

Money for the Navy. The Democratic congressmen seem not to be unanimous as to our present want of a new navy and a new tariff.

Since the treasury is flush, and there is a general feeling that the United States ought to have a navy, it is probable that if the naval department was in honest hands it would get the money it wants.

Human life seems to be of small value about Haverhill. A woman who announced her intention of shooting another woman was actually killed instead of an innocent young man.

Every one is acquainted with the dates which hang near the footlights of the theatre to the actresses on the stage to better advantage.

The Chicago Tribune, which is the chief organ of Blaine in the West, shows more disposition to attack the Edmunds movement than any of its Eastern contemporaries of the same mind as itself.

Orange Jones, editor of the American Agriculturist, has some thirty years, but unaccountably, in the business management for a year or two past, has lately retired from its editorial department and located in Chicago.

Canon Knox Little recently preached in St. Paul's, London, and his peculiarly revival style was much criticised by the orthodox.

There is an unmistakable undercurrent of intense opposition to Edmunds in the West and Northwest, where the Republicans must count with certainty on their states to elect a president.

THE STORM IN OHIO.

Had the collector of the port of New York gone into the state convention and labored and lobbied for delegates in behalf of the renomination of Arthur, the flagrant breach of the civil service rules would have been pointed out by the Blaine people as an illustration of the abuse of federal patronage by those in control of it.

ADAM BADEAU gives a full charge at the state department. But as Badeau's battery are of small calibre and short range, the results will likely not be very serious.

THE DIAMOND FIELD.

The Philadelphia Reds played their last game of the season yesterday, when they were defeated by the Ironsides, the score standing 10 to 8 in favor of the latter.

Several of the Reds did good work with the ball, while Oldfield and McTamany were the chief contributors to the Ironsides' success.
