HAGER & BROTHER.

voice came like the murmur Of summer among the trees. As sweet as the innocent laughter From children at their play ; Yet fraught with the deepest wisdom

Of men of an older day. And never an English household take the weird Eolian music Of a harp on the window-sill.

It came to man and maiden, Like the swelling of midnight chimes, And they knew that the heart of the singer Was beating in the rhymes.

It came to the careworn toller, As he stood 'mid the smoky throng, And his tears would start in rapture At the marvelous gifts of song.

For it told a beautiful story That memory still keeps green As the murmuring pines and the bemlock

The tale of Evangeline. It told of Hlawatha And the Laughing Water's grace, In the lay that for future ages

Embalms a vanished race. And the flower of German legend Was culled in the master's skill, And offered a tragrant posy,

That all may keep who will. The New World and the Old World Joined hands in each liquid line, Where the myrtle of classic culture Was wreathed with Western pine.

And never a word he uttered But straight to the heart it flew. As soft as the summer gloaming, As pure as the morning dew,

O dear, dead voice of the singer Whose magical notes are o'er, Our hearts are true to the music That echoes forever more.

O poet, thy tunes are symboled

By the grave-plot's sacred flowers. O death, where is thy conquest ? His immortal congs are ours.

-From the London World The Bet Still Undeclaed. From the Chicago News.

Two we'll meaning men, one from St. Louis and the other from St Paul, had an argument in the Sherman house, on the pronunciation of the word depot, "I say it is 'dee-po ? ' said the St. Paul man. "And I say it's 'day-po i'" auswered the St. Louisian. In the course of time they put up $5 apiece and agreed to leave it to a tall, fine looking man on the other side of the ro-

Going up to him, the St. Paul disputant said: "My friend and I have a small bet on the pronunciation of the word 'dee-po. I say that it is 'dee-po,' and he says it is 'day-po.' Now who is right?"

"Pardon me," replied the stranger,
"but I never heard the word before. How do you spell it, and what does it mean?".

The betting men looked at each other dubiously, and one said : "Dep-o-t, a "Oh, yes, yes ; excuse me. You mean

'dep-po,' of course. Yes, yes, deppo. It is pronounced 'deppo.' " Look here !" yelled the St. Paul man " where do you come from ?" Boston, sir."

"Well, there can't no Boston man settle a bet for me on the English language. Come on, let's interview Carter Harri-

One Thousand Acres of Land and "Right Smart of Bears." On the deck of a big Mississippi steambox tood an aged Southern planter. Indicating by a sweep of his arm the waters the boat was assing over, he said to a passenger from the orth · "When I was tweive years old I killed ny first bear on a new plantation my father was then cutting of a forest that grow directly over the waters out of this bend. That was a was then cutting of a forest that grow directly over the waters out of this bend. That was a mighty good plantation, and there was right smart of bears there, too. But that one thousant acres of land went into the Mississippi liver years ago."

It is putting no strain upon the figure to say that great forests of youthful hope, womanly beauty and manly strength are swept in the same way every year into the great, turbid torrent of disease and death. Yet it should not be so. That it is so is a disgrace as well as a loss. People are largely too careless or too stupid to defend their own interests—the most precious of which is health. That gone, all is gone. Discuss is simple, but to recklessness or ignorance the simplest things might as well be complex as a proposition in Conte Sections. As the huge western rivers, which so often flood the cities along their shores, arise in a few mountain springs, so all our aliments can be traced to impure blood and a small group of disordered organs. disordered organs.
