TUESDAY EVENING, JUNE 10, 1884.

Their Faith in Blaine.

About the only thing left to comfort the Republicans, in the general condemnation of their ticket, is the confidence they feel that Blaine is equal to the necessities of the canvass, and can run their craft into port if there is any way of getting her there.

We think that Senator McDonald's attribution of brains to Blaine does not comport with his belief that there is to be any such effort on his part to attract the Irish vote.

Blaine's impudence and boldness may be equal to changing the defensive campaign with which he opens into an offensive one, though it is not now to be seen how he will accomplish this transformation.

All the Same. E. K. Martin, esq., told his court house audience, met to ratify Blaine's nomination the other night, that the "noble impulse" which Carl Schurz gave to "civil service reform" under Hayes, "received the most cordial sympathy and support from Garfield and his great prime minister, Blaine; they took up the work exactly where Hayes left it; and the strongest antagonisms both afterward encountered were because they tried faithfully to execute the will that Schurz had written and Hayes had signed in which was embodied the precious but then unpopular legacy of civil service reform."

The fact is that one of the first acts of Garfield's administration, to which he was instigated by Blaine, was the removal, without cause, of the customs house officers at New York, who had been appointed by Hayes, in furtherance of what he and Carl Schurz called "civil service reform."

Mr. Martin either knows this to be the case, or he doesn't; but to that audience, which, like Reichel and Johnson, had not read the platform and did not care what was in it, it may be assumed that it did not matter whether Martin was fooled or was trying to fool them.

The Stewarts and the Malwarts. A pungent correspondent of the West Chester Local News reminds the Republican readers of that newspaper that the nomination of Mr. Blaine was only made possible by the Independents' determined and successful opposition to the dictation of the "bosses" in 1882 in this state; and asks the people of the whole country "to thank the Independent Republicans of Pennsylvania who in 1882 by their courage and determination in resisting wrong brought the Salwart faction and their accepted 'bosses' to a true realization of their position and the necessity for submission to the will of the people," by the defeat of Beaver. There seems to be a similar disposition manifested by the Independents all over the state to rub brine into the striped backs of the Salwarts. In this city, for instance, they grabbed the organization of the ratification meeting, and made the late bolters the head and front of it.

The so-called Independents of Pennsylvania may be pardoned their zeal, however. They have good reason for their satisfaction. It is well known that all through the senatorial contest of 1882 they had the sympathy of Garfield and Blaine in their resistance to Oliver's election; and the Stewart movement of 1882 had Blaine's moral support. He refused to come into the state and speak for Beaver; he desired his defeat; for he knew that would give him control of the organization here and of the next delegation to the national convention; and he has not been disappointed. His friends have reaped where they sowed, and it is natural that they should feel like celebrating their harvest home.

Consentive Editors. The New York Times and Post, the Boston Advertiser and the Springfield Republican seem to be journals having the courage of their convictions, since they maintain the opposition to Blaine after his nomination which they had before, although they are Republican newspapers. Journals with weaker handling, or weaker timber, such as the Philadelphia Telegraph, support Blaine because he is the candidate of the Republican party, whose success they affect to believe to be more important to the country than it is that its candidates should be good and fit men. This is the way nearly all politicians reason because they are politicians and it is the politician's nature. It is also the party editor's nature. He has been howling for his party so long that he can't stop it, even when he has to howl against its candidate; and as a further reason for his sticking to his ticket he has the pressure upon him of his subscribers, who nearly unanimously are for their party, right or wrong. It requires a vast amount of courage in a party organ to be entirely independent and few there be who enter in at that straight gate.

Not all the waters of Maine could wash one small part of the stain away from the record of Blaine.

The New York Tribune has an interview with a "tattooing artist," who very naturally says he has "just come home from Chicago."

OUR OWN ANIMALS. I would not enter on my list of friends. Though graced with polished manners and yet wanting sensibility, the man who needlessly sets foot upon a worm.

A CRUSADE has been begun in San Francisco against immoral and indecent publications. Had it happily been in progress earlier it would have interfered with the full reports by the San Francisco papers of the Sharon-Hill law suit.

