A POETICAL FEST.

THE PIED PIPER OF HAMBLIN

Celebrating the 600th Anniversary in the Ola German Town-The Children Fotlow the Prper again.

The citizens of Ha Melo, or Ha-Melin, in Brunswick, Germany, on Saturday celebrated, with much pomp and parade, the 600th anniversary of the charming of the children of Ha Melin by the pied piper. For two mouths past a committee of twenty-nine citizens had been busily FAIR EXCHANGE NO ROBBERY. engaged in arranging the details of the celebration. This was to have begun on Thursday, the 26th inst., the real auniver-A truism accepted by all men sary day, but had to be postponed, be cause of the forbidding state of the weather. The advertisements of the as the basis of a correct business, applicable to all transactions. We exchange our clothing for thousand visitors, in addition to the usual your money, and in point of number of summer tourists who were so-equity have established a high journing at this historic place. At twilight the people of Ha Melin and the surrounding country were awakened by the booming of cannon and the clang-ing of bells. The salute gave assurance that the day was to be one of perfect weather, as it really was. The people turned out in their best attire. All the Ledger Building, Chestnut & Sixth Sts. made such a holiday as has seldom been seen even in Germany. All the buildings bad been freshly decorated during the night and the street archings had been r. flowered and regreened. Bands paraded all the morning, and there was general jollity preceding the principal event of the through the roof 300 feet away. He has day, which was the procession after the since died. The names of the other men day, which was the procession after the general assemblage at 2 o'clock in front of the "Old House." This bears on its outer walls an inscription stating that the Rattenfaenger von Hamelin, who lived in that same house, on Thursday 600 years ago, by the charms of bis pipe lured the children of the village from their homes into a cave in the Koppelberg hill and dis appeared with them there, in revenge upon he burgomaster for refusing to pay the housand crowns promised the piper for ridding the town of its rats.

To the assembled thousands the legend was recited in front of the "old house." Then the grand procession was formed, made up in part as nearly as possible like that celebrated. Hundreds of children, dressed in the costume of six centuries ago, led the procession, following the strains of the ancient pipe to the spot on the Koppelberg, whither the legend do clares the pied charmer disappeared with those that followed him. The spectacle was exceeding pretty. The costumes were historical correct, artists from Dasseldorf and Munich having come to Ha Melin to supervise their manufacture. Behind t'e children followed chariots drawn by mettle d horses, after the style of the rude vehicles of the pied piper's time. Knights in armor, men in long hose and buff jerkins women in graceful robes, and finally all the handieraftsmen of that accient time, wielding their primitive tools, made up the balance of a pagrant seidom equalled in this generation for historic interest and picturesqueners. The leading authorities of the town all had conspicuous positions in the procession, and the brilliantly uni-formed military of the province added their presence to the spectacular display. It had been intended to embody in the pageant representations of all the familiar erman legends concerning the piper, but doned because of the time it would have required to carry it out, and it was de sided to confine the representation to that of the Browning story. The procession was a complete success, and the children were oscorted back to the town with a band of music. The afternoon was given up to concerts and all sorts of outdoor amusement. In the eve ning, at the theatre, Nessler's opera, the libretto of which embodies the old legend of the pied piper, was rendered, many noted singers taking part in the performance. Late at night the town was bril liantly illuminated, and the day's festivi ties were closed with a great torchlight at the last moment this idea was abau-

Boston Bookkeeper Kula a Siber'an Plocdhound After Belog Terribly Mangled. About 4 o'clock Saturday merning E. W. Jackson, bookkeeper, was on his way from Medford to Maiden, to catch the early horse car for Boston. While passing the residence of George K. Goulding a large Siberian bloodhound belonging to Mr. H. GERHART, Goulding rushed to the sidewalk and attacked Mr. Jackson in a most savage manner. The animal jumped for the man's throat, but caught hold of his wrist which was put up to ward off the attack. A desperate struggle followed. The vicious beast, having tasted blood, fought like a tiger, and tore the flesh in several places from Mr. Jackson's arms. The dog being large and powerful, it required all of Mr. Jackson's strength to keep it away from his throat. during which the cries of Mr. Jackson for help could be bear help could be be bear help could be bear help c help could be heard half a mile away, but unfortunately there was no one in the vicinity at that early hour and the man and beast had to continue the struggle for life or death. The dog finally got a visc-like grasp of Jackson's wrist, which he crushed and broke between his teeth. The hand being the right one, Mr. Jackson was at a great disadvantage. He finally succeeded, however, in grasping the animal by the throat, and, with the unnatural strength of a man whose life is at stake, succeeded in choking the beast to death. Mr. Jackson was taken home and his wounds, which are serious, were dressed. The dog had been chained, but frequently broke away and was the terror of children and of everybody else who passed that way.

