THE COMING RACE.

HOW THEY WILL DO WITH THE DEAD.

An Extract from Bulwer's Imaginative Sketch--Cremation--The Ideal Mode of Sepulture.

From Bulwer's "Coming Race" is taken the following chapter, which shows that among the social reforms of the future, predicted by that master mind, cremation is to be one of the leading features:

"On alighting from the air boat, a child accented Aph Lin in the hall with a request that he would be present at the funeral obsequies of a relation who had recently departed from that better world. Now, I had never seen a burial place or cemetery amongst this people, and glad to seize ever so inauspicious an occasion to defer an encounter with Zee, I asked Aph Lin if I might be permitted to witness with him the interment of his relation; unless, indeed, it were regarded as one of those sacred ceremonies to which a stranger to their race might not be admitted.

"The departure of an An to a happier world," answered my host, "when, as in the case of my kinsman, he has lived so long in this as to have lost pleasure in it, is rather a cheerful though quite festival than a sacred ceremony, and you may accompany me if you wish."

Preceded by the child-messenger, we walked up the main street to a house at some little distance, and entering the hall, were conducted to a room on the ground floor, where we found several persons assembled round a couch on which lay the deceased. It was an old man, who had, as I was told, lived beyond his 130th year. To judge by the calm smile on his countenance, he had passed away without suffering. One of the sons who was now the head of the family, and who seemed in vigorous middle life, though he was considerably more than seventy, stepped forward with a cheerful face and told Aph Lin "that the day before he died his father had seen in a dream the departed Gy, and was eager to be reunited to her and restored to youth beneath the nearer smile of the All-god."

While these two were talking, my attention was drawn to a dark metallic substance at the farther end of the room, which was about twenty feet in length, narrow in proportion, and all closed round, save near the roof, there were small round holes through which might be seen a red light. From the interior emanated a rich and sweet perfume, and when I was conducted to that purpose this machine was to serve, all the time pieces in the town struck the hour with their solemn musical chime; and as that sound ceased, music of a more joyous character, but still of a joy subdued and tranquil, rang throughout the chamber, and from the walls beyond, in a choral peal. Symphonies with the melody, those present lifted their voices in chant. The words of this hymn were simple. They expressed no regret, no awe, but a glad greeting to the new world whither the deceased had preceded the living. Indeed, in their language, the funeral hymn is called the "Birth Song."

Then the corpse, covered by a long ceremonial robe, was placed on a bier, and the nearest kinsfolk and borne towards the dark thing I have described. I pressed forward to see what happened. A sliding door or panel at one end was lifted up--the body deposited within, on a shelf--the door closed--a spring at the side connected--a sudden clicking, sighing sound heard from within; and lo! at the other end of the machine the lid fell down, and a small handful of smouldering dust dropped into a paper placed to receive it. The son took up the paper and said (in what I understood afterwards was the usual form of words): "Behold how great is the Maker! To this little dust He gave form and life and soul. It needs not this little dust for Him to renew our bodies, and a soul to the beloved one we shall soon see again."

Each present bowed his head and pressed his hand to his heart. Then a young female child opened a small door within and handed to me a paper, in which were shelves on which were placed many papers, like that which the son held, save that they all had covers. With such a cover a Gy now approached the son, and placed it over the cup, on which it closed with a spring. The lid were engraved the name of the deceased, and these words: "Lent to us" (here the date of birth) "Recalled from us" (here the date of death).

The closed door shut with a musical sound, and all was over. "And this," said I, with my mind full of what I had witnessed--"this, I presume, is your usual form of burial?" "Our invariable form," answered Aph Lin. "What is it amongst your people?" "We enter the body whole within the earth."

"What! to degrade the form you have loved and honored, the wife on whose breast you have slept, to the loathsomeness of corruption?" "But if the soul lives again, can it matter whether the body waste within the earth or is reduced by that awful mechanism, worked, no doubt by the agency of evil, into a pinch of dust?"