The royal family in Holland believe in bending the youthful tree when it is young. It is reported that King William, of Holland, has secretly affianced his three year old daughter, Princess Wilhelmina, to Prince Baudouin, son of the Count of Flanders, heir apparent to the throne of Belgium, in order to reunite Holland and Belgium.

DORSEY, in his letter to Springer's committee declared that George E. Spencer demanded of the late J. W. Bosler and himself $15,000 to pay to Mr. Elkins for the purpose of avoiding indictment and prosecution; and that S. B. Elkins, United bank building, New York, has probably a larger knowledge than any other person of all the Star route matters and the money paid. "This is the Elkins who managed Blaine's canvass at Chicago."

The appointment of Most Rev. P. J. Ryan, D. D., Catholic coadjutor archbishop of the province of St. Louis, to the vacant archbishopric of Philadelphia is not what will be received with the heartiest satisfaction by the Catholics throughout the state, over whose spiritual affairs the new prelate will in future preside. The archiepiscopal province embraces the sees of Harrisburg, Erie, Scranton and Pittsburgh as well as Philadelphia, and has a total Catholic population of 600,000. Archbishop Ryan is fifty-three years of age, and is universally conceded to be the leading pulpit orator of the American branch of the church. The great abilities of the new archbishop will take on added lustre in the broader field of duty to which he has been assigned.

The annual commencement of Franklin and Marshall college will be the leading local event of next week. The flourishing condition of the institution on college hill, the special features of the exercises and the freshness and beauty of the campus at this season will all tend to increase the interest of the festivities. Rev. Dr. Stahl, will preach the baccalaureate sermon on Sunday; on Tuesday evening Geo. A. K. McClure will make the public address before the literary societies, in the court house, on "College Dreams;" Wednesday will be alumni and class day, the chief feature of the programme being the society reunions, alumni meeting, the laying of the corner stone of Hood observatory, the alumni dinner, class celebration and junior prize oratorical contest; the graduating orations will be delivered on Thursday.

PERSONAL. ANIBAL PINTO, ex-president of Chili, is dead.

BRECHER, having spent $120,000 on books, has now begun to sell them off.

SHARON testified in his scandalous suit that his experience with women is that when they win they never divide and when they lose they never pay.

REV. DR. DEEMS tells his congregation to go to sleep if they feel sleepy in church; that both he and the Lord will forgive them; but that they must sleep quietly.

JOEL CHANDLER HARRIS ("Uncle Remus") is one of the most beautiful men, and it is a pity that his friends have never summoned up courage to get married.

SENATOR MITCHELL assures the public that he had a long talk with Mr. Blaine on the subject of civil service reform, and that he expressed himself heartily in accord with the Independent position.

TOM HUGHES, who is now at home in London, is doing his best to incite emigration, especially of educated young Englishmen, to this country, urging them to begin farming and cattle raising, even on a limited scale.

CAPT. PERKINS, a very old daughter, and is the richest girl in the world, her grandfather, William E. Wald, having recently left her $700,000. She is to have $200,000 annually until she reaches legal age to receive her millions.

REV. JAMES J. RUSSELL, pastor of St. Peter's church, Columbia, has been appointed to the pastorate of Central, made vacant by the resignation of its former pastor, and Rev. Michael J. O'Reilly, pastor of St. Columbkille's church has been transferred to Columbia.

ROOSEVELT, the rising New York politician looks like a young college graduate hunting for a place on the editorial staff of some newspaper, where he can revolutionize journalism. He has a very light colored, slight mustache, wears jaunty clothes, and his head is topped by a small straw hat with a straight rim dyed blue on the under side.

SERENADING BLAINE.

THE SALUTE FROM HIS OWN PARTY.

What the Leading Republican Newspapers Think and Say of the Outcome at Chicago Last Friday.

