COLUMBIA NEWS.

OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENCE.

St. Peter's Catholic Fair—Nos. 1 and 3 Shawnee Furnace Will Await a Demand for Iron—Police News.

The regular monthly business meeting of school board will be held this evening.

The game of ball between the Riversides and a picked nine yesterday afternoon, resulted in a victory for the former of a score of 13 to 10.

Nos. 1 and 3 of the Shawnee furnaces will not be lit this month, as was expected. When the demand for iron increases these furnaces will be put in operation and not before.

Mr. John H. Kauffman is not a seriously injured as it was first expected.

Ladies going boating in the evenings, in full boating costume, without gentlemen, is the latest rage in Columbia.

Canal navigation will be resumed on the Tide Water canal on Saturday next. The breaks and washouts have all been repaired.

Fishing below the dam is becoming popular, even though but few fish are caught. Ten of our male citizens are there to day.

A tramp was badly whipped on Front street, for exposing his person, and not quitting when told.

Worthy of Better Patronage.

Notwithstanding the fact that Armory hall looks beautful with handsome decorations, elegant tables, and refreshments of a superior order, yet the fair of St. Peter's Catholic church is not being as well attended as it should. The cause of holding this fair is a commendable one, even though private, and our citizens should give the patronage expected by them. This has not, as yet been done.

Personal

Miss Lillian R. Welsh is attending the state teacher's convention, at Meadville, Pa.

Mrs. William Cooper, of Lancaster, is the guest of Mrs. Henry Pfahler, as is also Mrs. Stockhauser, of Virginia City, Nevada.

Mr. J. R. Henry, formerly of Columbia, now a resident of Chicago, where he has been painting stage scenery, will return home as soon as the Democratic convention ends.

Mrs. Frank Detrich, of Harrisburg, and Miss Emily Smith, of Philadelphia, are visiting their mother, Mrs. Martin Smith.

Police News.

Last night P. R. R. Detectives Wash Pyle and James Kennedy arrested nine train jumpers at Schoek's Mills. This morning they each received a sentence of ten days' imprisonment from 'Squire Frank.

On May 19 Mrs. W. H. Stevens, colored, sued her husband for assault and battery. Although attempts were made to arrest him, yet none proved successful until yesterday, when he was caught and taken before 'Squire Frank. His wife interceded and withdrew the suit.

William McCall sued Charles Loring yesterday for stealing his boat, a hammer and several spikes. Bail was given for a further hearing.

William McQuillan, a stranger, was arrested for drunken and disorderly conduct by Officers Wittick and Gilbert. 'Squire Frank gave him ten days' vacation with Burkey.

SUMMER LEISURE.

Sunday School Picnics and Departures from Town.

County Commissioner Myers has gone to Ocean Grove.

Deputy County Treasurer Harry Strohm has gone on a visit to relations in Illinois, Iowa and Nebraska.

The Sunday schools of the First Reformed and St. Paul's Reformed churches are holding a joint picnic at Rocky Springs to-day.

Rocky Springs has become a very popular picnic ground, and it is engaged for almost every day. There is considerable talk just now of constructing a street railroad to Pott's hotel, at Witmer's bridge, thence along the creek to Rocky Springs. It is believed that such a venture would be successful, and the Springs would become still more popular. It is also proposed to make a drive along the creek.

The Grace Lutheran Sunday school is holding a picnic at Lititz to day, and the attendance is very large.

Police Cases.

Five boys, who were charged with malicious mischief at the Manor street public schools, were heard by Alderman Spurrier and discharged.

Jacob Glassbrenner was held for trial at next court by Alderman Spurrier on three charges of surety of peace, made by Irvin Keller, Catherine Keller and Catherine Shrum.

The mayor had three lodgers this morning. Two were discharged and one, who was an insane man, was sent to the asylum.

Xavier Frey, of the Eighth ward, was fined $10 and costs by Alderman McGlinn, for cruelty to animals, it having been charged that he killed a dog in a cruel manner.

Cyrus Moore has been complained against for assault and battery on George Gast, and Alderman McGlinn held him for a hearing.