Remorial Services to be ifeld Upon the Scene of the ureat Conflict. During this week several memorial services will be held on the battle field of Gettysburg. On Monday the veterans of Seventeenth Connecticut regiment, with their wives and friends will leave New York city for Gettysburg and on Tuesday, the first day of July, they will dedicate a monument erected there to the memory of their comrades who fell upon that field twenty-one years ago. The oration will be delivered by Private P. C. Lownsbury, of Hartford, and short addresses will be made by the chaplain, Corporal Willis McDonald, of Brooklyn, and others. On Wednesday, the 2d of The FASHIONABLE MERCHANT TAILORS July, the veterans of the One hundred and Twenty-fourth New York regiment dedicate a monument in memory of their fallen comrades, Steward L. Woodward delivering the oration. On the same day the Twenty seventh Pennsylvania and the One Hundred and Third Pennsylvania veterans dedicate monuments in memory of their dead comrades. On Thursday the 3d of July, the veterans of the Fourteenth Connecticut regiment dedicate their monnment upon the same battle field.

A large number of the veterans of the Connecticut, New York and Pennsylvania regiments are now residents of New York and Brooklyn and have held meetings recently, at which resolutions were adopted eulogistic of their former companions in arms and votes passed indicating a lively interest in the coming manifestations conor to the patriotic dead.

SEVEN PROPER KILLED.

Flour Mill Shattered to Atoms Boiler Explosion. A terrific boiler explosion occurred Friday night at Stryker, a small place eight miles from Dayton, Ohio, in the flouring mill of Behren & Shafer. forty men were employed in the mill at the time, and the explosion was so terrible in its force that the large mill was blown almost to atoms, and among its debris were buried twenty-seven of the employes, seven of whom were extricated in a dying condition. The explosion was so great that pieces of the boiler, machi nery and stones from the mill were hurled through the air a distance of a quarter of a mile. One piece of the boiler, about three feet square, weighing probably more than a hundred pounds, was sent flying through the roof of a house fully a quarter of a mile from the mill. It took nearly the whole roof off. The falling timbers se-riously injured Miss Nellie Winters and George Winters, two of the occupants of chools, workshops and stores were closed, the house. The cause of the explosion is and the entire population of the district not known, but it was the most terrific made such a holiday as has seldom been that ever occurred in that section.

Edward Foster, the engineer, thrown nearly 300 teet. He was terribly scalded and mangled, but lived for three hours after the occurrence of the accident E R. Ayers, his assistant, was hurled who were killed are James Fasher, James Stull, W. Roop, J. H. Brennan and Frank Douglass. J. Ramsey, John Weller, and Michael Cooney, are so badly hurt that they may die.

Besides those mentioned, eight others were seriously injured, while nearly every person in the mill was more or less hurt. The work of extricating the injured was not completed until next morning. While the work was being carried on, women and children, whose fathers and husbands were buried in the debris, filled the air with their lamentations.

Sad Accidente, At the wharf at Deal's Island, Kent county, Md., Captain Prettyman White, drove down at an early hour in a buggy. He brought along with him his four-year old child. Upon arriving at the landing Captain White unhitched the horse from the buggy, leaving in the vehicle his child. While he was engaged in securing the animal a heavy gust of wind blew the buggy and child into the water. Every effort was made to rescue the little fellow without avail, as the child did not rise to the surface. While playing ball in the village of New Haven, Fayette county, Pa., the bat slipped from the hands of young Charlie Jones and struck his little brother Frank, aged but two years, in the stomach. The little f:llow gasped several times and died before the eyes of his horror stricken brother