At the height of its power the Republican party would have found such a ticket heavy a load. At a juncture when it commands less than a majority of the votes of the American people the party can survive the fate of the ticket only by repudiating it. There is no majority, whether fairly represented or not, that should be permitted to impose such a thoughtful and conscientious voters the necessity of sacrificing conviction and self-respect at the shrine of party duty. What, is perhaps, more to the purpose, there is no majority, real or imaginary, in the Republican ranks in the present state of party feeling, need make the attempt. Whether the nomination of James G. Blaine be a triumph for all the rascality and jobbery in administration which has disgraced the Republic, or whether it be the response to a sentiment of admiring enthusiasm deeper and more lasting than was ever aroused by any American statesman since Henry Clay, it is none the less a gross and unwelcome insult to the progressive politics which the party has adopted and of every vital reform of which it made itself the champion. The recklessness of Blaine might be restrained by responsibility, his venality might shrink and disappear, his self-interest might be beaten upon the presidency, his demagoguery even might drop its clasp and assume the likeness of statesmanship, but the man whose canvass has been directed by some of the most corrupt elements of the party, the man who has been a lobbyist and officeholder, North and South, to render even the turning loose of hungry Democratic hordes in quest of patronage and plunder a possibility more undesirable than his election. To those Republicans who have striven to keep the standard of party action as high as the standard of character accepted among honest men to be the candidate of Clayton and Elkins will be regarded as a more despicable distinction than to have been the patron and puppet of a party which has let its men who have nominated James G. Blaine will be left the task of electing him. Whether they willfully or ignorantly misunderstood the attitude of those Republicans without whose aid his ticket cannot be put into nomination, or whether they doubt about the nature of the revolt they have provoked. Those who have sown the wind need not be ready to reap the whirlwind.

A Democratic Opinion. Mr. Henry Watterson, writes for the Courier-Journal (Dem.) Louisville: "James Gillespie Blaine, long loved in secret, but held at arm's length for prudence sake, is named as the candidate for president of the United States. Mr. Blaine is a typical and a dangerous type of the party that is bad and that is bad in the party of which for years the real, he is now both the actual and nominal chief. He is a man, as it is a party, without conviction and without restraint. He is a man in whom the noblest qualities of courage, aggressive, vindictive and adaptable. He is a man, as it is a party, of varied, many colored, wool, capable of extreme generosity and brutal selfishness—all things by turns and nothing long. In the nomination of Blaine, there was a time when in Spain he went by the name of Gil Blas, and he is still remembered in Italy as Fra Diavolo. In his veins courses the lightning blood of the Arabs. In his personality he is a cross between a man of letters and a man of letters. All that is emotional in the Republican character and that is demagogic in Republican instincts, all that is grasping and conscienceless in Republican arms and methods, is in his person fully represented in a most brilliant and successful manner. He is a man who has aroused within the bosom of his political associates, despite the danger, a species of blind adoration."

A Weak Nomination. A very general opinion among the Republican congressmen at Philadelphia is that the nomination of Blaine is a weak one, and that it is a concession to the Independent position. The Record correspondent with the assurance that no names would be published in connection with their opinions, shows that a majority regard the ticket as the weakest that could have been nominated at Chicago. The nomination is regarded as a concession to the Independent position. The Independent position is already lost to Blaine, and will say that if the Democrats do not nominate a man for whom the Independents can conscientiously vote the Independents will either nominate an Independent ticket or stay away from the polls.

Who's to be Postmaster General. The party's new candidate for president is deeply indebted to Powell Clayton, of Arkansas; Chaney L. Filley, of Missouri; Stephen B. Elkins, of New Mexico and New York; Logan H. Roots, of Arkansas; ex-Speaker, of Alabama; and Charles C. Kenner, of Louisiana, for political services rendered. Several of these have a practical knowledge of the operations and requirements of the United States mail service and Republicans who regard the nomination as equivalent to an election, are already indulging in some speculation as to which one of them will be made postmaster general.

Knows Him to be a Knave. The Evening Post, Rep., the mouthpiece of the Independents, has a very service form in the following unequivocal terms: "The jobbing, corrupt element in the party, which sees in politics simply a means of distributing dividends out of the national treasury, and to which all political issues are subordinate, has attracted public attention from their industry, has long been slowly coming to a head, in the fashion of a tumor, in Mr. James G. Blaine."