Bad Runaway.

On Tuesday John Lads and a friend, of Denver Station, started out for a drive. The horse took fright and ran away. Lads was kicked in the face by the animal and his nose was mashed. He fell from the buggy and was injured so badly that he will likely die. The other man escaped with a few injuries.

Binkley's Bridge.

A case stated has been filed in the prothonotary's office in which Jacob K. Good, D. Killinger, Joseph Stark, George N. Styer and Howard Pearsol are plaintiffs and the county commissioners defendants. It is to ascertain whether or not Binkley's bridge should be rebuilt at the cost of the county.

A Cricket Club.

A party of Lancaster gentlemen are now busily engaged forming a cricket club. They have already leased ground in McGrann's park, and this evening a meeting for organization will be held.

False Pretense.

Henry Zell was this afternoon heard before Alderman Fordney, on several charges of obtaining goods by false representations. He was held for trial at court.

The New Pump.

The water committee yesterday, visited the water works, with the superindent and others. The new pump was started off and it worked very well.

Sent on a Note.

The Fulton bank to day entered a suit against B. F. Denlinger to recover $5,000, the amount of the note which was alleged to have been forged by Amos Hostetter.

Connected with the Telephone.

F. J. Owens, No. 6 Penn Square, has been connected with the telephone exchange.

Lutheran Picnic at Lititz.

St. John's Lutheran and Gotwald mission Sunday-schools will picnic at Lititz to-morrow. Train leaves upper depot at 7½ o'clock.

THE THIRD DAY.

PROGRESS OF THE BIG CONVENTION.

Cleveland Men Still Maintaining Their Confidence—Wallace's Fine Presentation of Randall Anybody's Race So Far.

CHICAGO, July 10—10:25 A. M.—The weather is clear and pleasant. It is thought that a ballot will be reached this p. m., and final adjournment to day. The committee on resolutions have agreed on the platform. It says that no tax, direct or indirect, can be imposed upon the people, except to meet the expense of government. It provides that the necessaries of life, including tea and coffee, shall come in free.

The Situation Unchanged.

The Tribune says the friends of Judge Field are hard at work and he stands well as a dark horse. Hewitt's name is also mentioned this morning. It is said that a number of Indiana and Western men favor bringing out Hendricks after the first ballot. Some papers claim that Cleveland's strength is waning and Bayard gaining. The general impression though is that the situation is unchanged and Cleveland will probably get the nomination. The Tribune puts him down for 397 on the first ballot and Bayard 147. The Times says Bayard is looming up and that Butler has withdrawn from the contest and will support Bayard. Its estimate is: Cleveland 350, Bayard 192, McDonald 63, Thurman, 94, Carlisle 26, others scattering.

Beginning the Third Day's Work

The convention is assembling with an immense crowd in attendance. It is said that six of the Iowa delegates have changed from Cleveland, four going to Thurman, and two to Bayard. Randall is developing a good deal of strength this morning. The convention was called to order at 11:05 a. m. The first business in order is the completion of the call of states for presidential candidates.

The Massachusetts delegates had a secret caucus last night. The members admit that Butler had reconsidered his withdrawal from the field as a candidate, and that he would be presented after the second ballot.

The Daily News reports the following as Gen. Butler's tariff plank: Resolved, That customs duties should be levied for the purpose of raising money for the necessary expenses of the government and to protect and foster American industries and protect American labor. That raw materials manufactured in this country should come in free, as should also necessaries which are used on the poor man's table, such as tea, coffee, etc., and that the tariff on luxuries should be placed at the highest limit.

For the first time since the opening of the convention there was not a jam at the Palmer house this morning before 8 o'clock. For some reason, perhaps the fatigue of yesterday's session and last night's marching, the people slept late. It was a relief to be able to walk through the large corridors of the hotel without being crushed, and it was agreeable to those who have business in the Palmer house to reflect that nervous excitement was telling upon the over zealous visitors and flagging them out. The reflection was only short lived, however, for by 9 o'clock the rotunda and corridors had again filled up, and the tremendous crush which has characterized the past week was repeated again.

