RESSON'S CAPCINE PLASTERS.

SLIGHT ODDS.

A Little Story With a Large Moral-One Man Who Knew His Own Business.

"No, my dear," said the venerable keeper o country store to a timbil little wirl whose head scarcely came up to the level of the counter. " No, my dear, we haven't any red flannel, but we have some first rate New Orleans molasses." Softly hinting that she didn't thing that would answer the purpose quite as well, the child went her way in search of the article she wanted.

"Have you BENSON'S CAPCINE PLAS-TERS?" asked a gentleman of a certain druggist whose name could be given were it de stred. "I am troubled just now with a touch of my old friend, the lumbago, and the Benson's Plaster seems to go to the soot almost as soon as it touches the skin." "Not at present," replied the druggist, gentally," but we have lots of plasters just as good. There is Alleock's, the Capsteam and others-won't one of them do as well ?"

" My dear sir," retorted the gentleman, with a slight show of temper, "I say nothing against those articles, but I am a business nan, and always ask for precisely what I want, and for nothing else. I may enlighten you, however, when I say that sometime ago, for another disease, of which the Capcine has since cured me, I tried all those you mention. with no appreciable benefit. Many bubbles have been pricked and much gilding has worn through. Labor is becoming more dignitied, because more than ever before it is wedded to thought. An Opinion of schopenbauer. London Stanuard. the "Philosophy of the Unconscious," who, next to Schopenhauer, has on like subjects engaged the attention of the studious in Germany makes no sign; nor among the English names do we find that of Mr. Herbert Spencer. Whether Mr. Herbert Spencer finds anything to admire Schopenhauer would have but little avenpathy with Mr. Herbert Spencer, and would have laughed to scorn his belief that the world improves, and that we are gradually advancing from an imperfect to a less imperfect state of things. Whatever philosophers may have decided on the subject, the world we live in need not be regarded as either the best or the worst of all possible worlds. By dialectics it can be proved to be either. It is safer, how-ever, for ordinary people to look upon it as a place in which we have neither much happiness nor any intolerable amount of suffering to expect. It is a world in which we have duties to perform, a truth which the author of the pessimistic philo sophy too frequently forgot. The Schopenhauer committee seems disposed to his due had he been the founder of a new and beneficent religion. He was not, however, one of those teachers whose preown blameless lives. Of the virtue of patriotism he seems to have had no conupon to defend his country against French invaders. He will probably have some sort of statue erected to him, But had such a proposal been made 14 years ago, are usually chosen to provide for any vacancies. St. Margaret, entombed in the cathedral at Cortona, is one of the most remarkable saints in the calendar. The bishop of Oregon recently visited it and was, by special permission, allowed to look upon the body. In a letter to the Oregon Catholic he says: "Before exposing the body of the saint, the Padre Custoda uncovered the crucitix, which spoke to ber, calling her my daughter and assuring her of her predestination. The sight of the saint's body is wonderful and beauti ful beyond expression. She looks really handsome; no one can believe, when see-ing her, that it is a lifeless body. Her body is also flexible, and can be easily undressed and dressed in a new habit whenever the old one begins to decay and there she has been lying for 600 years." Blamarck's Wife.

In Dr. Busch's new book about Bismarck the chancellor's wife is not presented in a particularly feminine and christian light. "Two days after the fall of Sedan," writes the doctor, "the chancellor read aloud to ing, in scriptural language, that the French might be destroyed. 'May I ask now the countess is?' inquired Priuce Albrecht (Occtober 29, 1870), while dining with the chancellor at Versailles. 'Oh,' replied the latter, 'she is all right, now that her son s getting better ; but she is still suffering children, who really cannot help having been born of such abominable parents.' A a few days later he imparted to us a remark made by her conceived in a not much milder spirit than the above: 'I fear that you will not find any Bibles in France, and

ing Schools. Scientific American. A contemporary writer says it is principally because of the conceit of weak and foolish parents who could not think of al lowing their boys to soil their hands with manual labor or tarnish their pedigree by associating with common workmen, that so many useless people exist. Many and many a young man have I known whose aptitudes called to him with all the imperious demands of instinct to learn a trade. but he was prevented from doing so by his parents, who preferred to see him filling the more important and dignified position of clerk, often working fifteen hours a day for $15 per month, and sometimes yielding to the small temptation to leave unpaid his tailor's bills. Or, if he escaped the clerkship, he was almost sure to nine professional men who stand off and eye with green envy the one in the round hundred who has made a success It is chanical trades, but the folly of parents in closing the doors of the trades in the face of their sons, and in the absence of good material we get bad. It is very often the case that we get hold of a boy who has but few or no qualifications, natural or acquired, for a trade, but be can probably make more money at that than at common labor, and, as we can do no better, we have to do the best we can. There is no doubt we are getting poorer subjects every year for apprentices for this very But we can reach a point so low that it is impossible to get any lower, and I believe we have about reached that point in some lines of business Some parents, and boys, too, are at last getting their eyes opened. They are learning that

Stephens, popularly known as Liberty hall in Augusta, Ga , for the purpose of converting it into a memorial school, which seemed to lag, has gained new life by recent events. Atlanta is ambitious of having the house in which the ex-governor so long lived moved up to that city, and for that purpose, it is said, the directors of the Atlanta Literary association intends to bid for the property and move the house to the new suburb called Peters Park, where it will be en dowed as the Historical hall of Georgia. It is also known that Geo. W. Childs, of the Philadelphia Ledger, has written to the original memorial committee offering to subscribe $500 if the rest of the fund, $25,000 is made up. Gen. Toombs was approached the other day for a contribution, which was confidently expected, and he gave a very gruff "No" for a nuswer. In utter astonishment the cauvasser asked why. "Because," said Toombs, "I want the people of Georgia to buy the property, and when they do I will endow it with enough to make it such a college as little Aleck would like to see there if he were alive." The probability is, however, that Atlanta parties will purchase the mansion for the first session of the New York Universalist Sunday school institute was hold on Thurs-Dr. Gunnison, the president of the insti-tute, occupied the chair. In the evening Mr. Albert J. Holden, the author of "Songs of Faith, Love and Hope," spoke on music in the Sunday school. He said a few of the hymns now found in Sunday school hymn books were good, while a great many were bad, both in their literary and musical qualities. One hymn he con-demned was "I want to be an angel and with the angels stand." This, he said, was a very commendable wish of the author, and one that should have been immediately gratified. Children, however, as a rule, did not wish to become angels, as a rule, did not wish to become angels, nor were their parents anxious that the little ones should be translated. Many hymns were rank blasphemy, and several contained most extravagant metaphorical illustrations. A creat Discovery.

Mr. Wm. Thomas, of Newton, Ia., says:
"My wife has been seriously affected with a cough for twenty-five years, and this spring more severely than ever before. She had used many remedies without relief, and being urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery, did so, with most gratifying results. The first bottle relieved her very much, and the second bottle has absolutely cured her. She has not had so good health for thirty years." Trial bottles free at C. Λ. Locher's drug store. Large size, $1.00.