Not a Voter dares to tell his friends that he is going to vote for a man knowing him as equivalent to "That Mr. Blaine cannot be elected we look on as certain. Whether he can be defeated without ruining the organization which is being prostituted in the service of his selfish ambition, remains to be seen."

A Defensive Campaign. Phila. Evening Telegraph, Rep. The national convention, with full knowledge of what it was about to do, deliberately elected to enter upon a wholly defensive campaign in manner, and we hope it will be successful in its result, but it will have a difficult instead of an easy one to fight, and it will have to contest every inch of the way from now until the spring of the next year.

Revolutionary Nominations. These nominations are revolutionary. They are such as the Republican party has never before presented, and will carry dismay to thousands of men who have regarded this as a party of safety, of integrity, of principle, and of high moral ends. They portend deserved disaster and defeat to the Republican party and a revolution in the national administration.

Press and People. Prof. Howard Crosby, in an interview said: "If the Democrats nominate any decent man, like Bayard or Cleveland, I shall certainly vote for him, although I am a Republican ticket nearly all my life, and voted the Whig ticket before I voted that. I was in the company of 30 ministers yesterday and every one of them expressed the same opinion. I think the Democrats will get 20,000 more republican votes in New York city if they put up any decent man."

Several hundred returning delegates from Chicago arrived in New York early Sunday morning. Among them were many "reformers," who refused to say what action was meditated in view of their defeat at the convention. They said, however, that they did not intend to support Blaine. The Times says it cannot undertake to publish in full all the letters it receives from Republicans who are dissatisfied with the nomination of Blaine and Logan. "If it should it would have no space for the publication of news reports or for the expression of its own opinions."

J. Austin Stevens, an old time Republican of New York, and generally regarded as a bitter partisan, said that he will not support Blaine, and that the Democrats make a clean nomination. Mr. Stevens says he will vote for him. "The Boston Advertiser, Rep., says: 'With unabated devotion to the great purpose of the Republican party, which was organized and has been maintained, we declare our inability to support the nomination, either in the present aspect of the political field or in any which now seems likely to present itself.'"

No one has disapproved the charges made against Mr. Blaine, nor have they ever been withdrawn. In short, he is to-day in all respects the same man that he was before the convention assembled. "No one has disapproved the charges made against Mr. Blaine, nor have they ever been withdrawn. In short, he is to-day in all respects the same man that he was before the convention assembled."

The New England Straw Paper association, an organization composed entirely of Republicans, has unanimously resolved not to support James G. Blaine for the presidency, and agree, if the Democrats nominate a good, clean man, to do their best to elect him. "How did you vote?" asked a reporter of a Southern delegate after the convention. "I voted according to my convictions." "What were your convictions?" "That I'd not get another chance to make $100 a month."

Richard Smith, of the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, is quoted as saying that the chances are against the Republicans carrying Ohio. "The Chicago News, Rep., says: 'No one has disapproved the charges made against Mr. Blaine, nor have they ever been withdrawn. In short, he is to-day in all respects the same man that he was before the convention assembled.'"

The Republicans in every district should lose no time in organizing themselves as Mulligan Guards. It is said that H. B. Clavin & Co.'s store that of the 600 clerks employed there the great majority are Republicans, more than one half of whom will not vote for Blaine. Mr. Gould says "Blaine is a live man and will be a live president." Mr. Sam W. Taylor, president of the Liberty League, said: "Our subject Blaine is a live man." William Doud, president of the bank of North America, and late Republican nominee for mayor of New York, says that he will not vote for the "Immortal Knight." In Hartford, Conn., many of the foremost Republicans shake their heads and look at the political sky with fear. "Harper's Weekly" will oppose Blaine. The New York Evening Post announces on the 10th inst. that the publisher of the publishing house of Harper & Brothers, that "Harper's Weekly" will oppose the Chicago nomination; that the decision to this effect was reached by the members of the house unanimously; and that the pen of the editor, Mr. William C. Bryant, in the pencil of Mr. Thomas Nast will be exerted in support of this course."

CONTINUATION OF THE PROCEEDINGS.