A Disagreement on the Platform.

The sub committee on resolutions has completed a full draft of the platform, which it commenced to read to the full committee at 10:30 this forenoon. The draft does not meet the approval of General Butler, and he has prepared a minority report, which will be submitted to the committee. It is expected his report will be rejected by a heavy vote. It is anticipated the regular minority report may be submitted to the convention, in which event a sharp discussion is expected. This may consume a great portion of the day's session. It is not now probable that the report will be read in the convention before noon.

Taking up the Gudgels for Cleveland.

The following dispatch has been received from New York by Chairman Manning, of the New York delegation:

"NEW YORK, July 9.—To Daniel Manning, esq.—Reading to day's proceedings and Grady's remarks concerning Governor Cleveland, I telegraph you that I was a representative Irishman before Grady was born, and as such believe I know now the sentiments of my countrymen and co-religionists; and I place my assertions against his that nine-tenths of the Irishmen I meet are in favor of Cleveland's nomination and that the universal sentiment expressed in this city to night is that Grady has uttered a vile calumny against the Irish and Catholics of America.

[Signed] WM. R. ROBERTSON."

The hour for the meeting is long past and the delegates are still coming in. There are occasional cheers, and music by the band. The visitors' seats are fully occupied. The scene is an animated one. The Cleveland men confidently predict his nomination if a ballot is reached to-day.

THE CONVENTION UNDER WAY.

The Cleveland Men Still Confident—The Committee on Platform Not Ready.

Among the distinguished gentlemen occupying seats on the platform are Speaker Carlisle, and Wm. H. English, of Indiana. Randall is not present. The convention was called to order at 11:10 a. m. The situation this morning does not differ materially from yesterday morning. The second day's event have developed only one thing, the stubborn determination to beat Cleveland at any sacrifice and by any means. It was generally conceded that the action of Tammany in openly opposing Cleveland was without precedent, but that it had done the New York governor no material harm. The Cleveland men are strong in their belief that they can bring matters to a crisis at their option. They could therefore afford to be generous in asking the convention to indulge Grady in his attack upon Cleveland yesterday. Chairman Manning was only carrying out the policy of the Cleveland men, which is to create the impression that they are safe in their strength and can afford to grant a few concessions.

The proceedings opened with prayer by Rev. George C. Lorimer, of Chicago. Carter Harrison, Illinois, rising to a personal explanation, repelled the ultimatum made by one of the speakers yesterday that he had packed the hall with claquers who applauded his speech in seconding the nomination of Cleveland.

A communication was received and read from the chairman of the committee on resolutions stating that the committee, notwithstanding constant and patient efforts, had not been able to complete the platfrom and would not be prepared to make a complete report before 7 p. m.

A Boom for Thurman.

The unfinished business of yesterday, being the call of states for nominations, was resumed. Manser, Missouri, came to the platform and made a nomination speech. He said Missouri would have given 32 stalwart Democratic votes for the old ticket, headed by "the Sage of Gramercy" and his venerated friend from Indiana, Hendricks. As they could not have the old ticket, he had been casting about to see who in this emergency should lead the embattled hosts of the Democracy to a grand and glorious victory. Nothing short of a blunder could make the Democracy lose the election, with 25 Democratic governors and 23 Democratic Legislatures, representing 253 electoral votes out of 401. Nothing but a fatal blunder could make the Democracy lose. The man in his mind was spoken of as "the noblest Roman of them all," Allen G. Thurman. [Cheers.]

He therefore seconded that nomination. He had loooked on Thurman's face yesterday, and recognized in him the colossal Democrat of the country, the Bismarck of America. With Thurman as the standard bearer, they could carry Ohio and New York and California. In proof of this he repeated a conversation he had with Gen. Spinola and other gentlemen, and read telegrams from Ohio and California. In conclusion, he declared before God that the Democracy was hungry even unto death, not for the venal spoils of office, but for the glory of doing good to their fellow beings. [Loud laughter and applause.]

