Lancaster Intelligencer.

MONDAY EVENING, APRIL 21, 1884.

BEATRICE. In the old Moravian ground Many a modest stone is found. Over little graves low resting, Love and hope and faith attending, With this legend graven there-- Her assurance and her prayer-- Beatrice.

A Swedish tourist is reported to have arrived at Warsaw in fulfillment of a wager made with two Englishmen, the conditions of which are that during this year, from the first of last January, he shall visit all the cities of Europe which are, or have been at any time, capitals, and numbering, according to his reckoning, 106. He has visited all the capitals of Germany (twenty six) and from Warsaw he will go on to St. Petersburg, and thence to Moscow, Vilna and Kiev. If he succeeds he is to receive £5,000 and his traveling expenses. But it is stated that although he has as yet visited only one-fourth of the whole number of cities he has undertaken to visit, he complains of extreme fatigue.

The Late Charles Keate. Personally Charles Keate was, when he wanted to be, a most amiable and genial man. Quite six feet tall, with a full, robust form and a fine, manly face, his outer man was at once impressive and handsome. He was one of the best whist players in England, and like all really good whist players, did not quarrel with his partner. It was a wish of his to visit America, and with a full canvas back and tarpaulin, he once said, "and drink a pint of beer, but I am afraid of the water." Of all his heroes (and what writer of fiction ever drew farther women?) his favorite, as well she might be, was Margaret Brand, the mother of Erasmus and the glory of the greatest of his novels, "The Cloister and the Hearth."

WHITNEY PLAINS, N. Y., May 7, 1883. I have for many years been troubled at times with muscular rheumatism and pleuritic pains, and have always found Alcock's Porous Plasters to be quick and efficient in affording relief. In December last I had an attack of pneumonia, which left one of my lungs in a weak and extremely sensitive condition, accompanied at times with severe pain. The application of one plaster relieved the pain in a short time, and I have worn one almost constantly since, as a protection to the weakened lung. I have used Alcock's Porous Plasters for myself and family for over twenty years, and always with speedy beneficial results, and I do not hesitate to recommend them for their mild counter-irritant and analgesic effects, in relieving rheumatism, neuralgia and pains of other nature, and neuritic character.

Be sure to obtain "Alcock's" Porous Plasters, as all others are worthless imitations. In inflammation of the lungs (pneumonia) and influenza of the air passages (bronchitis) use Alcock's Cattle Plaster, it is a specific. Keep your stable moderately warm and well ventilated. Price twenty-five cents per package of one pound. You Can Depend on It. For severe toothache and Neuralgia of the head I use Thayer's Electric Oil. This is certainly the best thing ever known for relief of pain of any kind. The house is never without it. Price 50 cents per bottle. Thayer's Electric Oil, N. Y. For sale by H. B.