The Communion Services on Sunday—The Interest in Stetson—Important Action of the Directory of Worship.

Saturday Afternoon.—Opened with divine service conducted by Rev. D. C. Tobias, Elder of Kettering, in the seat. Elder J. M. Westling, of Harrisburg, was excommunicated. Classis reiterated their action requesting pastors who have not done so, to prepare histories of their respective churches. The churches were recommended to make an offering in aid of the theological seminary, the orphan home, and publication board. Rev. E. V. Gerhart, D. D., chairman of the committee to supply the church at Mansfield, reported that the report was received and adopted. Rev. H. B. Shenkle, was appointed to supply this church, and the church requested to pay him not less than $100 for his services.

The committee appointed to care for the interest of the churches reported through the chairman, Rev. Geo. W. Snyder, that in October last a church was organized under encouraging conditions, with about twenty-five members. The committee with the aid of the student of the Theological Seminary at Lancaster, had since the organization of the church held services regularly for the congregation. Classis appointed Rev. George B. Snyder, Rev. J. H. Pannebecker, and Elders J. P. Schumaker, of Lancaster, and J. M. Westling, of Harrisburg, a committee to cooperate with the board of missions in the care of this church. Adjourned.

The Communion on Sunday. Service preparatory to the holy communion was held on Saturday evening. Rev. D. C. Tobias, of Lancaster, preached the sermon, and Rev. J. G. Fritchey, the pastor conducting the altar service. On Sunday the holy communion was largely attended; Dr. Gerhart, who preached the sermon, was assisted in the altar service by Rev. Wm. F. Lichtner, the president of classes, the pastor, Rev. A. S. Stauffer, and the stated clerk, Rev. D. W. Gerhart.

In the afternoon a service for the Sunday school was held, presided over by Elder J. M. Westling, superintendent. Interesting addresses were delivered by Rev. D. B. Schneider, Elder W. H. S. Bair, Rev. D. W. Gerhart and Elder Dan'l Helm.

A service was held in the evening in the interest of the cause of missions. The president of classes, Rev. J. G. Fritchey, Rev. D. B. Schneider, Elder W. H. S. Bair, Rev. D. W. Gerhart and Elder Dan'l Helm.

The directory of worship. The committee to supply the Mansheim charge reported, and was continued with the altar services at Petersburg, as well as Mansheim.

The committee appointed to install Rev. J. H. Pannebecker pastor of Trinity church, Columbia, and Rev. J. P. Stein pastor of the Millersville charge, reported the history of the churches of the district.

At ten o'clock the classis took up the order of the day, the report of the committee on the directory of worship. The report was adopted and is as follows: "The committee to which was referred the history of the churches of the district, instructions to give an expression of opinion respecting its claims, present the following succinct report: '1. From an examination of the work it is found that the directory is constructed on the basis of the book entitled 'Order of Worship for the Reformed Church.' Whilst the changes are many and important, yet both the distinctive and the devotional language of the older production characterize this new book of worship."

"2. The changes consist partly in omissions of words and phrases in the offices for baptism, the holy communion and the Lord's Supper, which to many were objectionable, partly in the substitution of one formula of an act of worship, to another, for example, the declaration of pardon; partly in the modification of the language—changes, however, which possess different degrees of excellence."

"3. The doctrinal principles pertaining to sin and redemption, the person of Christ, the church and saints, and the last things; also, the liturgical spirit animating the directory, are all in hearty sympathy with the Heidelberg catechism and holy Scriptures. On the score of doctrinal truth it is not open to just criticism."

"4. The book has in it nearly all the best elements of common worship as developed in the history of the church; namely, the confession of absolution, the creed, Lord's prayer and the agnus Dei, Gloria in Excelsis, Gloria Patri, Te Deum, and the litany. Whilst the rubrics may be said to be somewhat at fault, yet freedom is accorded to ministers and people to use these liturgical elements according to the order which they prefer."

"5. Whilst some things both as to subject matter and form are wanting which many would like to have in this new book, and whilst some things are in it which do not commend themselves to the judgment and taste of all, yet taken as a whole the Directory of Worship is a work which is far in advance of any liturgy on which the whole church, east and west, has ever united, and may be pronounced, in this view, a great positive gain."