Hoadly Put in Nomination.

Livingston, Missouri, rose to second the nomination of Cleveland, but the chairman stated that it would require unanimous consent. "No matter," said Livingston, "we have got our work in any how. (Laughter.) Thos. E. Powell, Ohio, came to the platform to put in nomination Geo. Hoadly. He declared that if the Democracy was true to itself its success in the coming struggle was already assured. "Within the last few years he said Ohio had overcome a Republican majority of over one hundred thousand, and at this hour the government of Ohio was in the keeping of the great Democratic party. The man who had been the acknowledged leader in bringing about the change was the candidate whom he now presented, George Hoadly. [Some applause.] Hoadly had received the largest endorsement ever given to a Democrat in Ohio, having received 19,000 more votes than Hancock received in 1880. He was known to the nation as a great lawyer, a wise statesman, a fearless and aggressive leader, a man of acknowledged ability, of undoubted integrity, a man of courage as well as of wisdom.

PENNSYLVANIA'S FAVORITE SON.

Ex-Senator Wallace's Glowing Presentation of Samuel J. Randall.

The state of Pennsylvania having been reached in the call, Senator Wallace came to the platform to nominate Randall. He said: "By direction of the Pennsylvania delegation I come to present the name of a candidate for the great office of president of the United States. The name which I bring you is found on every page of your country's and your party's history in the last two decades. [Applause.] It is that of no tyro in political affairs. It is that of a man in the prime and vigor of his manhood, with every faculty trained in practical government. An official life of 20 years lies behind him, clear, luminous and pure. No dishonest action, no corrupt practice has ever stained his escutcheon. [Applause.] While most of his contemporaries in official life have grown rich through devious and unknown means, he is still a poor man, [cheers] whose highest aim has been fitly to serve his people and his republic.

Democrats, the hour has struck for the nomination of a Democrat grounded in the faith and tried in the stern crucible of his party service. [Cheers.] The pathway of expediency lies behind us, strewn with the wrecks of our failure. Let us be honest now, let us stand by the record of our own pure public men. Let us boldly appeal to the people on that record and spurn the delusive promises of our bitter foe. The name of such a man we bring you.

His practiced hands, his experienced foresight, his conversance with public affairs, will lay the foundations of your return to power so broad, so wide, so deep, that they will be permanent. (Applause.) He has been practically the leader in the national House of Representatives for 17 years, favoring a reduction of taxation and an economical administration of government. He has with skill and success resisted the lavish expenditures of the money of the people, the waste of public domain and unconstitutional and tyranical force bills. (Applause.) His iron will has put the knife to corruption, extravagance, and has compelled a return to comparative purity of administration.

Earnest in purpose, pure in life, a grand tribune of the people and a statesman, no favor sways him and no fear can awe this man. Her son Pennsylvania presents to the Democracy as her candidate for the mighty office of president of the United States in the person of Sam'l J. Randall." [Loud applause and cheers.]

Gov. Abbett Seconds the Nomination.

Governor Abbett, of New Jersey, seconded the nomination of Randall. He said there was a conviction in the land that if wisdom controls the councils of the Democratic party in making a platform broad enough for every Democrat to stand upon, and in placing upon it a candidate of transcendent ability and pure life, success lies in the results of its deliberations. He believed Randall, as a candidate, would reach the controlling vote in the pivotal states more certainly than any other of the distinguished men named.

He asked: "Where does success lie? Not in Minnesota, not in Iowa, or in other confirmed Republican states, but in those close states which were carried by Tilden in 1876." He reviewed the arguments urged for Cleveland, and said these all applied to Thurman, Bayard and others. "Then what was the excuse for putting aside those grand Democratic veterans for new men? The record of Randall is pure and stainless, while his public career for twenty years has been in behalf of economical and honest government. Randall would sweep New Jersey like a great political cyclone. He is the friend of laborers everywhere, and the convention could do no better than nominate him."

Extolling Senator Bayard.

