A Large Crop of Peaches in Prospect,

Peaches are about to attract the atten tion of most of the fruit dealers. There will be a very large crop this season. The saches will come to our market from Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey and New York in great abundance. There are some peaches in every orchard and upon nearly every tree in the four states, while many of the orchards are very full. The fruit growers of Delaware and Maryland, where the greater quantity of the peaches are produced, have made extensive arrangements for drying great quantities of this fruit for the past several years. All who have dried their common fruit have found for it a ready and profitable market among the West Indian and South American shipping merchants, and the capacity of the peninsula evaporators is sufficient to dry fully one-third of the production of the peninsula. In all probability the yield of the peach crop on the peninsula this season will be upward of 6,000,000 baskets, of which amount over 2,000,000 baskets will be sent to this market, and more than that quantity should the prices realized be greater than now anticipated. Quite a good many Early Hales and Early Beatrice are coming from Maryland now, and quite a good many of them will come here this week from Delaware, but so far they have been very inferior in quality, and arrived here in poor condition, and as neither of these varieties of peaches have any merit save that of being early, their presence in the market is felt by the fruit dealers to be detrimental to the interests of the fruit trade, and the wish is general that the cul tivation of these peaches would cease. Then the peach season would open with the little Troth's Early, a small freestone dry peach, of fine keeping qualities and of excellent flavor—such a peach as tempts the appetite, instead of nauseating, as Hale's Early does. The first of Troth's Early will not reach the market from Maryland before next week, and those people who await their coming before buy ing their first peaches of the season will be richly repaid for the waiting.

The Georgia Wonder Explained. "Clara Belie" in the Cincinnati Enquirer. Is she magnetic? Oh, yes; and that's what makes me mad. regard it as reasonable, and usually proper, that when a pretty, gentle, refined girl stands close in front of a man, looks him meltingly in the eyes, lays her soft palms on his hands and radiantly smiles, he should do her sweet will on the spot, no matter how violent the required exercise may be. Now, the relative positions which I have described are exactly those of Lulu, and every man who undertakes to resist her power, physically, metaphysically, or whatever else it may be. Just because she is a girl they idiotically submit. A gaze from her bulgy eyes and a touch of her course paw overcomes them, and, while they think they're resisting with all their might, they really do not oppose her effectually. That is all there is in her feats, except that she is more muscular than any wearer of petticoats ought to be. Once in a while some level headed man refuses to be impressed, and then she fails in her feat. If she was merely rural and un fashionable, I wouldn't grumble. I am as quick as anybody to discover prettiness, no matter how freskled, lanned or backwoodsy its possessor ; but if Lulu was to be dressed in a Paris gown and taught the ways of a Fifth ave. drawing room, she would remain uncouth. Where is the reward of really fascinating merit in our sex if men are going to let such an uncultured holder capture them? I would just like to back a fashionable New York girl against her. My champion should be one of our highest developments of feminine brawn, induced by the riding, tennis playing, pedes rianism and other exercises that are now so much in vogue. I would wager that my girl could make a man stand on his head where Lulu could only dance him around the stage a little.

An Irish Marrings Custom. A case illustrative of the custom of marrying and giving in marriage in the rural districts was heard in a Limited court. John Hayes, with two other men, went to Mrs. Ryan's house, and an agree ment was entered into that Hayes should marry Mrs. Ryan's daughter. He was to get a marriage portion, $1,750, and the marriage was to take place on the follow ing Sunday. In the interim defendant obtained $250 to cover the expenses, but when the guests were assembled for the wedding breakfast, he quarreled about money, broke off the match, and quitted the house. A few days later he married another girl with a larger portion. He returned a part of the money loaned, and as a set off to the claim put in a bill an entertainment which he gave for Mrs. Ryan. The items included whisky, port and sherry. The last item was $20 put clergyman for intended mar riage," Judgment for the full amount

Nellie's Doll House.

From a Washington Letter. Visitors to the president's grounds are frequently curious concerning what appears as a double sentry-box just under the eastern portico of the White House, railed off from any but those connected with the house and grounds. A closer quiry reveals the fact that it is no less a house. Though of perfectly plain, unpre-tending exterior, being built of narrow grooved boards, the interior leaves nothing to be desired in the way of comfort for the listle guests. There are two entrance deors in front and four windows—one at either ends and two at the back—before each of which are hung white muslin curtains caught back with colored Alo't That Kind of a floy. Teacher—"Suppose you have two sticks of candy and your big brother gives you two more, how many would you have then?" Little Boy (shaking his head)—"You don't know him; he ain't that kind of a boy." A Child That Drank.

A Paris physician got into a great scrape lately by declaring that a young lady of seven, and belonging to a family of respectability, drank. Another doctor was promptly summoned and said the same thing. The parents were in despair and incorporability. They said that their dear and incredulity. They said that their daughter actually disliked wine. "Watch her carefully," said doctor No. 2; and a few days later mamma caught the victim of the mysterious malady at the eau de cologne bottle.

LETTER FROM A WELL-KNOWN NEW YORK AUDTIONEER. 116 & 115 EAST 14TH STREET,

NEW YORK, May 18, 1883. I have been troubled with an Irritation of the Throat and a Cough for some time. I am also a martyr to Dyspepsia. By the advice of a very learned physician I applied two ALL OCCE'S PORCUS PLASTERS to my chest, and one on the pit of my stomach. In the three day my Cough was cured and my Threat was well have now worn the plasters two weeks and my appetite and digestion have much im proved. I am confident that in another weel my Dyspepsia will be entirely removed. have never used so pleasant and agreeable remedy in my life.

HARTMAN'S YELLOW FRONT CIGAR;

Having Dissolved Parthership and petmanently closed the Chestnut street from Works, i desire to inform my old patrons and the public generally, that I am still in the business, being located in the Penn Iron Company's Works, North Plum street, where I am making Iron and Brass Castings of every destription, and will be pleased to serve all who may favor me with their patronage. From 40 years experience in the business and using the best material and employing the best mechanics, I am satisfied I can guarantee entire satisfaction. Castings made from a mature of iron and steel which are more reliable for strength and durability than the best cast from known. V teeth roll pinions, rolls and rolling mill work a specialty. Castings made of very soft iron, and brass castings of every description. I have all the patters of the well and lavorably known Mowrer Corn and Cob Crusher, refitted and improved. Also on hand, mills completely fitted up or in parts, to replace old ones which have been in use for years, guaranteeing them to give satisfaction.
