antlers, which is a very dangerous thing to be attached by neat bows of blue ribbon."

"The only pain we can safely make light of is the tooth-ache, but the pain of that rack our frame and tears our lungs is a matter of serious consequence. To alleviate the latter I have tried Hunt's Remedy. It is a very good medicine, and it is a relief to me in all my ailments."