The call of the vote for nominations was then resumed. Abbott (Mass.), said that when that state was called yesterday, she presented no name. Now, in behalf of the majority of that delegation, he asked that John W. Cummings might second the nomination of Bayard. Cummings then came forward to the platform and addressed the convention in support of the nomination of Thomas F. Bayard, of Delaware.

It had been said that the electoral vote of the South was sure for any Democratic nominee. The South had kept its faith unfalteringly and unflinchingly, but it must be seen to that no Democratic convention committed itself to a nomination or to a nominee that would to some degree imperil those states in the future. The best man whom the Democracy could give would be none too good to carry the banner of the Democracy, and none too pure or high for the great Democracy of the South, and pure, and high and exalted as the nominee could be, no one could be more so than Thos. F. Bayard, of Delaware. [Cheers.]

They came to put the garment of success on the nominee. It must not be a rent and tattered garment like that which New York presented. It must be a whole, entire faultless garment. [Applause.] A large part of the New York delegation was bound hand and foot in this convention. He himself represented the fighting labor district of Massachusetts and he could tell the convention that if it forced upon the Democratic party the man who had rent the garment of success in New York, the party would lose the state of Massachusetts. This district was populated with workingmen, opposed to the grasping greed of monopolists, and he declared to the convention, voicing the labor element of the country, that if they tried to put the torn garment of New York on the candidate of the Democratic party they would banish the labor vote and lose the election. [Cheers.]

Leroy F. Gorman, South Carolina, also seconded the nomination of Bayard. He said is was manifest from the applause with which the name of Senator Bayard was received this morning, that at least the opposition to Cleveland has found a strong leader, who is skilfully organizing, to stem the tide that has been sweeping New York on towards the goal of success. Youman's said it was gratifying to find the old Bay state and Palmetto state joining hands on the Delaware statesman.

Jones, of New Hampshire, asked consent to second the nomination of Cleveland. Gen. Vent, New Hampshire, took the platform and made an earnest appeal for the nomination of Cleveland, and said it meant certain success.

Senator Doolittle, Wisconsin took the platform to second the nomination of Cleveland. He asked the convention not to throw away this great opportunity for success.

Walter, Connecticut, took the platform by consent, and seconded the nomination of Cleveland in an eloquent speech. Walter deplored the unfortunate controversy in the Empire state, but having listened to all the evidence, the verdict must be in favor of Cleveland by the unanimous vote of Connecticut.

BOOMING CLEVELAND.

A Concerted Effort All Along the Line for New York's Governor.

F. M. Ross, Arkansas, seconded the nomination of Cleveland. He said Arkansas would cast its entire vote for Cleveland. He was certain he could be elected.

Delaney, of Wisconsin, seconded Cleveland. There was much cheering.

Gen. Bragg, Wisconsin, took the platform to second Cleveland. Renewed cheering, Bragg said he voiced the choice of the young men of Wisconsin and the West in seconding the great Governor of New York. They loved him most for the enemies he has made. [Great applause.]

Grady sprang to his feet and said in behalf of his enemies, he reciprocated that hate. (Great confusion.) Bragg said such action on the part of a Senator was a disgrace. (Cheers, hisses and confusion.)

Bragg, pointing to Grady, said his labor had been on the crank of the machine. [Renewed cheers and confusion.] He said the party had followed the old leaders to death. He asked a new and young man to lead it, possessing life and blood. Bragg closed with renewed cheers.

Adjourned Until, 8 P. M.

The convention adjourned till 8 p. m. The committee on resolutions were ordered to report at that hour.

A Safe Platform Deliverance Promised.

The sub committee of the committee on resolutions made its report to the general committee shortly before noon this morning. The majority report of the sub committee was signed by all the members of the committee except Butler, who presented a minority report. The two reports are now (12:45 p. m.) under discussion, and it is not expected that the platform will be submitted to the convention until 7 o'clock this evening. Converse, Hewitt and Watterson were appointed a committee to punctuate and burnish up the final report before it is sent to the convention. The members of the committee seem to think the platform, as it will be presented, will be satisfactory as a whole.

AN ANIMATED SCENE.