"You answer well," said my host, "and there are no arguments in a matter of feeling; but to me your custom is horrible and repulsive, and would serve to invest death with gloomy and hideous associations. It is something, too, to my mind, to be able to preserve the token of what has been the oldest effects of the drought reported from Stamford: 'A church organ there is blown by water-power. The organ day at a wedding the supply gave out in the middle of the wedding march, and the music squeaked itself away into silence while the bridal procession was moving up the aisle.'"

"NATURE'S GREAT PHYSICIAN." "What is the most eminent physician of any school, what is the best thing in the world for quieting and allaying all irritation of the nerves, and curing all forms of nervous complaint, giving natural, childlike refreshing sleep to all?" "And they will tell you unhesitatingly 'Some form of HOP BITTERS!'"

"Ask any or all of the most eminent physicians." "What is the best and only remedy that can be relied on to cure all diseases of the kidneys, urinary organs, bladder, gonorrhoea, diabetes, indigestion, biliousness, malaria, fever, ague, &c., and they will tell you: 'Mandrill's Bile Beans!'"

"What is the most reliable and surest cure for all nervous diseases, dyspepsia, constipation, indigestion, biliousness, malaria, fever, ague, &c., and they will tell you: 'Mandrill's Bile Beans!'"

SATURDAY NIGHT POLITICS.

Arthur's Latest, Fair Policy--The Cabinet Will Keep Hands Off.

Washington Special to Springfield Republican. Mr. Blaine told one of his best friends last spring that he did not care so very much about the nomination. "I'm living to beat Chester A. Arthur," said he. Of course, the remark reached Arthur's ears, and while the president may not make a real pronouncement, there is no doubt that he would prefer to see James G. Blaine lead the Republican party to defeat than that anybody else should have that honor or dishonor. Not much aid will Mr. Blaine get from the administration, and he probably doesn't expect much. The formal telegram that the president sent to Blaine immediately after the nomination was made and the perfunctory congratulations of the cabinet have been the only indications that Mr. Blaine has had that the administration knew that he was nominated. At the great ratification meeting here the other night not a member of the cabinet was present, possibly because no one was asked. The president expects to hide himself somewhere in the woods as soon as Congress adjourns, and to keep in hiding as much as possible all summer. Almost all of the members of the cabinet will seek political ruin in its own way, and will seek reelection as though it were not presidential year, and a rather dangerous one at that. There will be no assessments.

Blaine Will Not Be Entered. Since 1856 a grand mass meeting has been held during every presidential campaign at Woodstock, the "hatter county" of the Republican party in Connecticut. Henry J. Raymond, Henry Ward Beecher, Henry Wilson, and other prominent "free soil" leaders spoke there for Fremont and Dayton. Other mass meetings have been held there in honor of Lincoln, Grant, Hayes and Garfield. A grand celebration has been held there for many years every Fourth of July at Roseland Park, in Woodstock, at which many Republican leaders have appeared and pleaded for the Republican cause. This year in view of the great opposition, especially in Windham county, to the nomination of Blaine and Logan no reference to or endorsement of the Republican candidates will be made there at the approaching celebration of the Fourth. Nor will any mass meeting be held. Connecticut is a close state, and this revolt in the party will have its effect and will probably place that state with others favoring the Democratic party.

Character in Politics. President Hayes has been the New Haven Republican hub, June 23. We do not do our duty to-night if we do not openly declare that no man shall receive our vote who is not clean and pure, and worthy of the trust of the American people. Let us not be frightened by the old cry that the country is in danger if the old Republican party is not in power. Is danger from whom? I am not afraid to leave my country in the hands of the American people. If there be danger, it comes from those who are willing to surrender their consciences to their party. Individual responsibility has brought us here, and that makes it our duty to act for our selves.

What Questions? "Ask the most eminent physicians of any school, what is the best thing in the world for quieting and allaying all irritation of the nerves, and curing all forms of nervous complaint, giving natural, childlike refreshing sleep to all?" "And they will tell you unhesitatingly 'Some form of HOP BITTERS!'"