"6. Being the common basis on which all theological and liturgical tendencies among us have in good faith agreed to stand, the book having grown forth from our earnest controversies, constitutes a mark of progress in our history of theology and worship, and we are faithful to the obligations imposed by this epoch it will prove a unifying and edifying force among all the congregations of the Reformed church, east and west, north and south."

Your committee limits this report to some of the positive aspects of the directory. We deem it neither wise nor orderly to make comparisons or to deal in negative criticisms."

"For the reasons given, as well as for others which we do not think it important to include, we recommend that Lancaster classis pass the following action: 'Resolved, That the Directory of Worship submitted by the general synod be and the same is hereby approved.'"

After the reading of the action of the district synod on the subject of missions, classis adjourned.

Monday Afternoon.—Opened with divine service conducted by Rev. J. P. Stein, of Millersville.

Rev. A. R. Bartholomew, of Pottsville, and a member of Lebanon classis, was admitted to a seat as an advisory member.

John Heller's church, New Holland charge, was chosen as the place; and the Thursday after White Sunday, May 28, A. D. 1885, was fixed as the time for holding the next annual meeting.

Mr. Abraham N. Shaffner, a member of the Hammondsport Reformed church, now pursuing his study at Mercersburg college, having asked to be received under the care of classis, Revs. Geo. W. Snyder and A. S. Stauffer and Elder J. M. Westling were appointed a committee to consider a report on his application.

The supreme court has affirmed the judgment in the case of Ringwalt vs. Ringwalt on this county.

The directory of worship. The committee to supply the Mansheim charge reported, and was continued with the altar services at Petersburg, as well as Mansheim.

The committee appointed to install Rev. J. H. Pannebecker pastor of Trinity church, Columbia, and Rev. J. P. Stein pastor of the Millersville charge, reported the history of the churches of the district.

At ten o'clock the classis took up the order of the day, the report of the committee on the directory of worship. The report was adopted and is as follows: "The committee to which was referred the history of the churches of the district, instructions to give an expression of opinion respecting its claims, present the following succinct report: '1. From an examination of the work it is found that the directory is constructed on the basis of the book entitled 'Order of Worship for the Reformed Church.' Whilst the changes are many and important, yet both the distinctive and the devotional language of the older production characterize this new book of worship."

"2. The changes consist partly in omissions of words and phrases in the offices for baptism, the holy communion and the Lord's Supper, which to many were objectionable, partly in the substitution of one formula of an act of worship, to another, for example, the declaration of pardon; partly in the modification of the language—changes, however, which possess different degrees of excellence."

"3. The doctrinal principles pertaining to sin and redemption, the person of Christ, the church and saints, and the last things; also, the liturgical spirit animating the directory, are all in hearty sympathy with the Heidelberg catechism and holy Scriptures. On the score of doctrinal truth it is not open to just criticism."

"4. The book has in it nearly all the best elements of common worship as developed in the history of the church; namely, the confession of absolution, the creed, Lord's prayer and the agnus Dei, Gloria in Excelsis, Gloria Patri, Te Deum, and the litany. Whilst the rubrics may be said to be somewhat at fault, yet freedom is accorded to ministers and people to use these liturgical elements according to the order which they prefer."

"5. Whilst some things both as to subject matter and form are wanting which many would like to have in this new book, and whilst some things are in it which do not commend themselves to the judgment and taste of all, yet taken as a whole the Directory of Worship is a work which is far in advance of any liturgy on which the whole church, east and west, has ever united, and may be pronounced, in this view, a great positive gain."

"6. Being the common basis on which all theological and liturgical tendencies among us have in good faith agreed to stand, the book having grown forth from our earnest controversies, constitutes a mark of progress in our history of theology and worship, and we are faithful to the obligations imposed by this epoch it will prove a unifying and edifying force among all the congregations of the Reformed church, east and west, north and south."

Your committee limits this report to some of the positive aspects of the directory. We deem it neither wise nor orderly to make comparisons or to deal in negative criticisms."