Great Crowds at the Third Day's Session—The Issue in Doubt.

Special to the INTELLIGENCER.

This is the greatest day of the convention. Every seat in the vast hall is occupied and good order prevails. The delegates and spectators look fresh. Ladies are scattered throughout all the galleries and their scarlet millinery with the blazing banners of clubs and bandana flags waving on a thousand canes at every outburst of applause enhance the splendor of the scene.

The sub-committee on resolutions, except Butler, have agreed on a tariff plank. It is very close, and Morrison says he gives away everything and his opponents get nothing. The full resolution committee is at work. The convention will probably order it to print its reports, and I now believe that the balloting will not begin before the next session of the convention, probably to-night. The delay is against Cleveland, who is not now sure of a majority, but is close to it. As soon as he gets half, the necessary two thirds will tumble in.

Manser, of Missouri, speaks for Thurman and wild enthusiasm prevails, with red bandanas waving all over the house, while John McLean and his half of the Ohio delegation sit defiant and silent. Part of Ohio speaks for Hoadly. There is no vitality in this boom, as it is recognized to be simply a cover for the Thurman opposition, which eventually goes to Cleveland.

During the speeches Hancock's name was mentioned. No marked applause. No Hancock or Tilden boom is likely. Wallace made an effective presentation of Randall and the applause which he created was intensified when Gov. Abbett, of New Jersey seconded the nomination.

12:15 P. M.—Cummins, of Mass., for the majority of his delegation seconds Bayard. This ends Butler's loom. It looks as if Randall and Bayard were about equally strong in the field, but there is no sign that the field can be united successfully on either. As a matter of sentiment it would be possible, since the strongest opposition to Cleveland is based on the desire for a more veteran Democrat and experienced publicist. But back of all this lie the interests and combinations of skilful and solicitous politicians. In this sort of management New York excels and its leaders have been making combinations hard to break.

1:40 P. M.—Bragg, of Wisconsin, seconds Cleveland and excoriates Tammany, making the greatest oratorical hit of the convention, by declaring that his people like Cleveland best for the enemies he has made. Grady hisses out an answer, but Bragg now has the convention more completely than any speaker yet.

The Suspension of Coal Production.

PHILADELPHIA, July 10.—An officer of the Philadelphia & Reading coal and iron company, stated to day that the matter of suspending production during August, has not yet been the subject of even informal discussion, but that if other companies demanded a week's stoppage in that month, the Reading company would not oppose the movement; although it would be better satisfied with full work.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—For the Middle Atlantic states, cloudy weather and occasional rain, variable winds, slightly warmer.

What Prominent Citizens Do in Texas.

John Moore, a prominent citizen of Texas, was on Wednesday shot dead by another prominent citizen named George McLoud. The latter was arrested. McLoud was drunk and provoked a quarrel.

Pursued by a Snake.

Grapeville is the name of a Greene county, N. Y., hamlet, and from there comes the story of an exciting adventure with a snake. The Clinton family is one of the best known in that part of Greene. One day recently, Miss Laura Clinton, while out walking on one of the country roads, saw a large snake coming toward her. Fear gave her fleetness of foot, but she ran none too fast, as the reptile followed her to within a few feet of her home, where, after a lively tussle it was killed by a man named George Hunt. By actual measurement the length of the snake was 5 feet 9½ inches. It died hard.

Expansion and Contraction.

Philadelphia Call.

Student—Heat expands and cold contracts.

Professor—Correct. Give an example.

Student—During the summer the affections of city people for their country relatives expand and in winter they contract.

FEATURES OF THE STATE PRESS.

The Philadelphia Chronicle-Herald remarks that Randall's worst enemies are in his own delegation.

A. R. Reed, editor of the Tyrone Herald, has been elected superintendent of the Tyrone public schools.

The York Age and Dispatch are having their usual quarrel. This time it is over the distribution of the flood charities.

The Harrisburg Patriot marvels at the Philadelphia Telegraph's condemnation of Herr Smith's vote for the Porter bill and its ignoring of Senator Cameron's vote on the same side.
